PACKER FAMILY HEAD DIES

CHICAGO, Aug. 16.—(AP.)—J. Ogden Armour died today in London, a cablegram received here by Lester Armour, said.

Mr. Armour, wealthy Chicago packer, had been ill for some time with typhoid fever, recovery being greatly hampered by recurrences of stomach attacks, an ailment from which he has suffered for some time. The prolonged fever left him in a weakened condition, cabled reports said.

Mr. and Mrs. Mitchell and Mrs. Armour were at the bedside when Mr. Armour died.

Mr. Armour would have been 64 in November.

J. Ogden Armour was born on November 11, 1863, in Cincinnati, O. His life was the story of the growth of an industry and the rise of a great city. Through his efforts his father's packing plant became the largest in the world and the industry made Chicago one of the greatest commercial centers in the United States.

The father had built up the business of Armour & Co. to $182,000,000 in its record financial period and died happily, thinking the ultimate had been reached. But the son, who had left Yale in 1881, a year before his graduation, to go into the firm, believed that his father had only made a beginning and set himself to prove it. He succeeded beyond his most optomistic dreams. He watched the volume of business go beyond the $100,000,000 mark and promise to climb even higher.

In 1891, just before he had assumed active direction of the firm, young Armour married Miss Lolita Sheldon, daughter of Martin J. Sheldon, Suffield, Conn. Together they fostered

The Pirates, four and one-half games behind the Cubs, are confident they will overtake the leaders on their present swing around the eastern part of the National League.

While the Pirates are tangling with the Giants, the Cubs play the Robins in Brooklyn.

Hapgood Gets Six Months

By International News Service.

BOSTON, Aug. 16.—Powers Hapgood, youthful mine workers' leader of Pittsburgh, and son of an Indianapolis packer, was sentenced to six months in the House of Correction by Judge Parmenter in Municipal Court today on a charge of rioting and inciting to riot on Boston Common during a Sacco-Vanzetti demonstration Sunday.

HILL THUG ATTACKS TWO

Within two days a house has been blown up and a woman and her young daughter viciously attacked by thugs in the Colwell street district.

The bombing occurred at 1324 Colwell street yesterday and the latest outrage was perpetrated last night when Mrs. Alice Burke and her daughter, Dorothy, 6, 1323 Colwell street, were struck down while returning from a drug store in Stevenson street.

During the past week, according to Mrs. Burke, life in the district has been almost intolerable. Her husband reported the situation to police, Mrs. Burke says.

BLAMES RESORT LOOKOUT.

Thugs patrol the district continually, she says, acting as lookouts for resorts and she told police she recognized one of these as her assailant.

Before going to the drug store, Mrs. Burke related, she saw the man loitering in the district talking to another man. She says she thought no more about it, but on her way home in Stevenson street the man approached her and the little girl and struck her with his fist, knocking her to the street. The daughter screamed as her mother fell and she, too, was knocked down.

The street was clear of other persons at the time, but hearing the child's screams, neighbors ran to the aid of the pair. They were taken to their home and police notified, but a search of the neighborhood was unavailing.

Mrs. Burke described her assailant as being about 25, 5 feet 8 inches tall, and weighing about 140 pounds. He wore no coat or hat, she said.

Police investigating the bombing and attack say they have no clues.

HAWAII FLIERS AWAIT GUN

By ELLIS H. MARTIN,
International News Staff Correspondent.

MUNICIPAL AIRPORT, OAKLAND, Cal., Aug. 16.—The world's greatest aerial derby is on today.

Groomed to perfection, nine planes awaited the signal flag, which, at noon, will send them zooming out across the Pacific in an epochal race to Hawaii.

Three hours before the scheduled mid-day take-offs, the last of the nine planes was wheeled into the half-moon formation at the head of the two-mile runway.

The great airport, spread over a score of acres, was growing black with the constant arrival of spectators. Before noon the crowd was expected to exceed 100,000.

Nine pilots, eight navigators and a charming young Michigan "schoolmarm," Miss Mildred Doran, prepared to gamble their lives on their ability to span by air the 2,400 miles of trackless sea.

WINNER GETS $25,000.

For the first to land on the Island of Oahu waited a $25,000 pot of gold. To the second a prize of $10,000 was to be the reward. For the balance there was only the glory of achievement—the setting of a new milestone in aerial progress.

For once the rail birds were at a loss to pick a winner. There was no form chart on which to base predictions. The pilots, the navigators and the lone passenger exuded confidence.

Mechanically their steeds of the air were ready. Each navigator had

M'Govern Starts Audit

Pertinent facts pertaining to the county's supposed questionable financial status were expected to be unveiled in the public audit of the county commissioners' affairs inaugurated by County Controller C. C. McGovern at 2 p. m. today.

The officers of both the commissioners and the controller hummed with excitement and conjecture all day, as an amused public endeavored to forecast the testimony of Commissioners Joseph G. Armstrong, E. V. Babcock and James Houlahen, J. L. Schmidt and Gil. C. Cloonan.

All the records of the Commissioners' office were opened to the inspection of McGovern and his auditors.

The limited space in McGovern's office forbade the entrance of many. McGovern sat in the role of inquisitor, flanked by his attorneys, audi-

WOMAN BATTLES POLICEMEN IN COURT HERE

NORTH SIDER OBJECTS TO 30-DAY SENTENCE

Fighting like an Amazon when she was fined $100, with the alternative of 30 days to the workhouse, by Magistrate A. D. Brandon in Morals Court this morning, Winnie McLaughlin, 26, of the North Side, battled two husky policemen before she was finally lodged in a cell of the matron's department.

She had taken the cab at 805 Wylie avenue. At Water and Short streets, when the driver suggested payment of the 45-cent bill, she kicked out a cab window, according to Henry Bert, driver. Her arrest followed on a charge of disorderly conduct.

While Bert was testifying, Winnie wanted to tell her story, but was told by Magistrate Brandon to await her turn. When it came she refused to utter a word.

"One hundred or thirty," said Brandon.

Winnie then began swinging arms as well as feet. Spectators backed away. Two policemen, one on each side, grasped her firmly. She broke away and continued battling. Her strength amazed Morals Court officers. She was disheveled but still defiant at the finish.

Transatlantic Plane Beaten by Stork; Drouhin a Daddy

PARIS, Aug. 16.—(AP.)—Maurice Drouhin, French aviator, whose fretfulness over the delay in starting his transatlantic hop has been tempered by the hope of seeing his expected baby, got his wish today.

The stork proved faster than the airplane Columbia, and Demoiselle Monique Drouhin arrived this morning.

passed a grilling test to prove his fitness to guide by the sun, the moon and the stars the course of his plane for the tiny islands in mid-Pacific.

To the gods of the air they were prepared to commend their fates.

TO TAKE 22 HOURS.

On the basis of speed tests, the fliers expected to complete the race in 22 hours. But wind, rain, cloud and fog were factors to be met with which will finally determine the results of the race and probably the safety of the racers.

The planes were to follow the aerial trail blazed only last month by Lieutenants Maitland and Hegenberger, Army fliers, and by Ernie Smith and Emory H. Bronte, civilian airmen.

Strung across the Pacific a network of Naval and commercial ships were ready to render assistance in case of disaster.

Humming steadily its message of safety, the Army radio beacon was in readiness to guide the planes equipped with radio.

In Hawaii a welcome of tremendous proportions awaited the successful birdmen.

FASHION QUEEN IS ANOTHER "LINDY FAN"

By ALFHILD LARSON,
Pittsburgh's Queen of Fashion.

"We" flew over St. Louis today, high over the city, circling and dipping like a great silver gull. But "we" happened to be Lindy and his Spirit of St. Louis. My heart was right up there with him, and oh, how I wanted to be flying above the city with the king of clouds.

Miss Scarberry and I were on top of the Star Building with Alsey Roberts, the publisher, when Lindy flew over. Mr. Roberts had his movie camera and made pictures.

The Garden Theater was packed again tonight. As before I received the most applause in the finale. There hasn't been a night yet that my applause hasn't stood out far above the others. It makes me so hopeful of winning Thursday night.

But, of course, there is the judges' decision. The popularity vote, we understand, counts only one-eighth. Some of the other points are poise, carriage, deportment, build, looks—goodness only knows what those judges have up their sleeves. They tell us they are in the audience every night checking up on us.

The girls are all friendly. There is no cattiness whatsoever. We trade dresses, help one another doll up, swap makeup and everything. I like all the girls, so it seems too bad that only one can win and nine will have to go back home empty handed. Oh, well, such is life. Hope I am not an unlucky one.

JUDGE MARTIN RENEWS THREAT TO WITHDRAW

Speaking at the noon meeting in his headquarters today Judge Richard W. Martin, independent candidate to succeed himself, reiterated his intention of withdrawing if the Bar Association poll does not show that the attorneys approve of him "by a substantial percentage of its vote." If he does not get that percentage, Judge Martin said, he will disregard what chance he has to be chosen and retire from the field.

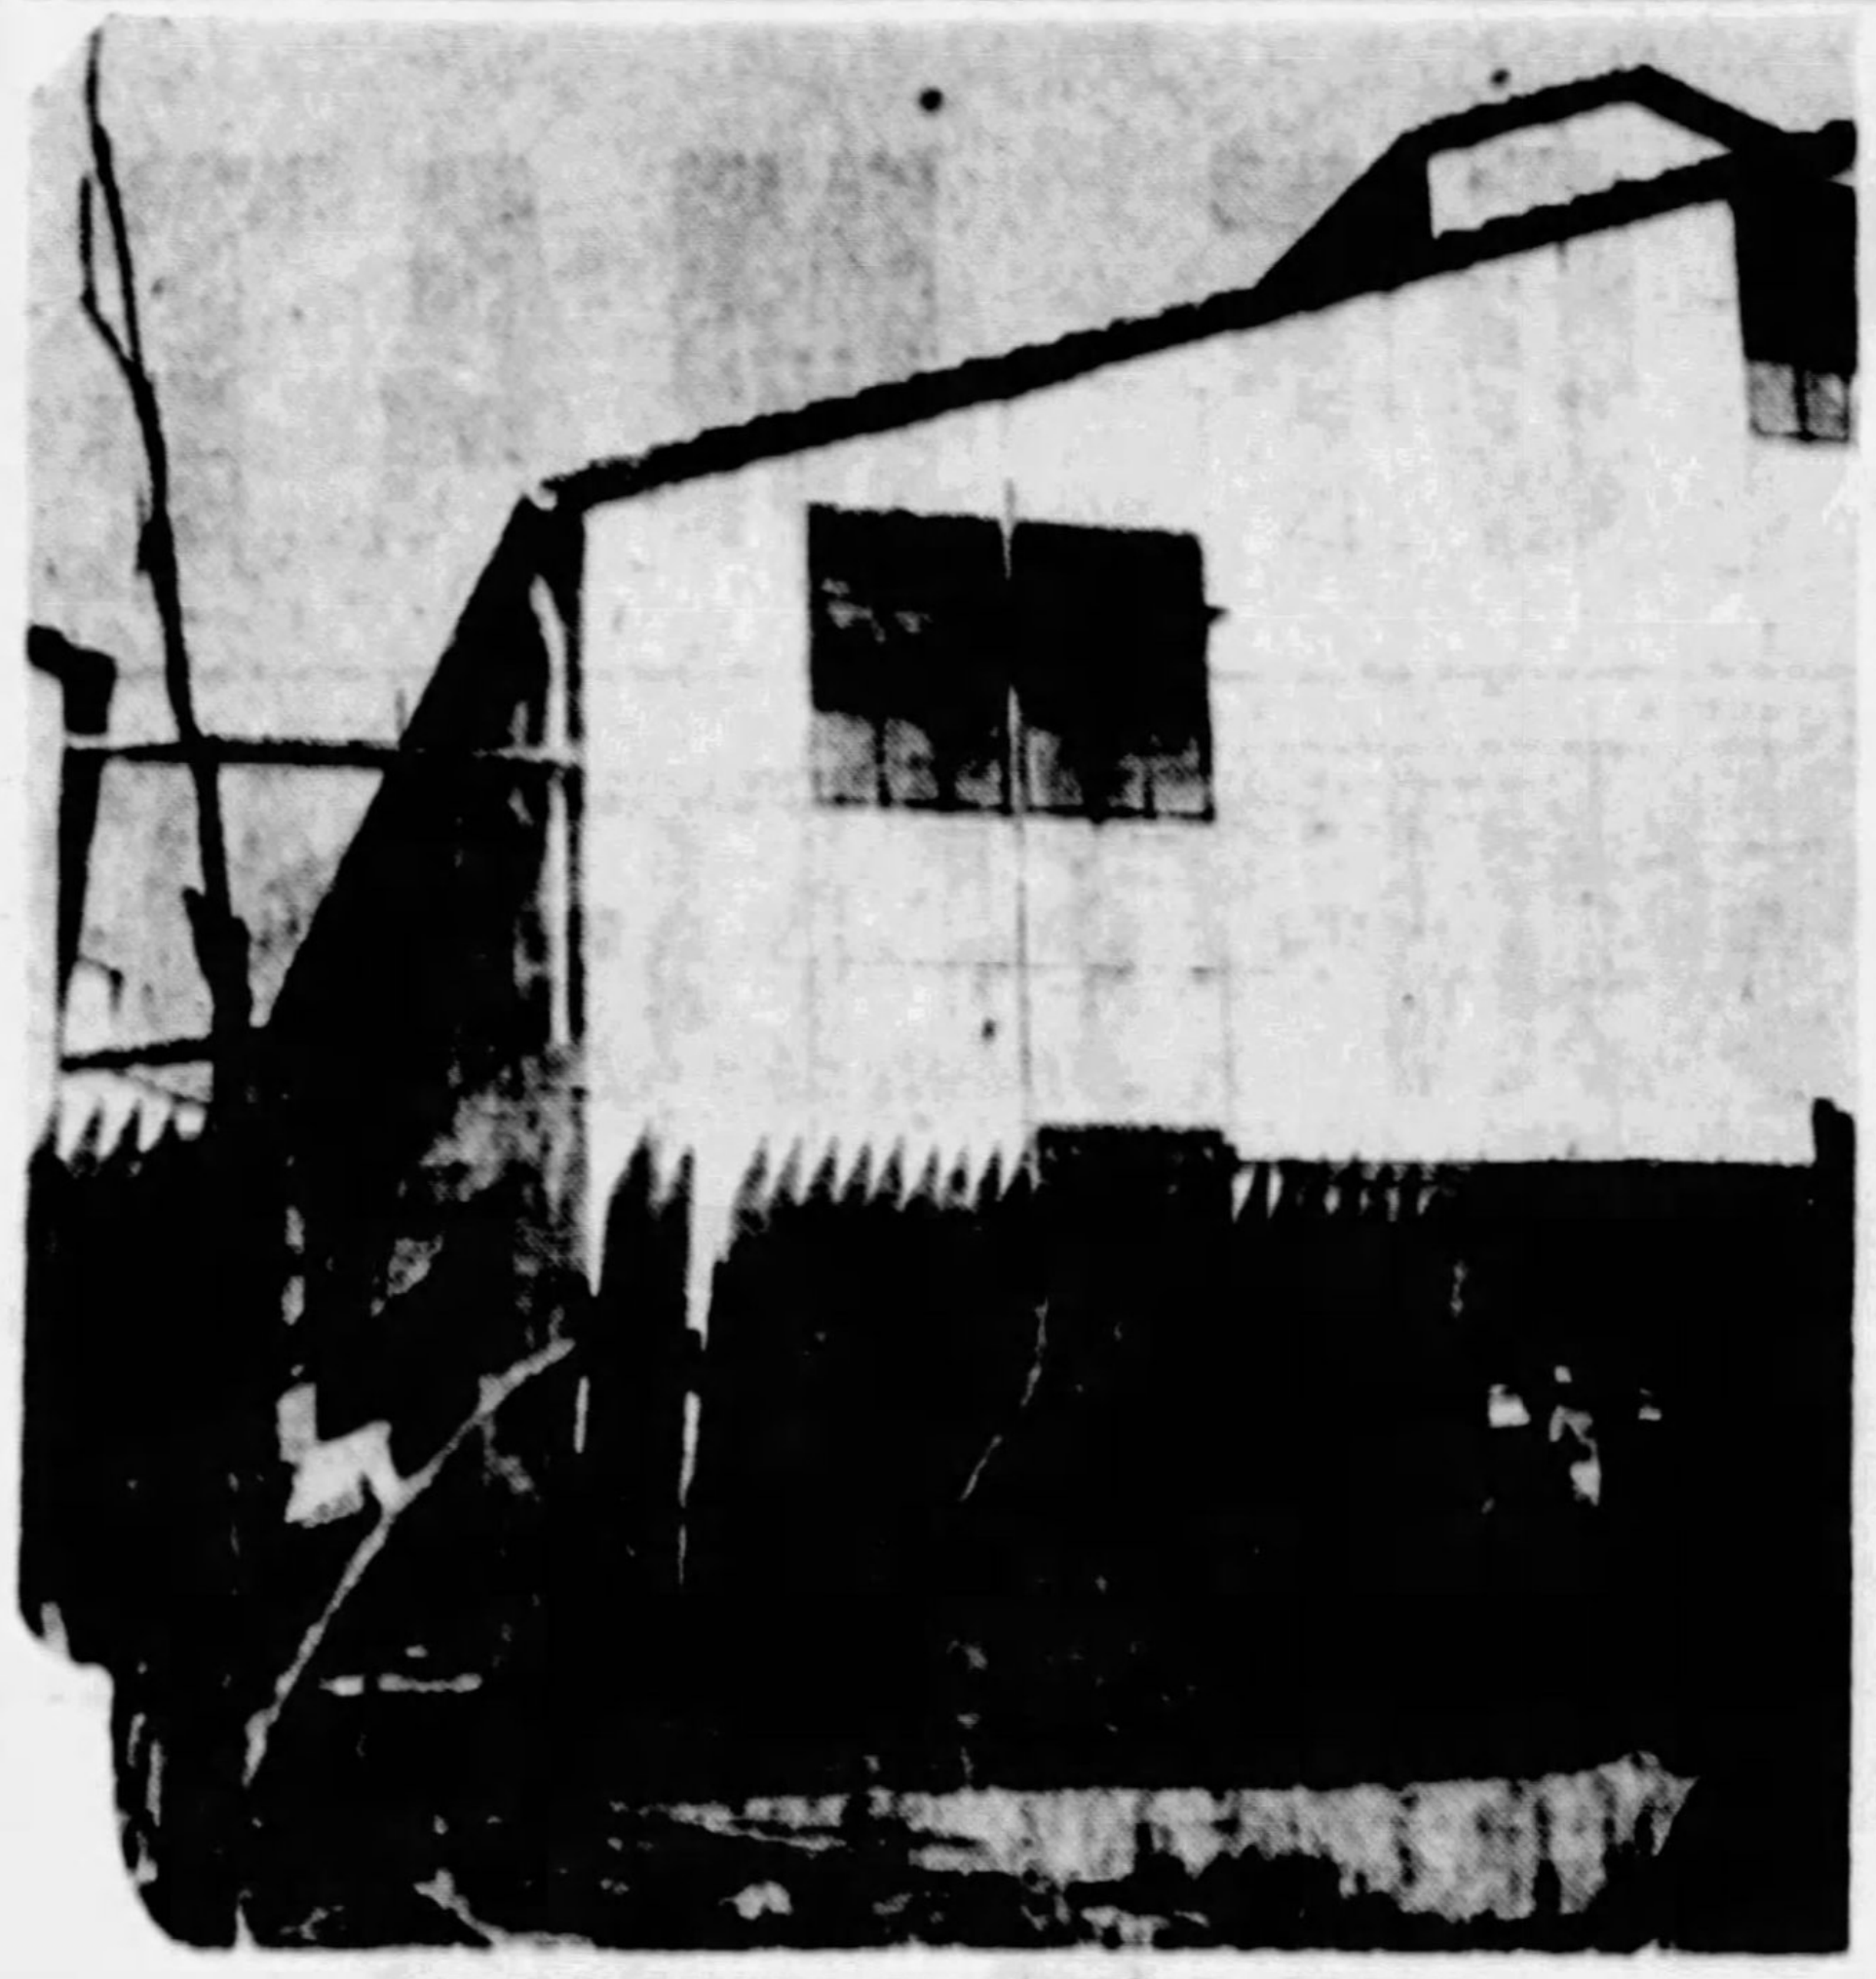
CHEMICAL PLANT BURNS -:- RESIDENTS PROTEST OPERATION



OVERHEATED MATERIAL CAUSE

An overheated tray of material at the Selden Chemical Company, Wabash avenue and McCartney street, this morning started fire that resulted in damage estimated at $2,500. The blaze broke out in Building B, in which there were two workmen.

PEOPLE OBJECT TO ODORS

Residents of the Wabash avenue district gathered at the scene of the fire to make open protest against the operation of the plant, which they say throws off ill-smelling gases.

Firemen who responded to a call from the workmen had difficulty in fighting the flames because of dense smoke. Expensive chemicals were destroyed in the hour that the fire burned.

FIGHT FILM HOLDER FINED

Films of the Dempsey-Sharkey fight, valued at $1,500, which Tony Molarino, better known as Tony Ross, former pugilist, brought to Pittsburgh were ordered confiscated this morning in Federal Court. In addition Molarino was ordered to pay a fine of $25.

He faced a fine of $1,000 and a sentence of one year in Federal prison on a charge of transporting fight films in interstate commerce, but Judge F. P. Schoonmaker explained he was assessing only a nominal penalty because Molarino had acted in good faith in making inquiries as to the legality of exhibiting the films.

Federal Attorney John D. Meyer seized the films when Molarino, accompanied by Attorney Joseph C. Marcus, brought them to Mr. Meyer's office and sought information as to the legality of exhibiting them. Having brought the films into the state, he already was guilty of a technical violation of the interstate commerce laws and Meyer made the formal complaint against him.

AUDIT BEGINS

tors and secretary. The Commissioners faced him across the desk.

BOOKS NOT AUTHENTIC.

The hearing was opened by McGovern reading excerpts of public records. County Solicitor W. Heber Dithrich offered a letter in which it was stated that the commissioners wished it understood that the books produced were only kept for convenience and that authentic records were held in the Bureau of Statistics.

An argument ensued between the controller and solicitor about the county books. This was ended with the swearing in as witness of Armstrong.

The question was started with Armstrong's record as an officeholder. McGovern then questioned the commissioner's bookkeeping system. Armstrong appeared antagonistic.

MANY UNPAID BILLS.

Armstrong declared that the commissioners created their bookkeeping system after it was discovered that there were many unpaid bills and that the county was losing discount.

McGovern asked where they got their records to start. Armstrong misunderstood. The question was repeated.

Armstrong testified the records were taken from the controller's office. Armstrong said he would "be honored if given the credit" of inaugurating the commissioners' bookkeeping system. This system, he said, saves the county $60,000 in discounts as well as keeping the commissioners informed of all county affairs.

FAILED TO GET DISCOUNT.

McGovern asked if all previous commissioners had failed to discount bills.

"So I am informed," Armstrong replied.

"But you don't know for a fact?" McGovern pursued.

"No," the witness replied.

"As treasurer," McGovern asked, "did you know whether the county was paying its bills promptly?"

Armstrong replied that he did not believe other county officers would tolerate the interference of the Treasurer. They knew their jobs, he amended.

The Metz system of bookkeeping was next questioned by McGovern. He asked Armstrong what it was. "Ask some of these experts," Armstrong evaded.

Both men were arrested late yesterday after a brawl at Sixth and Wylie avenues when Burcharis is alleged to have cut Gianoutsos with a razor.

The injured man was taken to the Mercy Hospital, where three stitches were required to close a wound in the cheek.

According to testimony at the hearing, Gianoutsos is a painting contractor, at work on a county contract to paint the new Liberty bridge. Burcharis was employed on the bridge work, and a dispute arose as to wages, which he claims was not paid.

the philanthropies which the elder Armour had conceived. Armour Institute became a technical school of national reputation.

As the wealth and prestige of the Ogden firm increased, Armour's business activities became more varied. He was a director in a score or more of banks, railroads and other financial institutions. Among them were the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul Railroad, the Continental and Commercial Bank of Chicago and the Northwestern and National Insurance Company of Milwaukee. He also inaugurated and developed Armour & Co., Ltd., of London.

Although on January 2, 1923, Armour resigned as president of all the Armour interests, he became chairman of the board and continued in close touch with the packing and grain holdings. His resignation as active head was said to have been a part of plans for the merger of Armour & Co. with Morris & Co. The Armour Grain Company, which became one of the largest in the world, with business in cash wheat sometimes as high as 5,000,000 bushels a day, was organized by Armour in 1898. On August 1, 1924, it was merged with the Rosenbaum Grain Corporation to form the Grain Marketing Company, which came into existence as a price-stabilizing organization. It was to have been farmer-owned and operated on the co-operative principle, but the farmers failed to purchase stock. In July of the next year the new company failed. Charges of fraud were made and court action threatened, but the Armour interests and the Rosenbaum brothers agreed to arbitrate.

The Armiur Grain Company was fully directed to pay approximately $3,000,000, the loss falling largely upon Armour and his two nephews. The arbitrator announced, however, that he found nothing to indicate the Armours' personal complicity in frauds perpetrated by company employes.

Armour devoted his final years to an increasing number of philanthropies and hobbies.

Registry Held Up By Row

Factional battles in the Twenty-ninth and Thirtieth wards are preventing the board of registration commissioners from completing their task of naming registrars in Pittsburgh.

In both wards a complete list of Republican registrars has been sent in by the ward chairman selected by the committee appointed by City Chairman James J. Coyne when the territory, formerly Carrick and Knoxville, was annexed to the city. At the same time, complete lists have been recommended by the rival organizations disputing Coyne's right to appoint committee members.

The fight between the city administration group and the Leslie faction in the Second Ward also is holding up some appointments there, while some places in the First Ward, where Ward Chairman Thomas A. Flanagan is trying to defeat Alderman A. M. Maloney, still are in doubt. The others have been filled.

BOMB HOME OF SACCO JUROR

EAST MILTON, Mass., Aug. 16.—The home of Lewis McHardy, a juror in the Sacco-Vanzetti trial seven years ago, was wrecked by an explosion at 3:30 this morning. McHardy, his wife and three children were thrown from their beds by the blast and suffered severe cuts and bruises.

The police expressed the opinion that a bomb caused the explosion. The residence was badly damaged and effects of the explosion were visible for several blocks from the scene. Windows in houses in the vicinity were smashed, and near the McHardy house leaves were stripped from the trees.

A report reached the police to the effect that a small sedan-type automobile was seen leaving the vicinity shortly before the explosion occurred.

McHardy and his wife worked their way out of the ruins together. Their sons, Theodore and Jack, carried their sister, Helen, from her room. All were taken to the home of neighbors.

With the death yesterday of Judge Elbert H. Gary, chairman of the board of directors of the United States Steel Corporation, only one of the great triumvirate of steel, Charles M. Schwab, president of the Bethlehem Steel Corporation, remains to carry on.

JUDGE ELBERT H. GARY

The gigantic strides and rapid development of the iron and steel industry in this country is told in the life histories of Mr. Schwab, Judge Gary and Andrew Carnegie, founder of the Carnegie Iron and steel interests, now incorporated in the United States Steel Corporation. Many of Pittsburgh's largest steel mills were planned by Mr. Carnegie and expanded under the direction of Mr. Carnegie and Mr. Gary.

The three men of steel are pictured on a background which they created and on which the life of this city is founded. Pittsburgh will forever remain supreme in the manufacture of iron and steel, Mr. Gary was often quoted as saying.

COOLIDGE MAY GET JOB

NEW YORK, Aug. 16.—Chairmanship of the board of directors of the United States Steel Corporation, made vacant by the death of Judge Elbert H. Gary, may be offered to President Coolidge if the President remains firm in his determination not to be a candidate for renomination and re-election, according to a report in Wall street today.

But in the financial district the Coolidge report was met with considerable skepticism. The best guess of the financial community was that former Gov. Nathan L. Miller, general counsel of the steel corporation, would be named as Mr. Gary's successor.

James A. Farrell, president of the corporation, is also mentioned as a possible successor, along with Myron C. Taylor, Senator David A. Reed, Pierre S. Du Pont, Dwight Morrow, Eugene G. Grace and George Gordon Crawford. It is unlikely that any final choice will be made until J. P. Morgan returns from Europe.

A special meeting of the finance committee of the United States Steel Corporation scheduled for this afternoon was postponed until next week, thus removing likelihood that the successor to Mr. Gary would be announced at once.

BURIAL IN HOME TOWN

WHEATON, Ill., Aug. 16—The body of Judge Elbert H. Gary will be brought back to his own people for burial.

Just a scant year ago Judge Gary visited Wheaton—where he was raised and where he first became known as a good lawyer—and he chatted with the Rev. E. C. Lumsden.

"This is the place to which I wish some day to be brought, the country where I was born and raised and here I want my bones to be laid when I am gone," Gary said.

Members of his family recalled this statement and decided his body should be buried in a mausoleum on the side of the road leading out of Wheaton. The funeral will be Thursday.

Judge Gary's body will be brought from New York on the Twentieth Century Limited, and will be taken from Chicago to Wheaton on a special funeral train.

Plea Wins Parole for Woman

The stormy career of Julia Balaschik, 50, 409 Fifth street, Rankin, was eased somewhat this morning when Federal Judge F. P. Schoonmaker paroled her for two years after she had pleaded guilty to a charge of possessing a 25-gallon still and other material used in making contraband liquor. The still was seized in her home August 1.

Last February Mrs. Balaschik and her husband appeared before the Federal Grand Jury and testified that two prohibition agents had collected $150 from the couple to prevent their arrest on a moonshine charge.

Early in May, Mrs. Balaschik was shot four times by her husband who later killed himself. She had been out of the hospital only a short time when a still was seized in her home. Today she was paroled in the custody of Rollo H. McBride.

MAY SUCCEED GARY.

President Coolidge, if he remains firm in his determination to stay out of the Presidential race, may be offered the chairmanship of the United States Steel Corporation as Judge Elbert H. Gary's successor, according to a report in Wall Street today.

FLOOD HITS KANSAS TOWNS

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Aug. 16.—Muddy water charged a dozen Kansas towns and cities today, threatening to sweep through with resultant destruction running into millions of dollars.

Rain continued falling today, bringing further anxiety to residents of towns along dozens of small streams. Farmers had quit the lowlands, hurriedly taking what property could be gathered.

Crops in which the farmers had placed high hopes were left in fields which had been turned into lakes. Corn was a total loss in many districts, with the farmers' hopes on this crop blasted.

Livestock suffered the greatest loss hundreds of head of hogs, sheep, horses and cattle and hundreds of chickens being lost in the swirling angry waters of once peaceful little streams.

Gary Known Here As "Young Man" of 80

Judge Gary, among his Pittsburgh friends and business associates, was regarded as an apostle of the wholesome philosophy of eternal youth.

"He never spoke of his age except with youthful optimism," said Col. James M. Schoonmaker, contemporary octogenarian of the Steel Corporation head and a member with Judge Gary of its board of directors. "The candles on his birthday cake were set to form a symbol of some good deed and not in numerals to record the passing years.

"In the measure of time the world might call him an old man, but those of us who knew him intimately, who felt the magic spell of his great intellect and were inspired by the power of his deep friendship, we still regarded him as a man in his prime."

The early life-time associates of Judge Gary, except Col. Schoonmaker, have passed away. Judge James H. Reed, who died a few weeks ago, was among the last of the local men who sat in the conferences which resulted in the great steel merger in 1901. Another of these men, it was recalled, was Senator Philander C. Knox.

80TH BIRTHDAY.

"Men a generation later than his own were receiving the final summons while Judge Gary, still in the harness of his office, carried on resolutely and ignored advancing years," was another Pittsburgher's comment on the steel executive's disregard of age. Practically all of his associates in his organization were men far younger in years but none more youthful in spirit.

On October 8, last year, Judge Gary observed his eightieth birthday. By a preconcerted arrangement all his Pittsburgh friends sent him cards of congratulation. These reached him with bushels of similar messages from all parts of the world.

"It is refreshing to receive all these good wishes and feel as youthful as most of the senders," he told his associates at the semi-annual meeting of the American Iron and Steel Institute a few days later.

AN EXECUTIVE.

Taylor Allderdice, of the National Tube Company; E. W. Pargny, of the American Sheet and Tin Plate Company; Frank J. Lanahan, of the Fort Pitt Malleable Iron Company; Homer D. Williams, of the Pittsburgh Steel Company, and former president of the Carnegie Steel Company, and William B. Schiller, formerly president of the National Tube Company, are among those actively in the steel business in Pittsburgh who were intimately associated with Judge Gary in his later years.

"Judge Gary was an all-around executive," said one of his old friends," and the greatest director of public relations the world has ever known. When the steel corporation was first organized and Roosevelt was in the White House we heard considerable about 'malefactors of great wealth.' Big business was not popular and big business men were held up as enemies of the people. It was during this period of his career that Judge Gary showed his greatest ability. His speeches and public statements, products of a great mind and a truly charitable soul, changed the ethics of business and its attitude toward the people; and likewise changed public opinion toward business. He made smoother sailing not only for the steel corporation but for every other great industrial enterprise."

Judge Gary seldom came to Pittsburgh and his former Chicago connections caused the suspicion that under his direction the western group would dominate the steel business.

CHEMICALS DAMAGED BY FIRE

Expensive chemicals were destroyed by fire in the Selden Chemical Company plant, Wabash avenue and McCartney street, this morning. The blaze started when a tray of material was overheated. Damage was estimated at $2,500.

G. Angelini and his brother, D. Angelini, were the only workers present in Building B, where the blaze broke out. They fled and called firemen.

Firemen had difficulty in locating the flames because of dense smoke. It required more than an hour to extinguish the fire.

CHICAGO BABY PRISONERS INCREASE, THIRD JAILED

CHICAGO, Aug. 16.—(AP.)—The infant ward in the county jail now has three inmates with the arrival of seven-months-old Mary Wambaugh. This newest baby "prisoner" accompanied her mother, Violet Wambaugh, 22, held pending a hearing on a charge of being an undesirable alien. Last week two other babies accompanied their mothers to jail.

'Miss Pittsburgh' Title Mary's Life Thrill

Told to write something about myself, I find it isn't as easy as it would seem. Of course, I know all about myself, but to write it down for others to read is something entirely different from what my daily routine has ever prepared me.

Carnegie was my birth place. I was born there on November 28, 1908, and have lived there all my life. When aged 6 years, I started to school at the First Ward Building, now known as the Harding School. After completing public school, I entered business college and studied stenographic work. My favorite studies attending public school were arithmetic, writing and drawing, though I really did enjoy all classes.

When I first went to work, it was in one of the railroad offices, but I soon resigned this to accept a position with a downtown store. But this was rather far from my home and I obtained employment in the office of a West End contractor.

They told me not to forget to mention my hobbies. I never have thought of them as such, but I enjoy reading and singing more than anything else. Of course, I do not frown upon love stories, but I do gain the most pleasure from the more serious themes. In fact, I have real pleasure when reading books that help to elevate the mind.

As to singing, I have never had a lesson in voice culture, so you can just guess that my voice is only ordinary. But I do find it so good in making me happy. I seem to find an inner expression that means so much to me. Then for recreation, the theater and sports are my first choice, though just like every girl, I guess, there is no overlooking a chance to dance.

The motion pictures seem to fascinate me far more than the regular theater and so they naturally get most of my patronage. Just to watch the story and action of the players is not my chief purpose. I get the most pleasure studying the characters, carefully watching each performer's every move to note the thought expression. Then, too, I watch the staging itself. That is so fascinating.

I had always thought the biggest thrill life could give me would be to visit the studio of a large motion picture company. No, I don't think that any more because no event could exceed the thrill and joy that the beauty pageant brought to me. And excitement? How could there be any more than is brought by the winning of the title of "Miss Pittsburgh 1927?" I hardly think there could be, for a girl who enjoys home life and who has been out of the Greater Pittsburgh district only once in her life. That's a fact, I really have been away only once and that happened just a few Sundays ago when we motored to Washington, Pa. Can you imagine the great thrill the title has brought to me?

Mary Millnack.

"Miss Pittsburgh 1927."

"MISS PITTSBURGH" WRITING YOU

ABOUT HERSELF

Because she is a stenographer in everyday life, Miss Mary Millnack, 19, Carnegie, pretty long-haired brunette, "Miss Pittsburgh, 1927," is finding no difficulty typing off her series of stories of her life which are appearing daily in the Sun-Telegraph.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

U.S. Senator From New York

NEGLECTING COLDS AND THE RESULTS

ASK a country lad about the vital organs and he is likely to name them as the "heart, liver and lights." He is right about it, so far as his answer goes. It would be better to include the stomach, brain and kidneys.

By what are here called the "lights" are meant the lungs. If these organs are taken from an animal and thrown into a pail of water they will float, they are so light. This is one reason they are given this name.

DR. COPELAND

The ribs and backbone encircle a large space, called the "pleural cavity," or lung cavity. In this are suspended the two lungs. Between them is hung the heart.

Since the left lung is smaller than the right, there is more free space on this side of the cavity. In consequence, the heart is a bit to the left of the middle of the chest.

How do the lungs communicate with the outside air? Or, to reverse the process, how does the air get into the lungs?

It is taken in through the mouth and nose and first passes through the larynx. This is the voice box. It is the passage way through the "Adam's apple." Across this are stretched the bands of tissue known as the vocal cords.

The continuation of the larynx is the trachea, or, in common language, the "wind pipe." This is a tube about an inch in diameter held open by a series of flexible rings.

About four inches downward from its beginning the trachea divides into the right and left bronchial tubes. Each of these tubes divides and redivides, until the branches become very tiny. Each of these little passageways ends in a bunch of minute spaces called the air cells.

The chest wall is lined with a delicate membrane, called the pleura. The same kind of tissue covers and enclosing the lung tissue. It goes into all the cracks and crevices of the lungs.

The two surfaces of pleura—that lining the cavity and that covering and enclosing the lungs—lie face to face, but the surfaces are so smooth and nicely lubricated that there is no rubbing or friction. That is, in health there is no friction. In disease the surfaces may become roughened and the secretion may be changed into a sort of glue.

That is what happens in pleurisy, a common and painful ailment. The pleural membrane becomes inflamed and within a few days the opposing surfaces may become stuck together. This causes pulling and tension every time the lungs are filled. In consequence, there are sharp, cutting, pulling, stitching pains.

A neglected cold may find its way down the windpipe to the bronchial tubes," producing what we call "bronchitis."

Knowing how the lungs are constructed, you can better understand how they become diseased. This knowledge, I trust, will give you an incentive to take care of your precious lungs.

ANSWERS TO HEALTH QUERIES

C. T. Q.—What causes a numbness in the left arm and shoulder, and a dull pain in the left side? This has persisted for some time.

A.—May be due to neuritis or some circulatory disturbance. Massage and heat should give relief until your doctor definitely locates the source of the trouble.

KANSAS CITY, Aug. 16.—(AP.)—Interrupting a bridal party given at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Barney Goodman on fashionable Manheim road here last night two masked men ordered the guests to put their hands on the table and escaped with jewels valued at $5,400. FISHER SPURS BOOM FOR MELLON

MELLON'S VIEW OF CANDIDACY AWAITED

By FRASER EDWARDS,

Universal Service Staff Correspondent.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 16.—When Andrew W. Mellon, Secretary of the Treasury, returns from his sojourn abroad he will find in motion a full-panoplied boom for himself as the Republican presidential nominee next year.

The Mellon-for-President movement was launched officially yesterday by Gov. John S. Fisher, of Pennsylvania, upon his return from an interview with President Coolidge at the summer White House in the Black Hills of South Dakota.

The fact that Gov. Fisher has just discussed the Republican presidential prospects with President Coolidge, who renounced any desire to succeed himself in the White House, lends added significance to the Governor's announcement from Harrisburg that Mr. Mellon "would be an ideal man to manage the great business operations of the government."

Gov. Fisher presumably made the journey to the President's vacation resort to ascertain his real attitude toward the nomination and capital politicians believe he spoke by the book when he set afoot the movement for Secretary Mellon.

The statement comes on the heels of the presidential endorsement of Secretary Mellon by Samuel S. Lewis, of York, Pennsylvania State Treasurer. It apparently insures a solid delegation from Pennsylvania with 79 votes for Mr. Mellon in the next G. O. P. convention.

The Mellon-for-President movement was regarded here as a recognition of the era of world trade expansion, which the United States has just fairly entered. It was taken as a commendation of the part Mr. Mellon has played in taking the country out of its commercial swaddling clothes and extending its business and financial transactions to all parts of the globe.

It was accepted as an indication on the part of men of vision to try an unique experiment in American politics. It anticipated the end of the age of the demagogue, the politician who could frighten the electorate with the mere mention of "Wall Street," "Big Business" and the "Trusts." It took for granted that a man of the Mellon type might well be at the helm if the national prosperity and international business of the nation is to continue to expand.

It was evidence to the politicians that the country is emerging from the period when a man's wealth and personal importance in the financial field shall be a bar to his election to the presidency.

Just how far the Mellon-for-President movement gets depends largely upon the Pittsburgh financial genius himself. Mr. Mellon now is in Europe. So is Senator David A. Reed, of Pennsylvania, who frequently speaks for the Secretary of the Treasury in the Senate. But since Gov. Fisher is close to the Mellon interests, it is believed that he would not speak without the sanction of Mr. Mellon.

JURY IN FIVE MINUTES UNDED CALIFORNIA LAW

SACRAMENTO, Cal., Aug. 16.—It took five minutes to get a jury in the case of the state against John Valdez, accused of assault with intent to commit murder, under California's new law meant to speed up the selection of a jury in criminal cases. Court attaches pointed out that under the old system of lengthy questioning it would have taken two days to get the same jury.

NEW AUTO CODE TO STOP MANY CRASHES

"After January 1, many accidents caused by the present practice of motorists venturing into main-traveled highways without due caution will be eliminated," states C. H. Roth, secretary of the Pittsburgh Motor Club. The reason he assigns for this statement is that the new state motor code provides that boulevard stops be made at crossings on main-traveled or through highways in Pennsylvania. Stop signs will be erected at these crossings and motorists will be required to come to a full stop before entering the highway thus protected.

"A great share of automobile collisions on the highways are due to an unguarded entry to a main highway from a side road," states Mr. Roth, and he urges that motorists in general could with profit practice the "boulevard stop" in advance of the time when they will be required to do so by law.

However, boroughs and townships are not authorized by the new motor vehicle act to designate these stops, according to the statement made public today by the legal department of the Pittsburgh Motor Club. Many townships and boroughs are planning to act, mistakenly believing that the law affects them, and this statement is made to save them from confusion and embarrassment.

"The law," says Prof. F. W. McIntyre, chairman of the club's traffic problems committee, "definitely omits from its authorization in the designation of boulevard stops, boroughs and townships of all classes. It permits such designation only by the Secretary of the Highways, with reference to state highways, and local authorities in cities of the first, second and third classes, with reference to highways under their jurisdiction."

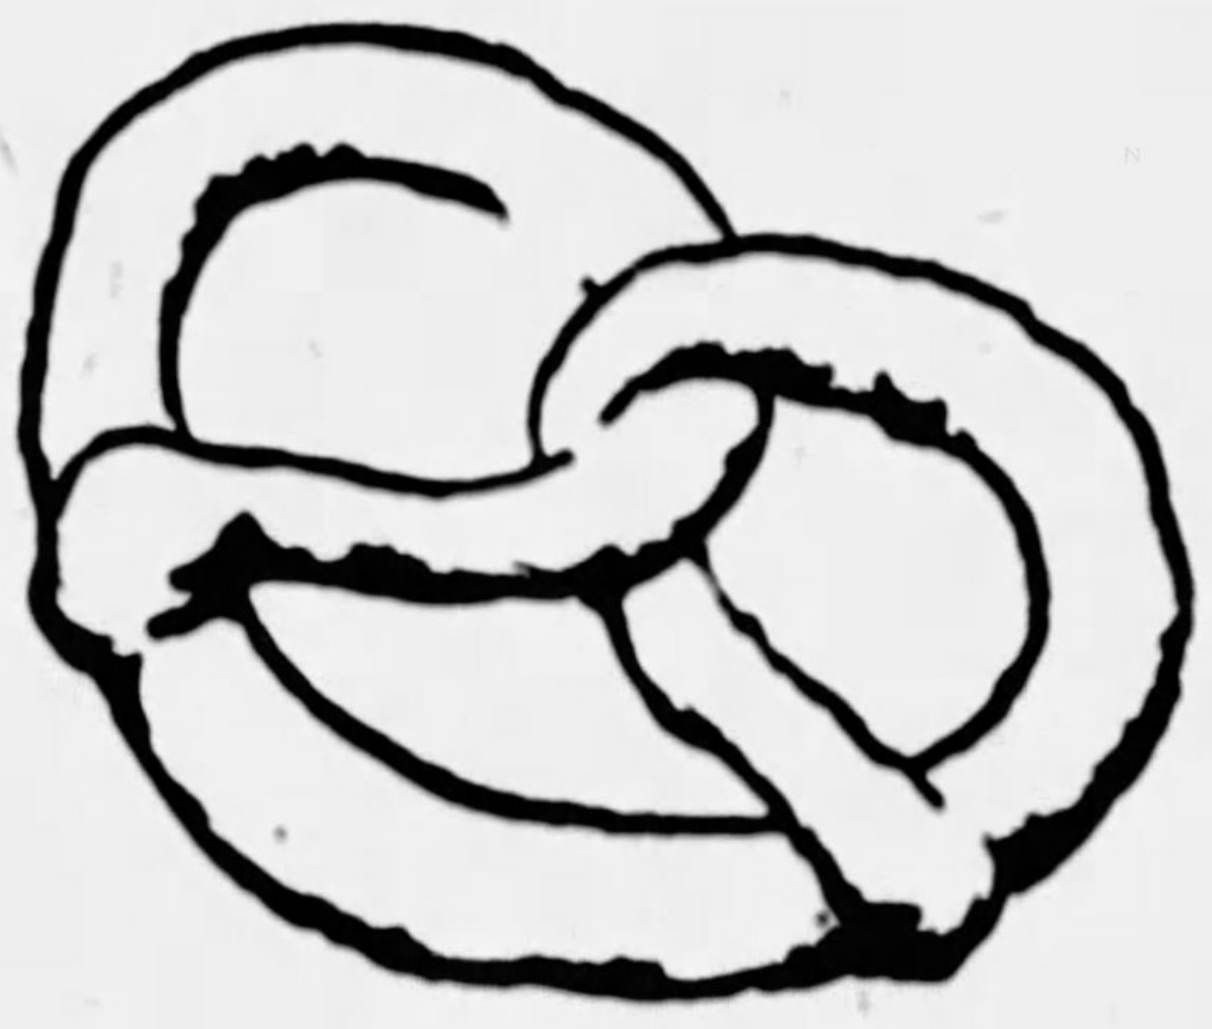
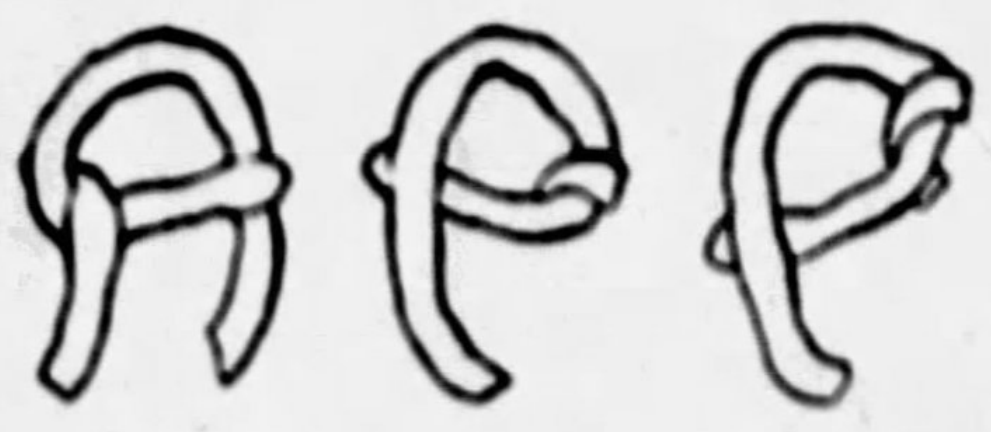
Bite yourself an Alphabet



What did she spell?

They were sitting. The sun was setting. He said, "You are the only one I ever loved." She was a pretzeleer. She grabbed a handful of O-So-Guds from the lunch basket. She bit rapidly and laid each completed letter on the green grass. The first three letters were:



Can you supply the other seven letters of this compound word and tell what her answer was?

You, too, can pretzeleer, but you'd better eat about seven before you start making letters. The O-So-Guds are so good it's hard to stop eating to spell—unless you eat first.

Uneeda Bakers bake pretzels brown, bake them brittle, bake them crisp, bake them crunchy. That's what makes O-So-Guds so good to eat and so easy to digest.

And they're salty.

Pretzeleers eat pretzels with hors d'oeuvres, with soup, with salad, with dessert, with cheese, with iced drinks, with tea, on picnics, between meals and all the other times there are to eat.

Good for children.

FINAL PETITIONS BRING NO 2ND G.O.P. SLATE

The final day for filing nominating petitions brought forth no indication of an independent movement against the Republican organization slate.

At 2 o'clock no one had filed against five organization candidates—District Attorney Samuel H. Gardner, Prothonotary John Vogt and Register of Wills Joseph N. Mackrell, seeking re-election, and S. J. Topley for Clerk of Courts, and John Francies for Treasurer. Samuel D. Foster, candidate for Recorder of Deeds, had one opponent, William Murphy of Beechview. Controller C. C. McGovern announced he would file against Robert G. Woodside, organization candidate for that post, late this afternoon.

County Commissioners E. V. Babcock and Joseph G. Armstrong have several opponents, the best-known being former Sheriff Judd Bruff and former Controller Josiah Speer. Other entries in this contest are J. F. Pearce and E. H. Ginniff. H. H. Jamieson, Jr., of the South Side, who filed a defective petition yesterday, today withdrew in favor of Armstrong.

Councilmen Garland, Anderson, Winters and Alderdice, slated for re-election by the organization, are opposed by former Police Commissioner John Ford and Mrs. Anna M. Winner. The former is in the fight at the instance of the police and fire committee which has been waging an unsuccessful effort to secure a wage increase. His special target is said to be Garland.

Aldermen are to be nominated in 14 wards, the first, fourth, sixth, seventh, eighth, ninth, tenth, eleventh, fourteenth, sixteenth, twenty-second, twenty-fifth, twenty-ninth and thirtieth. There are hot fights in all but five wards, with three or more aspirants in each. Commissioner James Houlahen and P. F. Brenham slated by the Democratic organization, have opposition in John P. Bracken and former Registration Commissioner W. K. Hodgkinson.

Among the petitions filed were these candidacies for alderman: A. M. Maloney, Republican incumbent, First ward; P. J. Sullivan, Republican incumbent, Sixth Ward; R. E. Zuker, Republican and Democratic, Seventh Ward; J. P. Bird Knightly, Republican, Tenth Ward; P. F. Casey, deputy sheriff, Republican, Sylvester Bierman, clerk in the mercantile appraiser's office, Republican, and Ralph Reese, Democrat, Fourteenth Ward; William J. Hughes, Republican, Sixteenth Ward; A. W. Headley, Republican, Twenty-fifth Ward, and James Toohey, Republican incumbent, Eleventh Ward, McKeesport.

The ticket filed by the Labor party for major offices, exclusive of the judiciary and City Council, follows: Powers Hapgood and Leonard Craig, for county commissioner; Otto Yeager, for recorder; Samuel Shore, for clerk of courts; Maude Richter, for register of wills; H. J. Lehr, for prothonotary; Edward Horacek, for county treasurer; D. E. Early, for district attorney; John S. Otis, for county controller, and Robert Linderman, for city controller.

BREAK WINDOW; ARRESTED

Francis O'Brien, 1625 Dagmar street, and Elmer Mullen, 1533 Beechview avenue, were arrested by city detectives when they broke a window in a Smithfield street department store last night. At the hearing this morning they admitted having been drinking, celebrating an Italian feastday, and during a bit of horseplay had crashed through the window. Representatives of the store were willing not to press charges if the men would agree to pay the costs of the window, amounting to $150. They agreed to this.

MORE EVICTIONS ASKED HERE

The Pittsburgh Coal Company, through its attorney, C. W. Parker, yesterday filed ejectment proceedings in Common Pleas Court against 28 former employes who are said to be occupying houses owned by the company at Lick Run, near Broughton. This is the first time that this company has engaged in ejectment action.

The Pittsburgh Coal Company has been operating open shop in the district and, officials said, needs the houses for its workers.

MOVIE TICKETS STOLEN

Thieves stole 145 tickets with a face value of $25.45 from the ticket booth of the Arcade movie theater, 1915 Carson street, Monday. They forced open the booth window, William Finke, manager, reported to South Side police. Patrolmen are looking for youths seeking to sell tickets at bargain rates.

PROPELLER KILLS NOTED GIRL FLIER

Aviatrix Walks Into Blade at Ohio Field

YOUNGSTOWN, O., Aug. 16.—Gladys Roy, 25, attractive aviatrix, who had planned a New York-to-Rome airplane flight as a climax to years of stunt flying, died in a hospital here last night from injuries received when she was struck by a whirling propeller at Watson Field here.

Miss Roy, well known in aviation circles since 1920, was being groomed for a New York-to-Rome flight. Her co-pilot in the flight was to have been Lieut. Delmar Snyder. She recently paid a visit to Lieut. Snyder's mother in Cleveland.

Miss Roy had climbed into the plane to have her picture taken with an Ohio bathing beauty. The picture was nearly finished being taken when the woman flier started the engine, stepped down from the fuselage and unconsciously walked into the propeller.

She was the holder of several parachute record jumps from airplanes. She arrived in Youngstown yesterday on a business trip.

AIMEE ADMIRER THROWN OUT

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 16.—Something happened to Fred Brendt, landscape gardener at Angelus Temple, and police and the district attorney's office are trying to find out what it is all about.

Brendt, who is 50, said he was ejected by a temple guard, lured into an alley, beaten and robbed of $45.

Police Capt. Curtis said he was in possession of information that Brendt was thrown out because he had written love notes to Aimee Semple McPherson, the evangelist. Brendt, according to Capt. Curtis, had been trying to meet the evangelist and orders had been given to keep him off the temple grounds.

Brendt and C. F. Clearwater, temple guard, who is said to have had an altercation with the gardener, were questioned by police, who referred the case to the district attorney's office.

7 THINGS to determine about the EXECUTOR of YOUR WILL

IN a recent article in Liberty Magazine, Hugh Fullerton declared that you should ask these questions about anyone you are considering as executor or trustee of your estate.

1 Will he outlive you?
2 Will he outlive the terms of your will?
3 Is he honest? Competent? Experienced?
4 Will he have to learn the duties of office?
5 Will he be forced to sacrifice his own interests to serve?
6 Will he have to employ experts in taxes, investments, and other matters?
7 Will he be continually available?

Do you know of any individual who possesses all those qualities? The Colonial Trust Company has all of them—

1 and 2 The Colonial Trust Company has perpetual corporate existence.

3 The Officers and Directors of The Colonial Trust Company are all of proved responsibility, training and integrity.

4 The Colonial has had over a quarter of a century of experience in all fiduciary matters.

5 The business of The Colonial Trust Company in its Trust Department is confined exclusively to fiduciary services.

6 The Colonial, handling hundreds of estates, is fully equipped with experts in taxes, investments and similar matters.

7 The Colonial is always available. Never absent. Never indisposed.

The officers in the Trust Department of The Colonial will be glad to discuss the handling of your estate.

Well, here's the end of one kind of "chatter," anyhow

A LOT of "chatter" comes from back-seat drivers. (There is no cure.) But the "chatter" that frequently develops in the bands of planetary transmissions can be stopped. Put Atlantic N. C. in your crankcase. . . . Silence is instant. Use it regularly. Not a chance for "chatter" to shiver your fenders or shatter your nerves while Atlantic N. C. is your driving pal.

Atlantic N. C. makes a thorough job of keeping Model T Ford bands quiet, smooth, even-gripping. Nothing temporary about it. Non-chatter qualities won't evaporate or give off objectionable odors — which is something to look out for when buying "non-chatter" oils.

Get a filling of Atlantic N. C.—summer grade—and note the difference! What's more, it'll be a long time before you'll have to dig into the well-known wallet for a new set of bands. Free crankcase service most everywhere.

Less Work, More Play Proposed Remedy For Farm Ills

WILLIAMSTOWN, Mass., Aug. 16. (AP)—Fishing and baseball were recommended as cures for the ills of farmers by Harry C. Butcher, managing editor of the Fertilizing Review, at the Institute of Politics today.

"If all farmers worked less," Mr. Butcher said, "thought more of lowering their costs and of seeking better markets, took a day off each week to fish, and spent Saturday afternoons playing baseball, there would be less over-production and more contentment on our farms.

"As a class farmers work harder and longer than any other group. Many work too hard for their own good."

Worthy of Special Attention!

The eyes of the country are often turned toward Pittsburgh. Now the appetites are turned this way. Pittsburgh has created a new food—a wonderful food—that will hurry the world to breakfast.

The House of Heinz, and the Heinz research specialists in Mellon Institute have developed a process that gives rice a new meaning—and a place of greater importance on every table.

In Heinz Rice Flakes, with their delicate crispness and fascinating popcorn flavor, you would not recognize the rice of old.

Here is something delightfully different. And, furthermore, remarkably healthful because of the process owned exclusively by Heinz which so utilizes the natural roughage of the rice that it imparts a moisture-absorbing quality which is one of Nature's best eliminative aids.

Heinz Rice Flakes are always crisp in cream or milk. Eat them both for flavor and health.

CITY OPENS WAR ON GLARING HEADLIGHTS

The first drive on motorists for disregarding a police edict against glaring headlights came last night, when 29 motorists were arrested in the Boulevard of the Allies. Recently police started an educational campaign, in which they asked all automobilists whose machines were equipped with bright lights to tone them down. Those arrested had failed to heed the warning. They were charged with violating the automobile laws. The motorists will be arraigned in Traffic Court Friday.

Traffic Inspector B. R. Marshall today ordered all motorcycle police to continue the campaign.

BANK SUED ON STOCK

The Third National Bank of Pittsburgh, its president and its cashier and another individual are named the defendants in a trespass action filed yesterday in Common Pleas Court by Robert Emery to recover $10,000 damages. The defendants are William McK. Reed, president of the bank; William W. Hamilton, cashier; Richard Brumage, a director of the Highland Coffee Company, and the bank.

Emery alleges that through a financial statement, issued by the bank and signed by the defendants, regarding the financial condition of the Highland Coffee Company, 414 First avenue, he was induced to purchase 100 shares of capital stock in the company at a cost of $10,000. He further charges that the statement over-estimated the assets of the concern.

BRUFF OUT FOR COMMISSIONER

Declaring himself in favor of Secretary of the Treasury Andrew W. Mellon for President and in opposition to perpetual office holders, former Sheriff Judd H. Bruff announced as an independent candidate for the Republican nomination for county commissioner. Mr. Bruff, who fought in the Philippines with the "Fighting Tenth," cited his record as sheriff, calling attention to his action in deputizing strikers to preserve peace during labor disputes. "I am indebted to no organization," he said, "and recognize no organization in the primaries, but I am a loyal Republican and will support the party ticket nominated by the people at the primaries."

AUTO PASSENGER SUES DRIVER

J. H. Finkelstein, 46 North Second street, Duquesne, who invited J. L. Weinstein of Duquesne for an automobile ride last February, was named the defendant in suit filed in Common Pleas Court by Weinstein, who seeks $25,000 damages for injuries suffered when the machine overturned near Library. Weinstein alleges that Finkelstein drove recklessly.

Light Beacon Tonight Visible 200 Miles

NEW YORK, Aug. 16.—(AP.)—An electric impulse from a single-candlepower flashlight in the aldermanic chamber of New York's city hall tonight will turn on the largest searchlight in the world, to play a beam of 1,380,000,000 candlepower on the home of Thomas Jefferson, near Charlottesville, Va.

The arrangement, made possible by an invention of the Westinghouse research laboratories, will carry a wave back to this city from the first flow of the searchlight. It will turn a floodlight here on a picture of Monticello.

The searchlight of Charlottesville will cast its great beam on Monticello, which stands on a mountain top, three miles from Charlottesville. In the light of the beacon, it is said, a person 50 miles away may read a newspaper. In fair weather the beam may be seen from 200 miles at a tangent, and in the path of the beam from a distance of 1,000 miles.

Tonight's program is designed as a dedication ceremony for the Thomas Jefferson searchlight.

NEW SKYLINE EDGE FOR CITY

SETBACK STYLE WITH 425 FEET AS LIMIT

How high is 425 feet? That is the height limit set for downtown buildings by the new city ordinance approved by Mayor Charles A. Kline, but to the average citizen it means little more than a very vague expression of units of linear measure. It requires comparison of some sort to give a satisfactory picture of the situation.

The Henry W. Oliver Building for many years has been Pittsburgh's tallest office structure. Its height is 345 feet from the street to the roof cornice. This is considerably above the limit of 265 feet which came into effect with the zoning ordinance after the construction of the Oliver Building.

Under the new ordinance, it is permitted that a building go up 265 feet on a line. Then with a 20-foot set-back on all streets, the building may be continued upward to twice the width of the widest street. Under the most favorable conditions which exist in downtown Pittsburgh, the height limit is 425 feet.

If the Oliver Building were located on the widest downtown thoroughfares, it would be possible then to prolong its height in a set-back by adding to it a building the size of the Marine National Bank at Third avenue and Smithfield street and remain within the height limit.

New York has many of the set-back style of buildings. Pittsburgh is now ready to build them. Plans for the Grant Building, the Koppers Building and the Keystone Athletic Club all make use of the set-back principle.

The question of human safety in this new type of office spire naturally comes to mind first. R. J. Trimble of the Board of Fire Underwriters in consenting on the set-back buildings says that above everything else these towers should be built so that each floor is a unit in itself. Fireproofing should be so thorough as to allow no opportunity for flames to spread. If such measures are followed, the height will have no special bearing on the safety of the building, Mr. Trimble declared. It will be possible to erect a standpipe to easily flood the top floors in a 425-foot structure.

EVEREGREEN BOULEVARD TO BE OPENED TOMORROW

Opening of the new Evergreen boulevard, connecting the Peoples plank road with the Three Degree road, tomorrow will be attended by ceremonies in which officials of the Keown Station Civic Association, Ross Township Board of rTade and the Highland Firemen's Association will take part.

NO SKY-SCRAPING

Reaching toward the clouds still has a limit in Pittsburgh, city fathers insist. The picture shows the Henry W. Oliver building with the Marine National Bank superimposed to illustrate the new maximum building height of 425 feet.

Model Aircraft Entry Blanks Due Monday

All entry blanks in The Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph and Bureau of Recreation model airplane contest should be in the hands of the aircraft editor or the Bureau of Recreation before next Monday.

With the district competition only nine days off—for the 14 district championships will be decided in as many sections August 24—all boys who are making planes and haven't entered should rush their blanks to The Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

Gold and silversmiths are working on the medals to be awarded for the district's best plane builders. They will be awarded to more than 200 contestants. In addition, the city champion, to be decided August 26 in Schenley Oval, will be given a huge silver trophy, engraved with the brief story of the feat, and this created by an airplane.

The illustrative articles will be found, along with the entry blank, in the Fiction Section of this paper. When the planes are completed, keep them, for they will not be exhibited until after the final city champion has been named.

CHAPLIN MILLION BARS DIVORCE TALE

Sally's Shoulders

ENGROSSING
DRAMATIC

By BEATRICE BURTON

In the Elevator Sally Saw John Nye; She Frankly Stared in Admiration

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

SALLY JEROME, 20 and clever and pretty, is the prop and mainstay of her family. Her father has deserted his wife, and his children. Besides Sally there are the twins, BEAU and MILLIE, aged 21, a gay and irresponsible pair. Millie, the family beauty, is always losing jobs when her employers "get gay" with her.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

"WELL, she won't stay in an office unless there's somebody there that she's got a crush on," she explained bluntly. "And I don't blame her in a way. I know just how she feels. After all, she's got to meet somebody worthwhile or how's she ever going to get married, I ask you. No girl wants to work around an office forever and ever, amen."

With that Beau's future wife jumped up from her chair. "Well, trolley car! I must scoot!" she called in shrill farewell. "You'd better go and drag Beau out of bed or he'll never get his job-of-work today, either—By-by and ta-ta!"

The door slammed behind her.

It took Sally three hours to put the flat into order that morning. It always was at its worst on Monday after the litter and confusion of Sunday. Newspapers everywhere, dust everywhere, clothes scattered about.

But Sally had her own way of working. She played the phonograph in the living room all the time she was busy, and every now and then she would stop for a second to try some kind of a new dance step—one of the fifty ones that she and Ted Sloan had worked out together.

"There's something nice about everyone,

"But there's everything nice about you—" sang Sally, dusting her mother's room when Mrs. Jerome went into the bathroom at 11 o'clock to dress herself for the day.

The tune went to her heels, and she stopped for a second to do a Black-bottom shimmy step at the foot of her mother's old black walnut bed.

Music always went straight to Sally's feet, and whenever she heard it, they would begin to tap the floor. She would dance anywhere and everywhere, and the world became her dance floor. Or at any rate that part of the world that was her world—the little world of the flat, the restaurants that she and Ted Sloan knew, and Mr. Peevey's office where she worked afternoons for $21 a week.

Mr. Peevey did a small mail-order business, and six days a week Sally appeared at his office at noon to do his typewriting for him.

He had a delicate stomach, and practically lived on little whole-wheat biscuits and raw milk. Every day Sally brought him a pint of milk, heated it on a small electric stove in the office, and served it to him along with three of the little biscuits.

He made it a rule to have the little meal at 12:15 sharp, and one of the chief worries of Sally's life was to get to the office on time every day.

This morning it was perilously close to noon when she opened the door of the flat and ran down the stairs that led to the street.

A door at the bottom of them opened, and a stocky young man with gray eyes and rumpled red hair stepped out into her path.

Ted Sloan sold a certain make of cheap automobiles for a living and he kept no regular working hours.

"I'm just on my way downtown, Babe," he said to her with a wide friendly grin that showed square white teeth. "I'll take you in the buggy."

He took her arm to help her into the little car that stood waiting at the curb, but she shook his hand off. "I can get in by myself, thanks," she said. She didn't mind his touch when she danced with him, but at all other times it irritated her and made her nervous.

Just why this was so was a deep dark mystery to young Mr. Sloan. Sally, herself, never thought about it. She was too busy keeping the family fed and mended—keeping Mr. Peevey fed and soothed—to worry much about her own personal problems.

With scarcely a word, she and Ted Sloan drove all the way downtown to the Nye-Naylor building where Mr. Peevey had his small dark office that smelled like a musty pantry.

"Thanks for the buggy-ride, Teddy," Sally said as she got out of the car and started across the sun-baked sidewalk. "See you tonight, I suppose."

And then she forgot all about him. For something happened that swept everything else from her mind."

CHAPTER II

THE elevators in the Nye-Naylor building were large and luxurious. Their floors were cork and the doors were of ornamental bronze.

Sally always felt as if she were on a flying carpet or in an airship when she got into one of them and started upward to Mr. Peevey's office on the top floor.

She was one of those rare people who never quite get used to the wonder of everyday things. She would stop in the street to stare at an airplane with the same interest that she would marvel at the first dandelion in the spring.

But today she barely noticed where she was, from the very second when she stepped into the elevator that was waiting for her. For all of her attention was instantly fixed upon the only other passenger.

"Never did I see such a good-looking human being!" she told herself with conviction. And, without knowing just how rude she was, she never took her eyes from him for an instant. She stared at him openly and frankly, with the innocence of an unspoiled child. Her behavior was shocking, of course, but she did not even realize it at the time.

The man was worth looking at, for that matter. He was tall and lean and dark. His eyes were brown and so was his hair, and he had a fine arched nose and the kind of mouth that speaks of character and will. An extraordinarily handsome young man.

Sally was so wrapped up in him that she gave a start of amazement when the elevator stopped at the top floor. The door opened, and the excellent-looking young man stood aside, waiting for her to pass out ahead of him.

But instead of passing him, Sally stopped dead and clapped one hand to her mouth. "Oh, my eye!" she said, and she said it aloud and very clearly, "I've forgotten Mr. Peevey's milk!"

She had.

And outside all the whistles were shrieking that it was noon and high time that Mr. Peevey's milk was warming on the electric stove in the office.

Sally could picture Mr. Peevey with one eye on the door and the other one on his old-fashioned silver watch, wondering why on earth that fool girl didn't arrive with the milk . . . Like most dyspeptics, Mr. Peevey had a bad temper.

"Could I be of any service?" the dark young man asked solemnly, and then without warning he began to laugh.

After all it was funny for a strange young woman to cry out in distress that she had forgotten Mr. Peevey's milk, and Sally began to laugh with him. The elevator boy joined in.

"Take me downstairs again," Sally said to him after a minute, but her eyes were on the other man.

She spoke to him. "Thanks, but I won't need you. I can go right downstairs and get what I want," she said vaguely.

The elevator door closed slowly after him as he stepped out, shutting him away from her. But her vision of him stayed in her mind's eye all the way to the delicatessen shop two blocks away where she bought Mr. Peevey's milk.

"You're late!" Mr. Peevey snapped out at her 10 minutes later when she came rushing into his office, flushed with the heat.

"I am, and I'm just as sorry as I can be!" Sally answered him breathlessly. But she didn't look the least bit sorry, and she hummed softly to herself as she took the electric stove from the top of the filing case and opened the tin biscuit-box.

"Don't do that. I don't want to eat now. Got a date with the dentist for 12:30," Mr. Peevey said crossly, pulling his big tur-

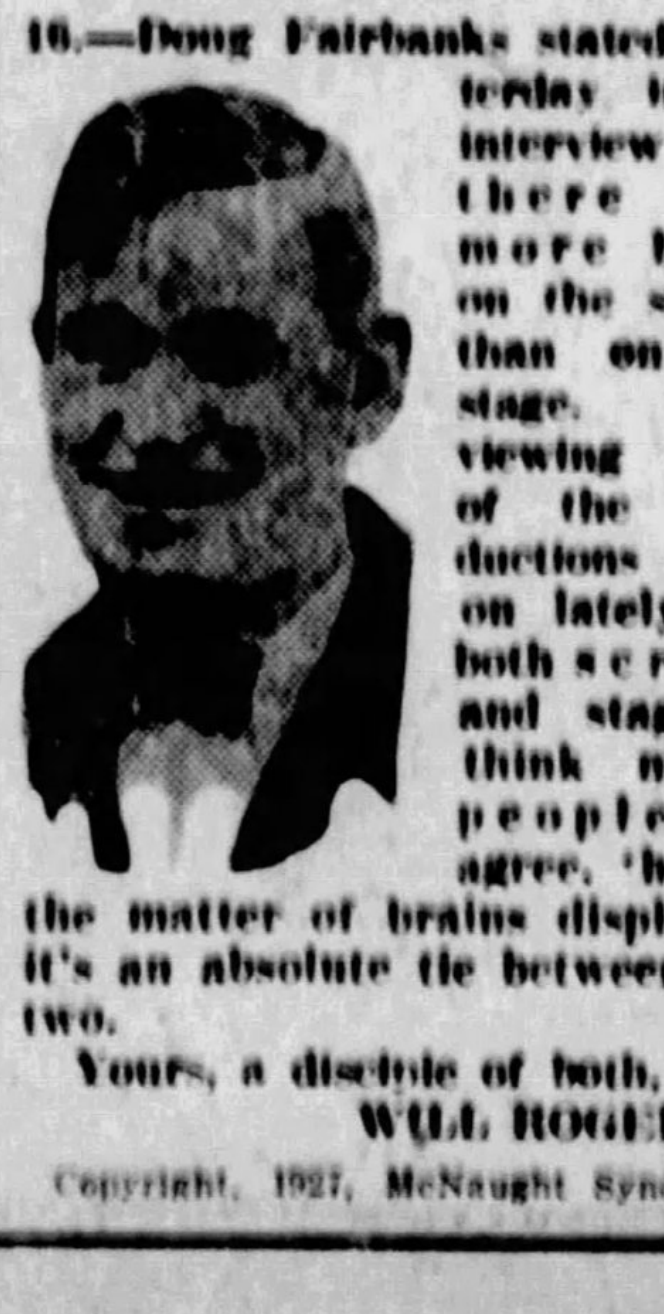
Screen, Stage In Dead Heat for Brains, Observes Will

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., Aug. 16.—Doug Fairbanks stated yesterday in an interview that there are more brains on the screen than on the stage. After viewing some of the productions put on lately, by both screen and stage, I think most people will agree, that in the matter of brains displayed, it's an absolute tie between the two.



Yours, a disciple of both,
WILL ROGERS.

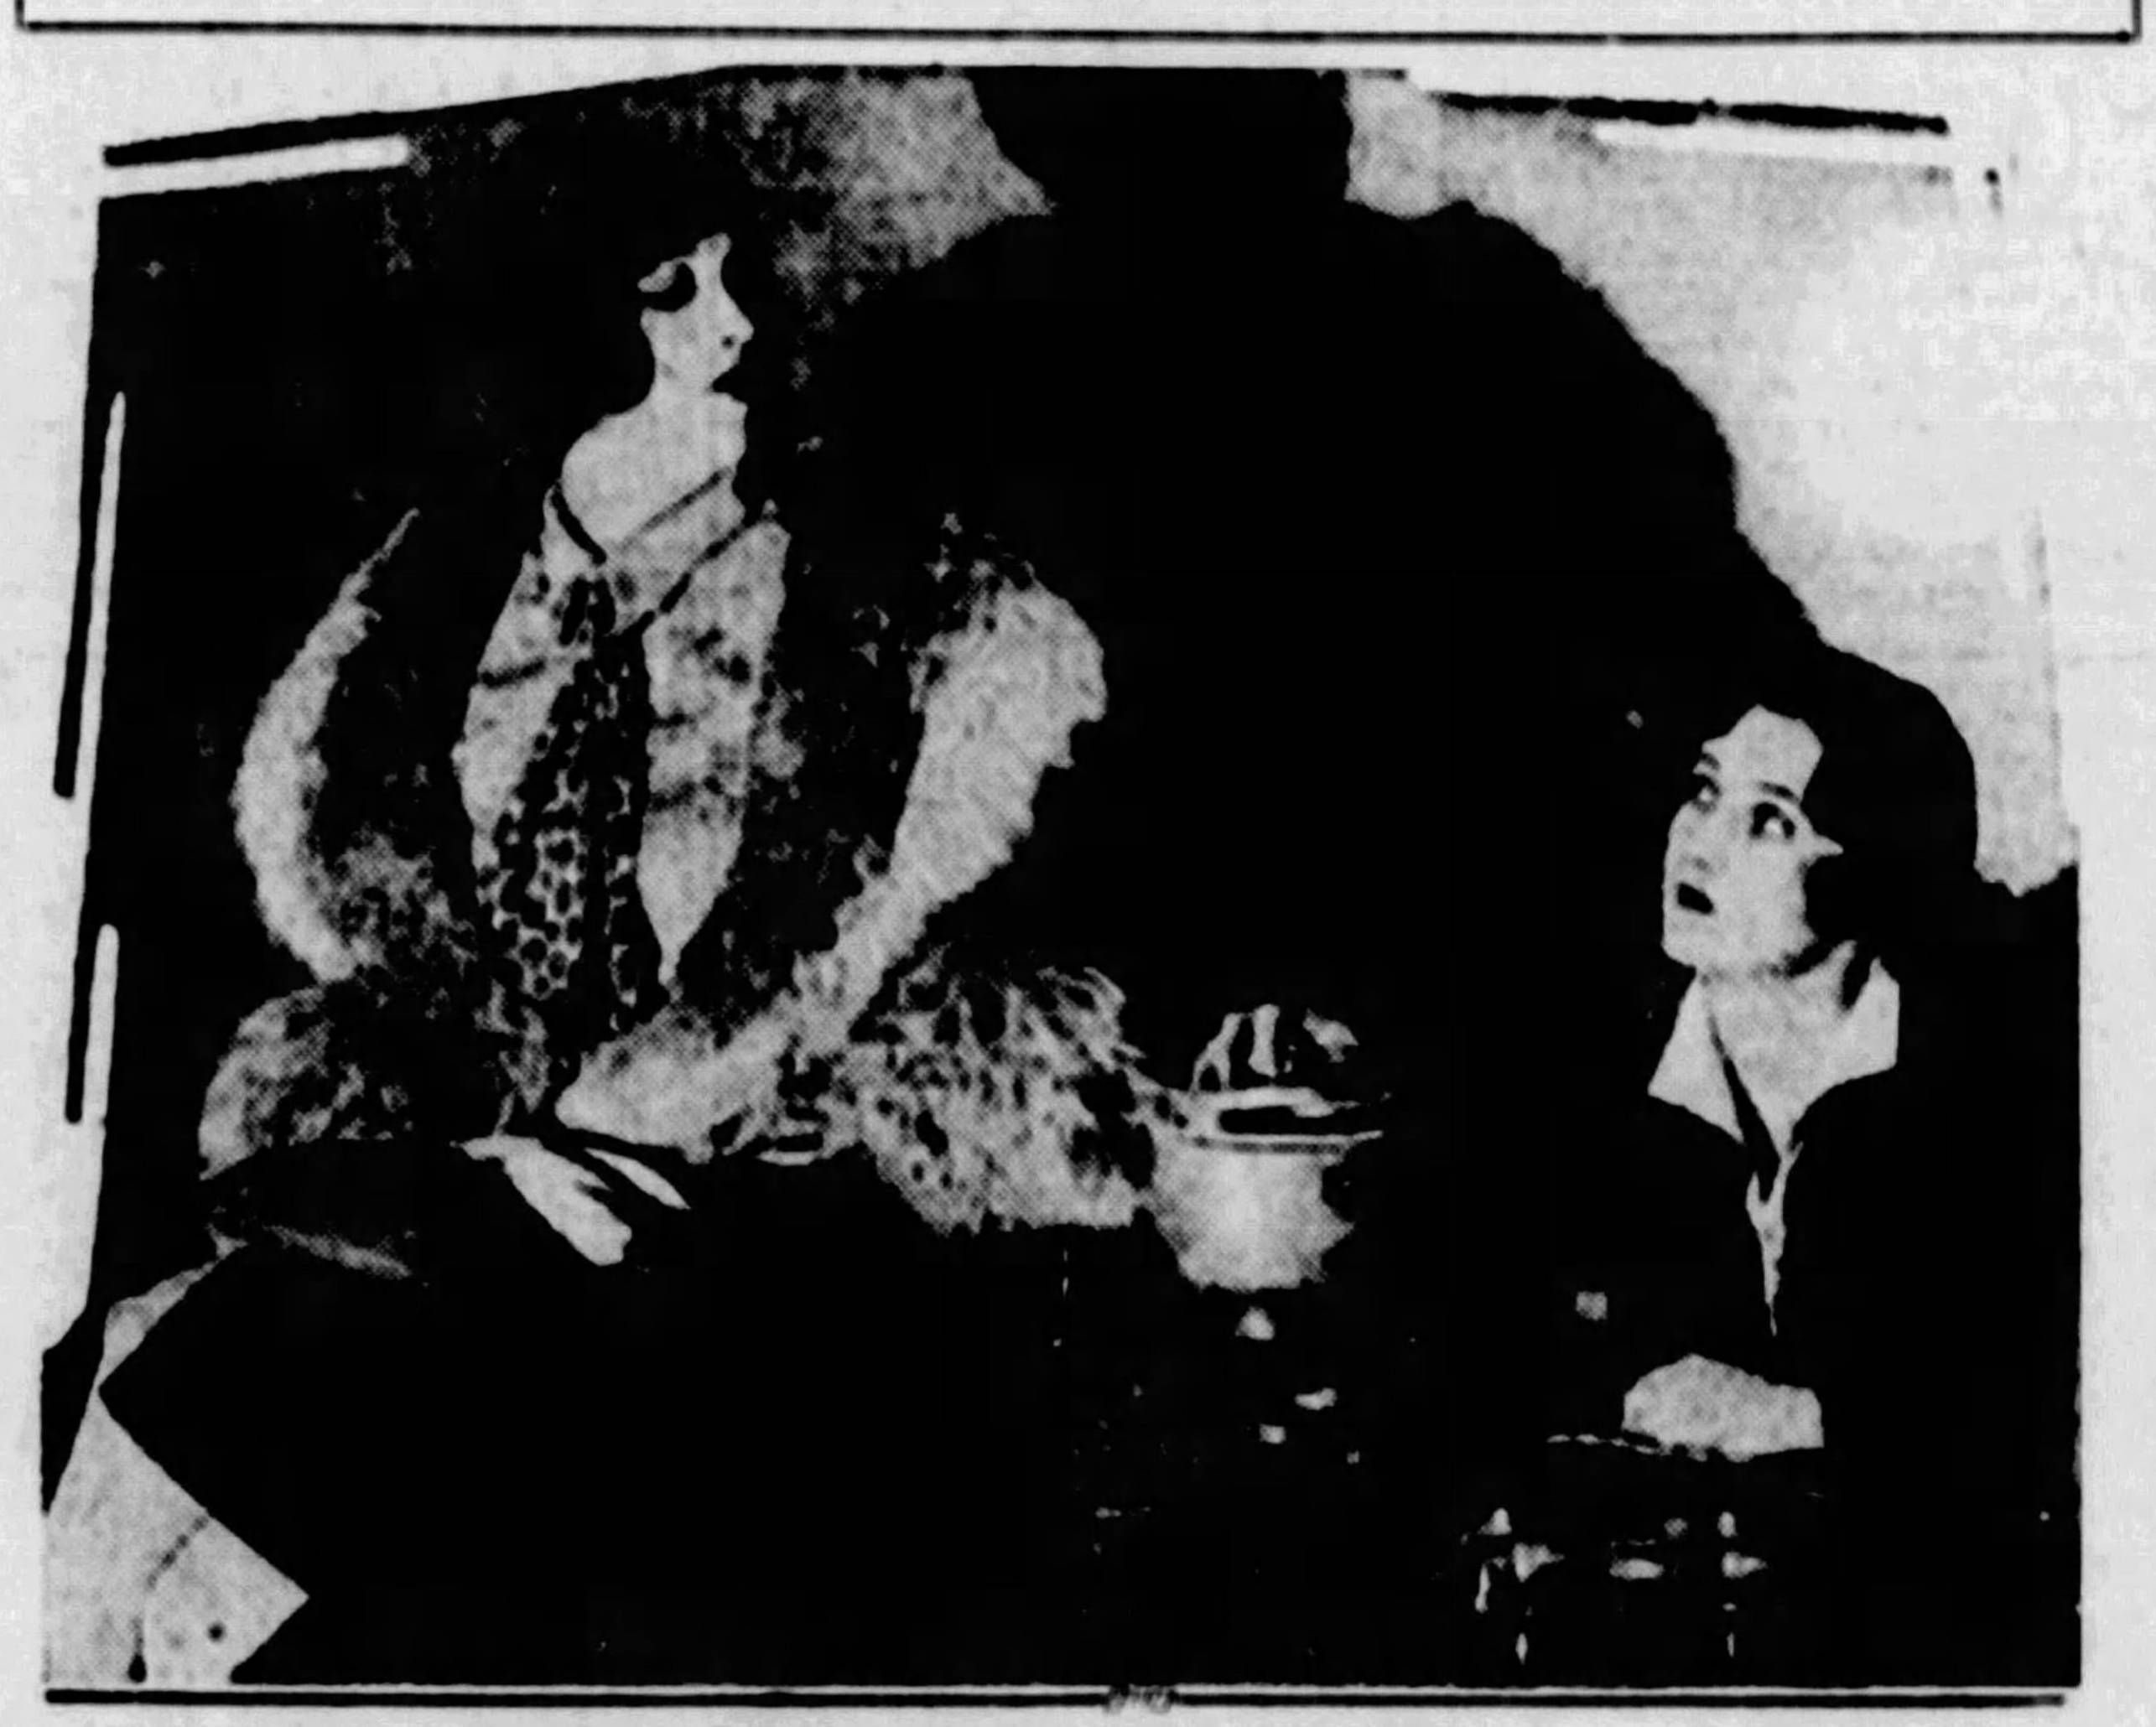
MILLIE HIGH HATS



"DO A THING LIKE THAT?"

Millie considered it beneath her dignity to serve her employer as Sally served Mr. Peevey.

She sat on the desk chatting while Sally prepared the warm milk which was part of the dyspeptic Peevey's lunch.

"I'd just be there with a hard-eyed stare if he asked ME to do a thing like that," Millie was saying.

LOAD BERTAUD'S PLANE IN SECRET

NEW YORK, Aug. 16.—Behind locked doors and under heavy guard at the hangar on Curtiss Field, the William Randolph Hearst monoplane Old Glory was loaded by the skilled hands of Uncle Sam's airmail mechanics last night.

They were busy and silent men, these trusted few who put into their places the emergency life raft, the very pistols, the flares and other articles that Lloyd Bertaud and J. D. Hill may need on their perilous trek to Rome and return.

FLIERS MAINTAIN SILENCE.

With the last test completed and the silver man-made bird ready for the longest flight in history, Bertaud and Hill were silent regarding their plans.

"We may make an announcement in a few days," Hill declared.

Mrs. Bertaud, the young and pretty wife of the flier, came with Bert's mother to gaze fondly upon the great plane again. Every day she has been here and each day her eyes seem more than ever to implore that mass of steel and cotton fabric to safely take her husband across and then bring him back again.

Bert's mother is silent when her eyes rest upon Old Glory.

"I won't be worried so much after the ship leaves the ground with its big load," she whispered to a friend.

Court Restrains Union In Ohio Mine War

COLUMBUS, O., Aug. 16.—(AP.)—Belmont county again was the center of Ohio's wage controversy between coal operators and union miners today, with operators seeking court protection and announcing further plans for reopening their mines on a nonunion basis.

Four companies, operating six mines, had temporary restraining orders against the union organization today as their first move in their announced plans of opening the mines on a nonunion basis at once. The restraining order was granted by Judge Benson W. Hough in Federal District Court at Columbus yesterday and is effective for 10 days.

The order restraining union miners from interfering with persons attempting to go to work, applies to the Provident mine No. 1, near St. Clairsville, the Fairpoint mine in Belmont county and the Dunglen mine in Harrison and Jefferson counties all operated by the Clarkson Coal Mining Company; the Monroe Coal Company's Webb mine near Bellaire; the Rose mine, near Cadiz, of the Boomer Coke and Coal Company, and the Atlantic Contracting Company's Florence mine near Martins Ferry.

Arrests have mounted to 10 as a result of the beating of C. V. Nichols, taxicab driver who took nonunion men to the Provident mine near St. Clairsville last Friday. Three of them are women.

SLOT MACHINE OWNER AND SHOP KEEPER FINED

Ralph Churchill, 35, 15 Charles street, charged with keeping a gambling device, was fined $100 by Magistrate John Orie in Penn Avenue Police Station today. A slot machine was found in the store of John Petros, 214 Thirty-fourth street, and Petros was fined $50.

Chaplin Peace Bars Airing of Charges

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 16.—The arrival of Charles Chaplin, film comedian, here today was expected to be followed by the announcement he had purchased peace in his family for the sum of $1,000,000.

The "peace" will constitute legal separation from his wife, Lita Gray Chaplin, it was said, and preclude the airing in court of expected sensational divorce proceedings scheduled for August 22.

For the $1,000,000 concession, Chaplin additionally will be permitted to visit and have custody of his children at intervals, it was unofficially reported.

Mrs. Chaplin also will forget the sensational allegations in her suit for divorce and seek separation on a cruelty charge, reports said, and Chaplin will withdraw his counter suit.

In short, if developments go as predicted, the scheduled Chaplin divorce battle will not even be a skirmish.

While en route here from San Francisco, where Chaplin arrived Sunday from New York, the comedian has been in constant conference with his attorneys.

COUNT BALLOTS FOR JUDGE

The tellers appointed to count the ballots cast by attorneys in the poll being conducted by the Allegheny County Bar Association to determine the attitude of the lawyers toward the 29 Republican and Democratic candidates for the Common Pleas Court bench met today to begin work. A total of 1,271 ballots have been received, but more were expected today, as 229 attorneys who requested ballots had not yet voted. The name of every candidate who receives 20 per cent of the total number of votes cast will be announced by the association. The result may not be announced for several days.

QUICKSANDS OF LOVE

A New Phase of "Revelations of a Wife"

By Adele Garrison

I DO not know when I ever have spent a more miserable two hours than those of Lillian's dinner in honor of my father. Yet they should have been most pleasant, for like all Lillian's entertainments, the dinner was perfect in appointment. But Mary's unaccountable behavior so puzzled and annoyed me that I was able neither to do justice to the food nor to join save perfunctorily in the lively and interesting conversation which my father, Lillian and Dicky were enjoying to the full.

That young Noel Veritzen was also distrait I noticed early in the course of the meal. He was undeniably attracted by Mary, in spite of her croaking hoarseness of voice, her bizarre facial make-up and her giggling gaucherie, so unlike the girl's usual poise of manner, and so unaccountable to me.

But that there was something else than attraction in the attention he paid her was patent. I saw that he was furtively studying her, and that for some reason he was as puzzled by her appearance and behavior as I was.

One gleam of satisfaction was mine. Lillian and I had planned the dinner in the hope that Mary would be attracted by Noel Veritzen's undeniable good looks and fascinating personality. The correlating wish that the new interest would dwarf that which we feared Jack Leslie was exercising over her was also strong in our minds.

One of our objects was certainly accomplished. I told myself, if Mary's glances and actions were any index of her thoughts. There was no reserve in the admiring, giggling attention she was giving to his every word, and I only hoped that the ease with which his conquest had been made would not in masculine fashion lower its value for him.

To all appearances, however, he was as interested as she, but never once did he lose his air of puzzled, furtive observation of her, and when the dinner was nearly over, I heard him say in a low voice:

"Do you know, you remind me so much of——"

Mary turned swiftly upon him with a playful pettishness that yet held real annoyance in it.

"Oh! for the love of Rebekah, don't tell me I remind you of somebody. I have that handed to me so often! I'm beginning to think I'm a universal type because some man is always telling me that I look just like his sweetie or his sister or his mother or his aunt. What is your particular relative, your grandmother?"

That there was distinct girlish curiosity behind her annoyance was apparent, but young Veritzen did not choose to gratify it.

"Perhaps," he said, with an enigmatic smile, "I never saw a closer resemblance, however. Your hair, your eyes, your height, your hands and arms—you're sure you haven't a double floating around New York?"

"Probably a dozen of 'em, judging by the times I have to answer the questions you just asked," she retorted saucily. "But you've left out a few items. Doesn't my latest double have my nose and my cheek bones and my mouth?"

I did not blame him for looking with intent and embarrassing scrutiny at the lovely mutinous lips speaking the bantering words.

"Your mouth, yes," he said at last. "As for the other features, I really cannot tell."

Mary shot a quick look at him.

"I'm afraid your admiration for her is not very profound," she said, "or else you are not very observant. But when you see her next, remember me kindly to her, won't you?"

Noel Veritzen looked at her inscrutably.

"Both your promises are wrong," he said, "but I'll surely remember your request."

Smile Tonight

Your teeth are not naturally "off color"—just film coated

MANY heartaches come from "off-color" teeth. Teeth that ruin pretty smiles. Now dingy teeth, as dental authorities prove, can be restored to whiteness quickly.

It's been found that dingy teeth come simply from a film that forms on teeth. A stubborn film old-type dentifrices did not successfully clear off. A film that absorbs food discolorations, etc.

Run your tongue across your teeth and you can feel that film now—a slippery coating covering your teeth. Beneath it are the white teeth you envy often in others. It keeps your smile unattractive. It invites tooth decay, gum troubles and pyorrhea.

Dentists say the way to remove it is with the new-type dentifrice called Pepsodent. All druggists have it. Works wonders on dingy teeth. 10-day test will be sent for coupon.

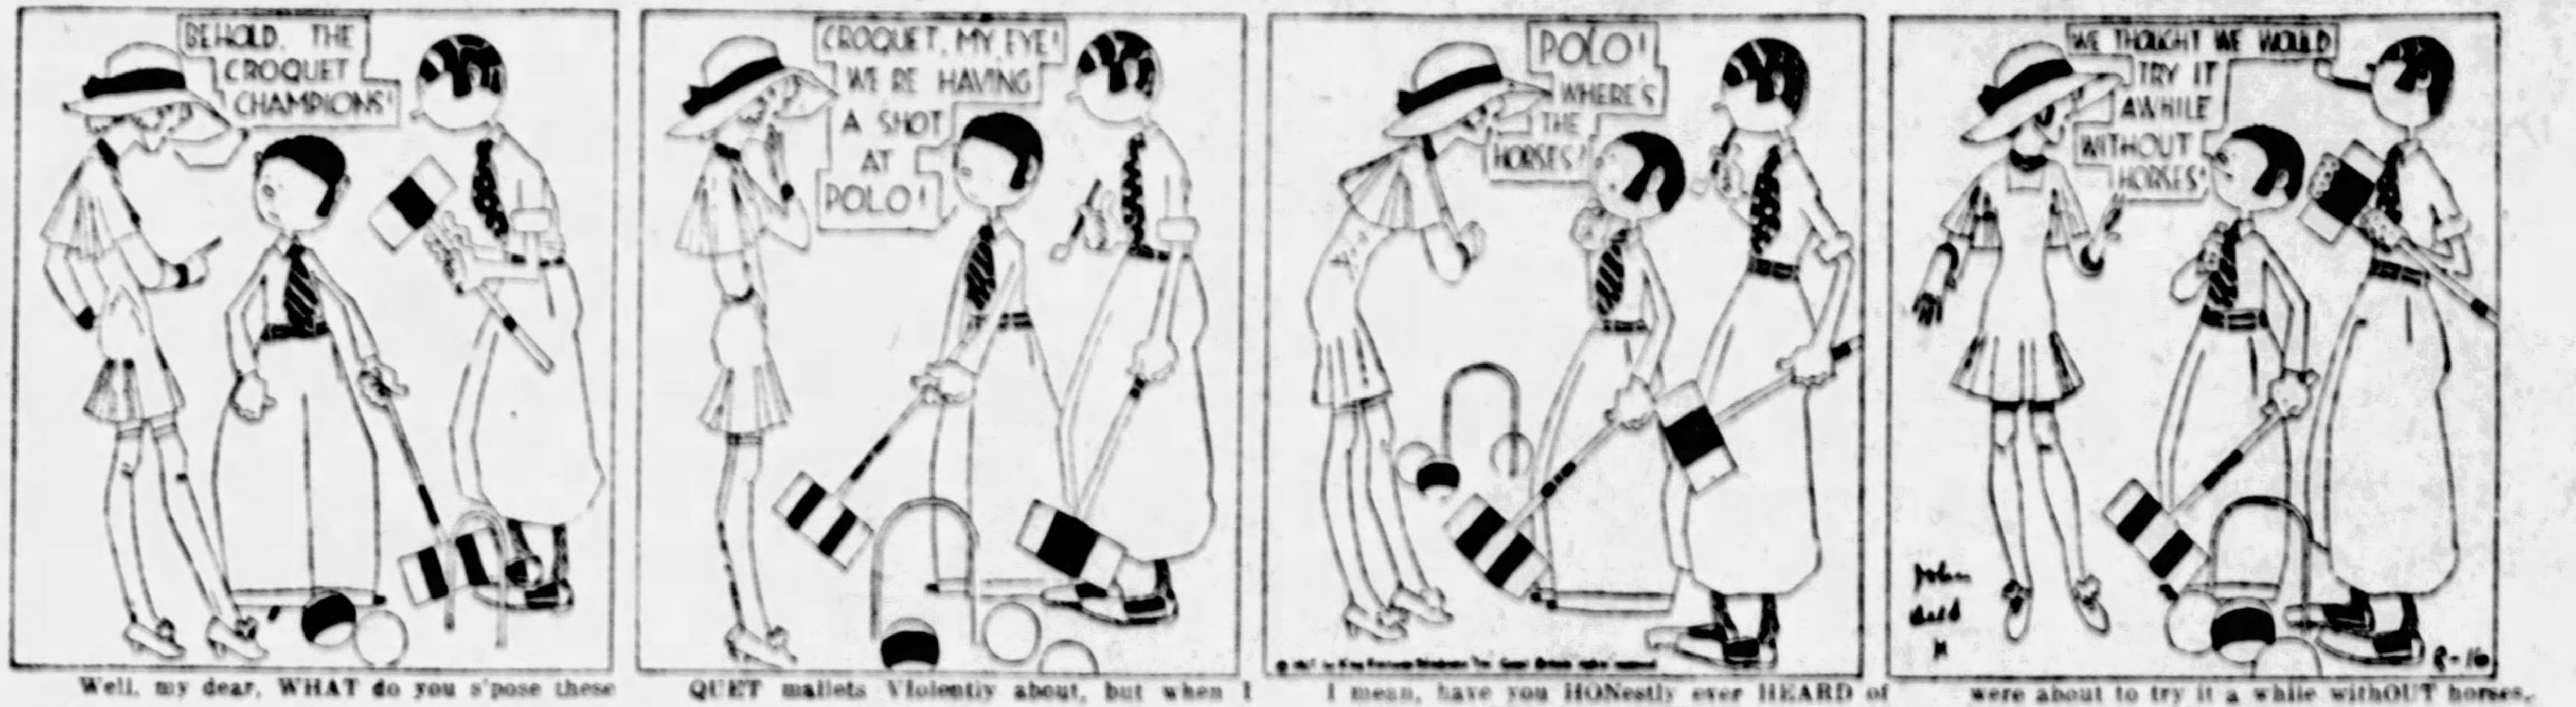
Merely Margy, An Awfully Sweet Girl

Story by Lloyd Mayer

By John Held, Jr.



BEHOLD, THE CROQUET CHAMPIONS!
CROQUET, MY EYE! WE'RE HAVING A SHOT AT POLO!
POLO! WHERE'S THE HORSES?
WE THOUGHT WE WOULD TRY IT AWHILE WITHOUT HORSES!
John Held Jr
8-16

Well, my dear, WHAT do you s'pose these odd souls ARab and NOIsy are about to PERpetrate at this point? ACtually, it SIMply asSASsinates me because I sort of SUDdenly disCOVered them wielding LARGE-sized croQUET mallets VIolently about, but when I suggested croQUET they were HIGHly inCENSED, because, I mean ARab hastily exPLAINED that they were about to attempt POlo—no less! Can you BEAR it, my dear? I mean, have you HONestly ever HEARD of anything so UTterly perVERted? Because I mean whoEVer heard of POLo without HORses to play it on. When I sugGESted they had oMITted the slight DEtail of HORses, ARab calmly announced that they were about to try it a while withOUT horses. REally, my dear, have you EVer in your entire young LIFE heard of ANYthing so terribly ODD, sort of? I mean I HONestly think those strange YOUTHS have the WILDest IDEAS—I mean I ACtually DO!"

Dorothy Dix Says:

A LIST OF OUTSTANDING WORKS FOR WOMEN TO SHOOT AT

A GROUP of women were sitting on a summer hotel veranda idly discussing their sex the other day when one of them suddenly asked:

"Who is your favorite heroine, in fact or fiction?"

"Well," replied another woman, "I have always been strong for Mother Eve. She was the great original investigator, and she yearned so much for knowledge she was willing to risk Paradise to gain it.

"She wasn't just satisfied to sit down and take things easy and comfortable and never get anywhere. She had energy and initiative and a lot of pep, and if she did lend a willing ear to that glib talking serpent I have never blamed her for it. She must have been bored stiff with Adam, who no doubt thought himself some sheik because he was the only one in the world and who didn't have enough manhood to stand up and take his medicine when he got into trouble. Hung around waiting for a woman to lead him astray, and then blamed it all on her.

"It's funny how little women have changed in all these centuries since the creation of the first woman, isn't it? Every smart, wide-awake, hustling business and professional woman of today is the very spit and image of her greatest grandma, and if Eve were alive she would be president of the Woman's Republican League or the Woman's Democratic Club and running all the philanthropic and uplift movements in her community. And all the men would be asking her advice on the sly and pretending they thought of it themselves when things went right and saying, 'You might know women would muddle things up!' when things went wrong."

"My favorite heroine," said the third woman, "is Ruth, the widow. The woman whose technique of husband-hunting has never been improved upon.

"Here was Ruth, whose husband died without leaving her a penny of insurance money. She was just so-so as to looks. Nothing about her would hit a man in the eye. No clothes; no way to make a splash and call attention to herself. Even had to live with her mother-in-law. More grief.

"You would have thought that she didn't have one chance in a million of pulling off a big match, but Ruth was a go-getter and she wasn't a widow for nothing. She understood men and how to work them, so she picked out the richest and most important man she knew and went to glean in his fields, where he was bound to see her and notice how industrious and frugal she was and how she saved what the other women wasted.

"Garbage-can economy always makes a hit with a man; and then Ruth followed this up by looking so helpless and dependent and sort of pitiful, as if she needed some good, strong man's breast to weep on and an arm to lean upon. Poor Boaz fell for this, and when a man begins comforting a widow he is next. Did you ever notice how often a widow marries her husband's executor? I guess wiping a widow's tears away is about the most hazardous job a man ever undertakes.

"Furthermore, Ruth was wise to the fact that propinquity is a great matchmaker and that any woman can wish herself on a man if she can only get near him. So she hung on to Boaz and made him believe she loved him for himself alone, although he was old enough to be her grandfather, and that she would simply die of grief if he sent her away. And he believed it all and married her, just as sugar papas marry the gold-diggers of today. But as a fast worker Ruth has never been excelled by any of our sex."

"Cleopatra has always intrigued me above any other woman," said the fourth, "because she stands for probably what every woman in the world in her secret soul yearns for most: To be fascinating to men. To have what Elinor Glyn calls 'IT.' To be able to vamp men so that they forget everything else in the world but just you—forget ambition and power and money and honor and family ties, everything that had made their world before they set eyes upon you. To have beauty and charm and be swathed in luxury; to be clothed in silk and decked in jewels and to have slaves to fan you; to live in a world in which love and passion are always at the sizzling point and where money is carried about in sacks of gold.

"That is what every woman dreams about as she washes the dishes and makes Johnny's rompers and fights with her husband over the bills. And, while she doesn't delude herself into thinking that she has any of the earmarks of the siren about her, somehow Cleopatra braces her up to go to the beauty parlor to have a facial and a permanent and try a little allure on the commonplace man to whom she is married."

"I have always been interested in Patient Griselda," said the fifth woman, "because she is such an Awful Warning to wives. Poor old Griselda got off on the wrong foot by letting her husband see that she was grateful to him for marrying her.

"She didn't have enough gumption to know that a wife writes her own price tag and that her husband takes her at her own valuation and that if she wants him to admire her she must 'sell' herself to him and tell him how beautiful and wonderful she is and what a great manager and how lucky he is that she condescended to marry him.

"So Griselda made a doormat of herself, and her husband kicked her around, as men always do doormats, and he insulted and reviled her, because he knew she didn't have spunk enough to hand him a snappy comeback. And he mistreated her because he knew that she had conscientious scruples against divorce and alimony. Of course, in the end her husband forgave her for the things he had done to her and took her back, and she was supposed to be happy ever after.

"Just like a lot of other women I know who are sitting waiting for prodigal husbands to return to them after they get too old and rheumatic to run around any more. But I am wondering what they want them back for. And, anyway, Patient Griselda didn't know her onions or she would have kept her husband so busy trying to please her that he wouldn't have had time to find out how far he could go with her and get away with it."

My Son's Sweethearts

By IDA McG. GIBSON.

"Did you know, sweetheart, you are the only thing that has not disappointed me since I came home. I had decided that life was not worth living, but now, darling, you have made me think that I shall again taste all the first things. Do you know, dear, it was you that first made me appreciate the moonlight, pouring silver spangles all over the river below. It was you that made me think that life was going to be one long chain of joyful days. It was you that made me glad that I was young. Dearest, the sight of you has made me young again. The feel of your caressing hands upon my face sends my blood like quicksilver through my veins."

"Dearest Phillip, I think you are the only poet I have ever known."

"You made me one, sweetheart."

CHAPTER LVII.
LYRA DENIES HER LOVE.

"YES, I told your mother so." Lyra Hilliard answered complacently, when Phillip told her she had made him a poet.

The words were hardly out of her mouth when she knew by Phillip's face that she had made a mistake. Quickly, to change the subject, she said:

"I thought you would be married before you returned from France. I have been looking for an announcement every day."

"I do not know why you should be thinking that," said Phil, stupidly. "I should think that you, of all people, Lyra, would not want me to marry a French girl."

Lyra drew a little sobbing breath. She knew that she had only to say, "Dear boy, I will love you as long as time shall last," and he would be hers again.

She also knew that if Phillip Tracy came back to her, his life would be ruined forever—because when he tired of her, as he inevitably would, he would become a blase man of the world, who believed in nothing or no one, not even himself.

Her idea of fair play and her heart were fighting each other hard. Finally she said, softly:

"But you know, Phillip, I don't love you."

Phillip Wynne Tracy IV sprang from the arm of the chair. From his feet he looked down upon her. She looked very frail and white, huddled in the depths of the cushions.

"What do you mean, Lyra?" he asked curtly.

"I mean just what I have said. I have never loved you, and what you have called love for me was only one of your youthful vagrant fancies."

"You're crazy. Surely you, of all persons, should know better than that."

"It's because I am I—the one who is different from all others—that I know better than anyone else that it was a vagrant fancy."

"You will forgive me, Lyra, when I say that I do not understand you." Phillip's voice was ice.

In the Elevator Sally Saw John Nye; She Frankly Stared in Admiration

ship of a watch from his pocket. "Be back here at [illegible] sharp. Have my lunch ready for me then."

He clapped an antique Panama hat upon his head and hurried out, bouncing along on his rubber heels.

The office was hot and stuffy and as soon as he was gone Sally [illegible] the door that led into the [illegible] hall.

"Whew!" she said, dropping down behind her desk and patting her face with her damp handkerchief.

It was then that she first noticed that the office across the hall had been rented at last. It had been empty for a year. But now the door stood open and upon the ground glass panel was gold-leaf lettering.

Sally got up and walked out into the hall to [illegible]

JOHN NYE [illegible] ESTATE, [illegible] and simply.

Beyond [illegible] was simply furnished [illegible] plain brown [illegible] and a fawn-colored rug. There was no one in it.

But as she stood there gazing into the room an inner door swung open and the dark young man of the elevator appeared upon the threshold.

Sally wasn't sure whether he saw her standing there or not. If he did he gave no sign of it, and in a second she was back in Mr. Peevey's little room with its old files, its worn ledgers and its general air of fussiness and confusion.

Somehow [illegible] no matter how hard she worked she never could make Mr. Peevey's office look the way it should. For none of the furniture matched, the rug was a fanciful blue-and-green-and-red affair and Mr. Peevey's own chair was glorified by a large and puffy seat-cushion covered with Turkey-red calico.

Like most girls who work in offices, Sally would have liked a room in which she could take some sort of pride—a room like the one across the hall.

The door of it still stood open, and Sally could see her friend of the elevator standing at the window, gazing down into the busy street below. His feet were wide apart, and his hands thrust into his pockets.

He was whistling softly, and Sally cocked an ear to listen.

"High—high—high

"Up on the hill"

She smiled to herself as she recognized the little tune. She wondered if he were thinking of a green and sunny hill-top with the wind ruffling the long grass, making it shimmer like silver. She wondered if there were some girl in his life who went driving with him into the open country sometimes, who sat on hill-tops with him.

The sound of tapping heels came from the hall and suddenly a figure in pale, summery green flashed into the little room. Millie.

"Hello!" she cried and came and sat on one corner of her sister's desk, swinging her long silk-sheathed legs gracefully. The air in the office slowly became sweet and heavy with the strong scent of the perfume she used.

"What a dump this is!" she went on, looking at the little room with scornful eyes. "I didn't know they had offices like this any more. And what on earth is this for?" She gave the electric stove a push with one highly-manicured finger.

"That's where I heat Mr. Peevey's milk for him," Sally answered blandly. "He has a weak stomach and I always fix a little lunch for him at noon."

Millie giggled. A soft giggle that had a sharp edge to it, somehow or other.

"Well, you ARE a simp!" she said. "If anybody asked ME to do a thing like that I'd be right there with a hard-eyed stare and a cold turn-down. What does your Mr. Peevish think he's getting for $20 a week—a cook and a waitress, as well as a stenographer?"

Without waiting for a reply she went on in her soft lazy drawl:

"I quit my own job 15 minutes ago. Just put on my hat and walked out of that place."

She took a cigaret from a paper package and looked down at it thoughtfully.

"How did that happen?" asked Sally. As she spoke she remembered what Mabel Wilmot had said that morning about Millie and her jobs—that Millie never would stay long in a place where there wasn't someone to give her the thrill that she demanded from life.

"Same old story. Bursall got gay with me. They all do, sooner or later," Millie was saying. "I told you Bursall was getting too fresh to suit me, didn't I? And I was right. I just wish I knew why men try to make love to me. I'm sure I behave myself."

Sally looked her over critically. It seemed to her that everything about Millie was an open invitation for men to "get gay" with her. The thin silk stockings that she wore. The perfume that hung about her like a cloud. The pale green clothes that clung to the soft swells and curves of her young figure. The penciled brows and the darkened lashes. The reddened lips that were always slightly parted. The flirtatious blue eyes that moved slowly but constantly as if they were forever in search of excitement.

They were turned now upon the office across the hall where the tall dark young man was standing with his back to the room, still gazing down into the street below him.

And as Millie looked at him, he turned suddenly, facing her for a moment. Then he vanished into the inner office. The heavy door of it swung to behind his tall figure.

"Who's the sleek-haired sheik?" asked Millie, getting up from the desk and swaying on her three-inch heels.

"I never saw him until today," her sister answered with perfect truth. "I think he's just moved in—"

Her voice trailed off into silence and her blue eyes widened with a look that had something close to fear in it. It came to her in a flash that Millie was going to cross the hall to that office and ask for a job there.

"She can't do it!" she said to herself. "I won't let her do it!"

CHAPTER III.

TO save her life, Sally Jerome could not have told, at that moment, why she was so afraid that Millie would cross the hall to John Nye's neat new office and ask him for work.

But afraid she certainly was, beyond all doubt and argument. And along with her fear was a queer little pain that twisted like a knife in her heart. Surely, she told herself sharply, she couldn't be jealous of that man on the other side of the hall. Why, she never had so much as laid eyes on him until this day at noon! She didn't know him—didn't know anything about him. He was nothing to her, and she was less than nothing to him, probably.

She remembered, with a pang of shame, that he had barely glanced at her during that upward flight in the elevator when she had stared at him so openly and brazenly.

Then why on earth should it make any difference to her whether Millie asked him if he needed a stenographer or not? Whether she went to work for him as his stenographer? And yet, somehow, it did make a difference, and a big difference. It made all the difference in the world, it seemed to Sally just then.

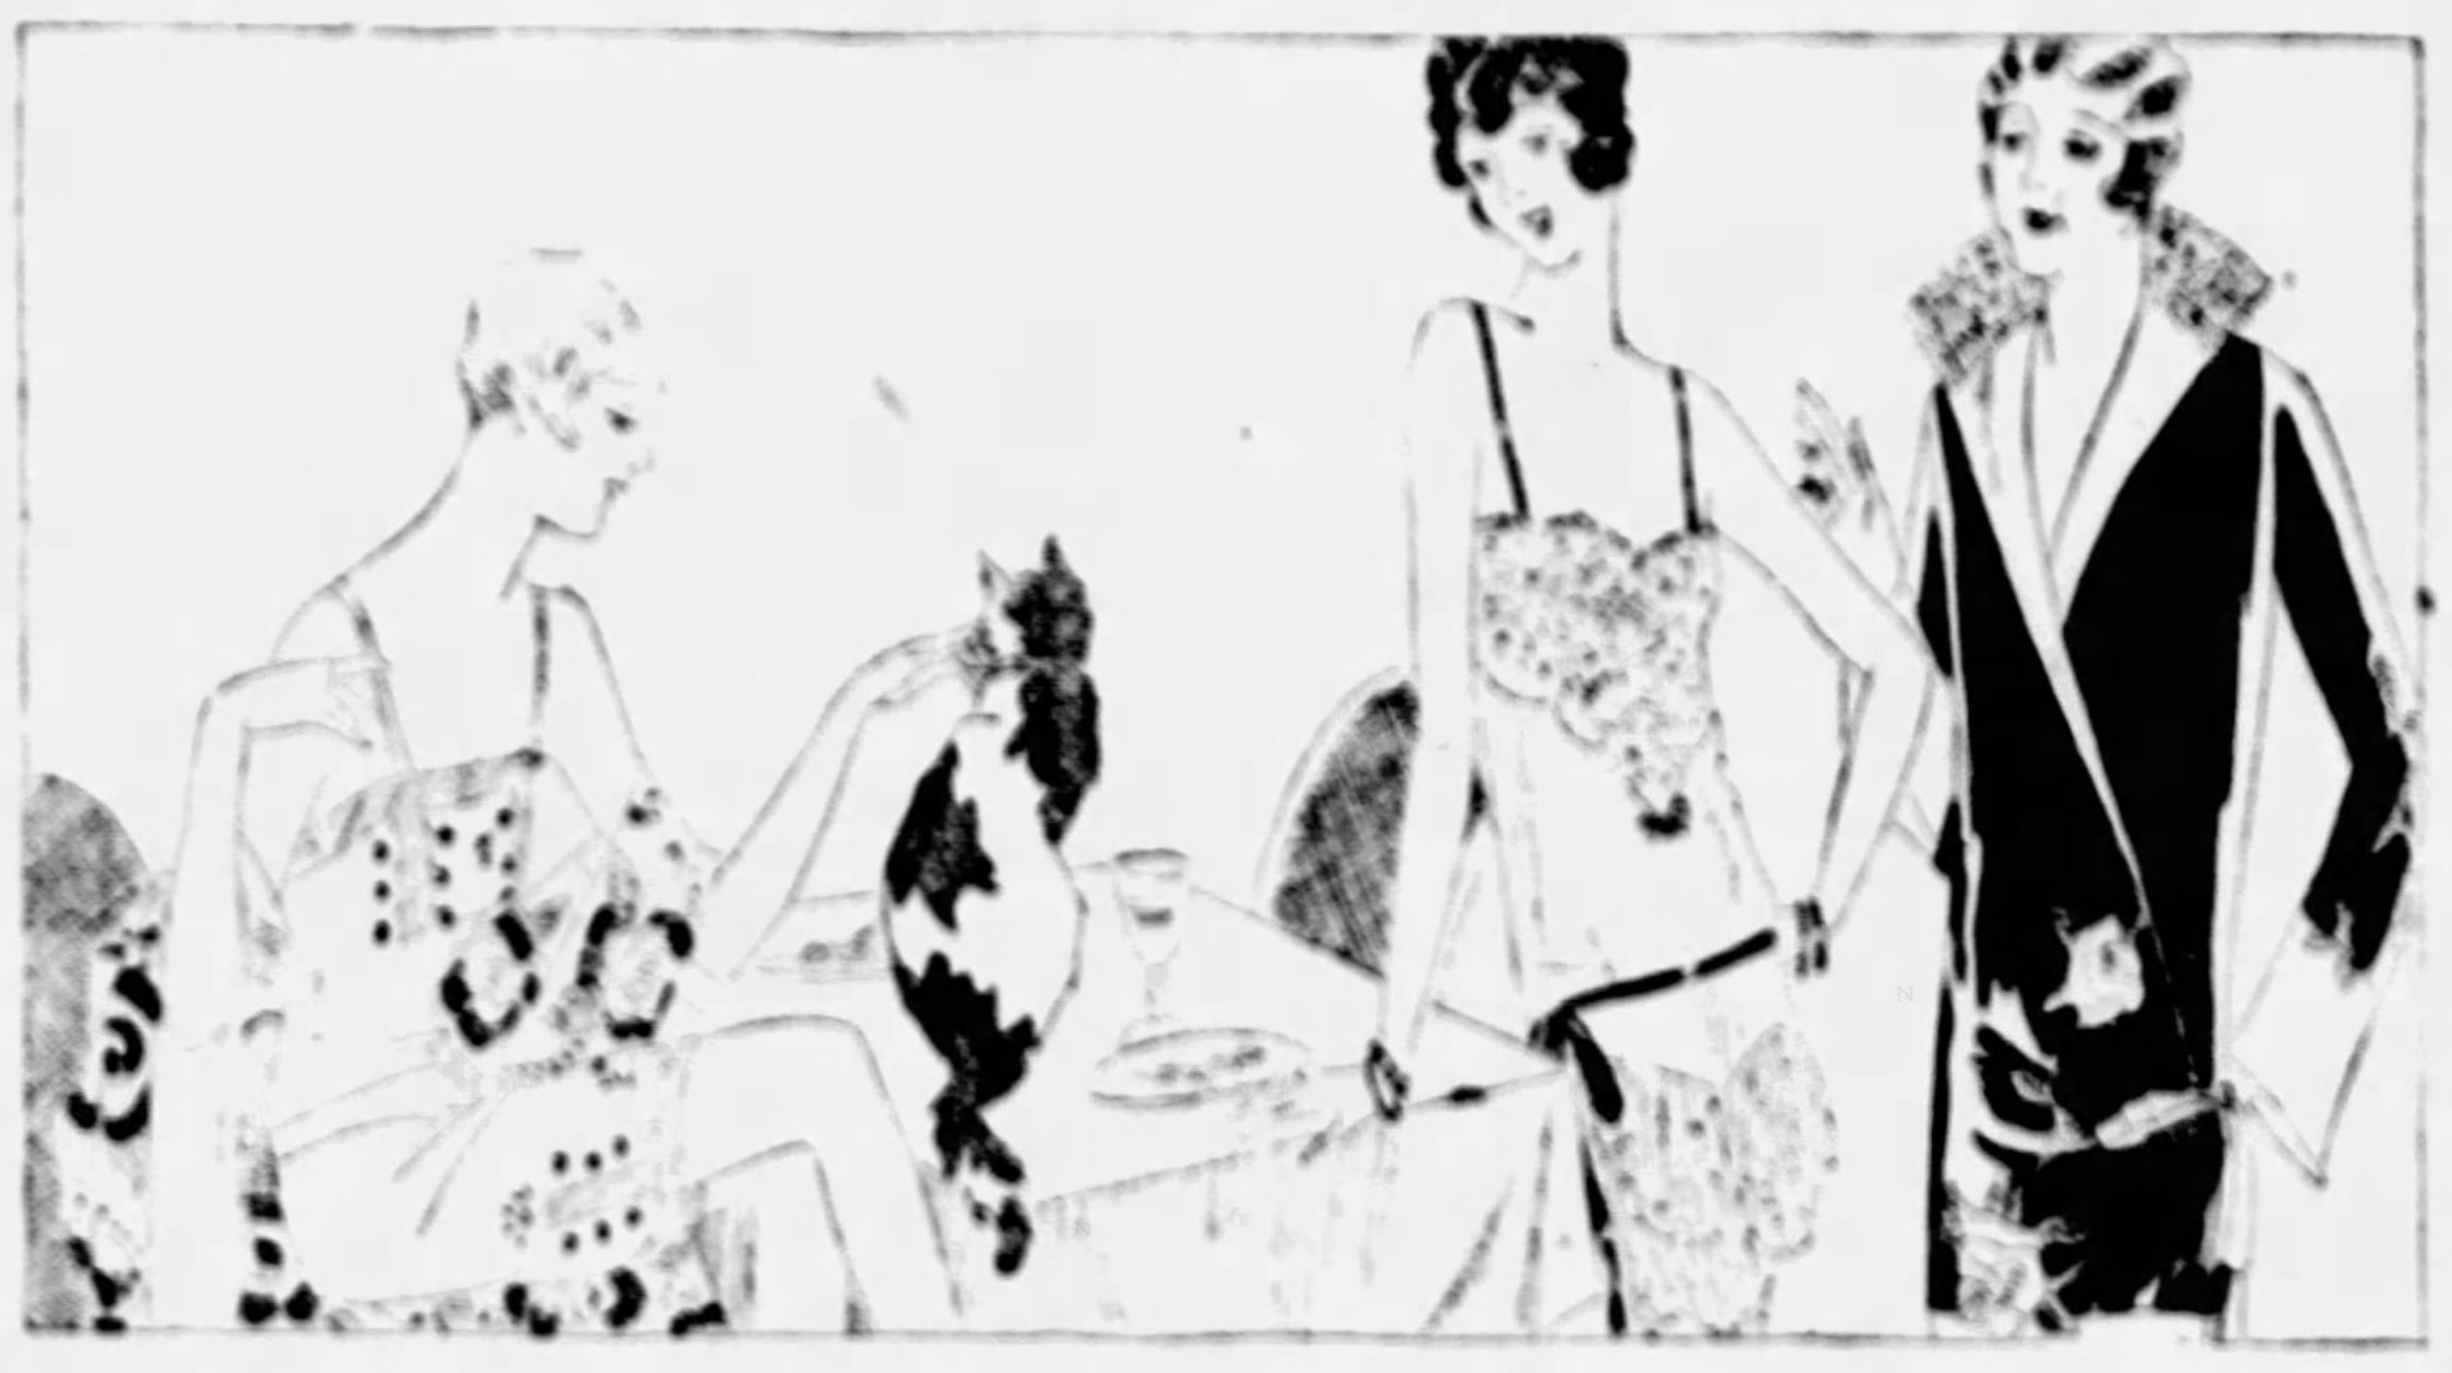
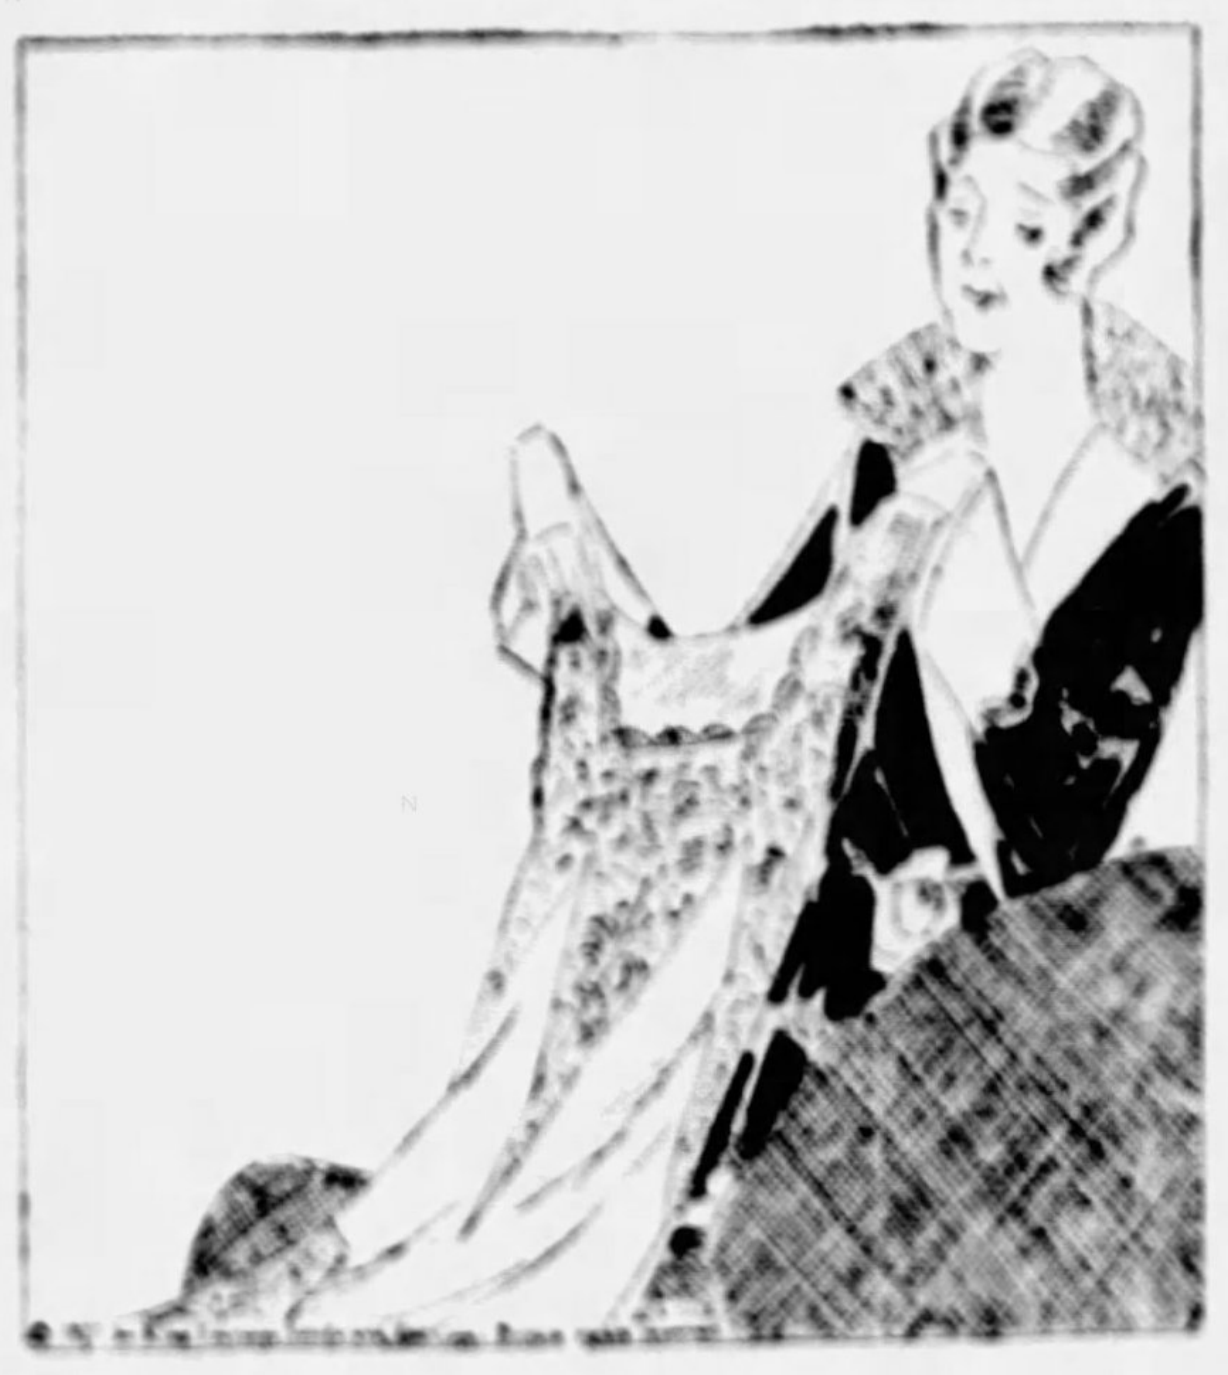
CHIC CHERIE

Gilded Luxury, No Less

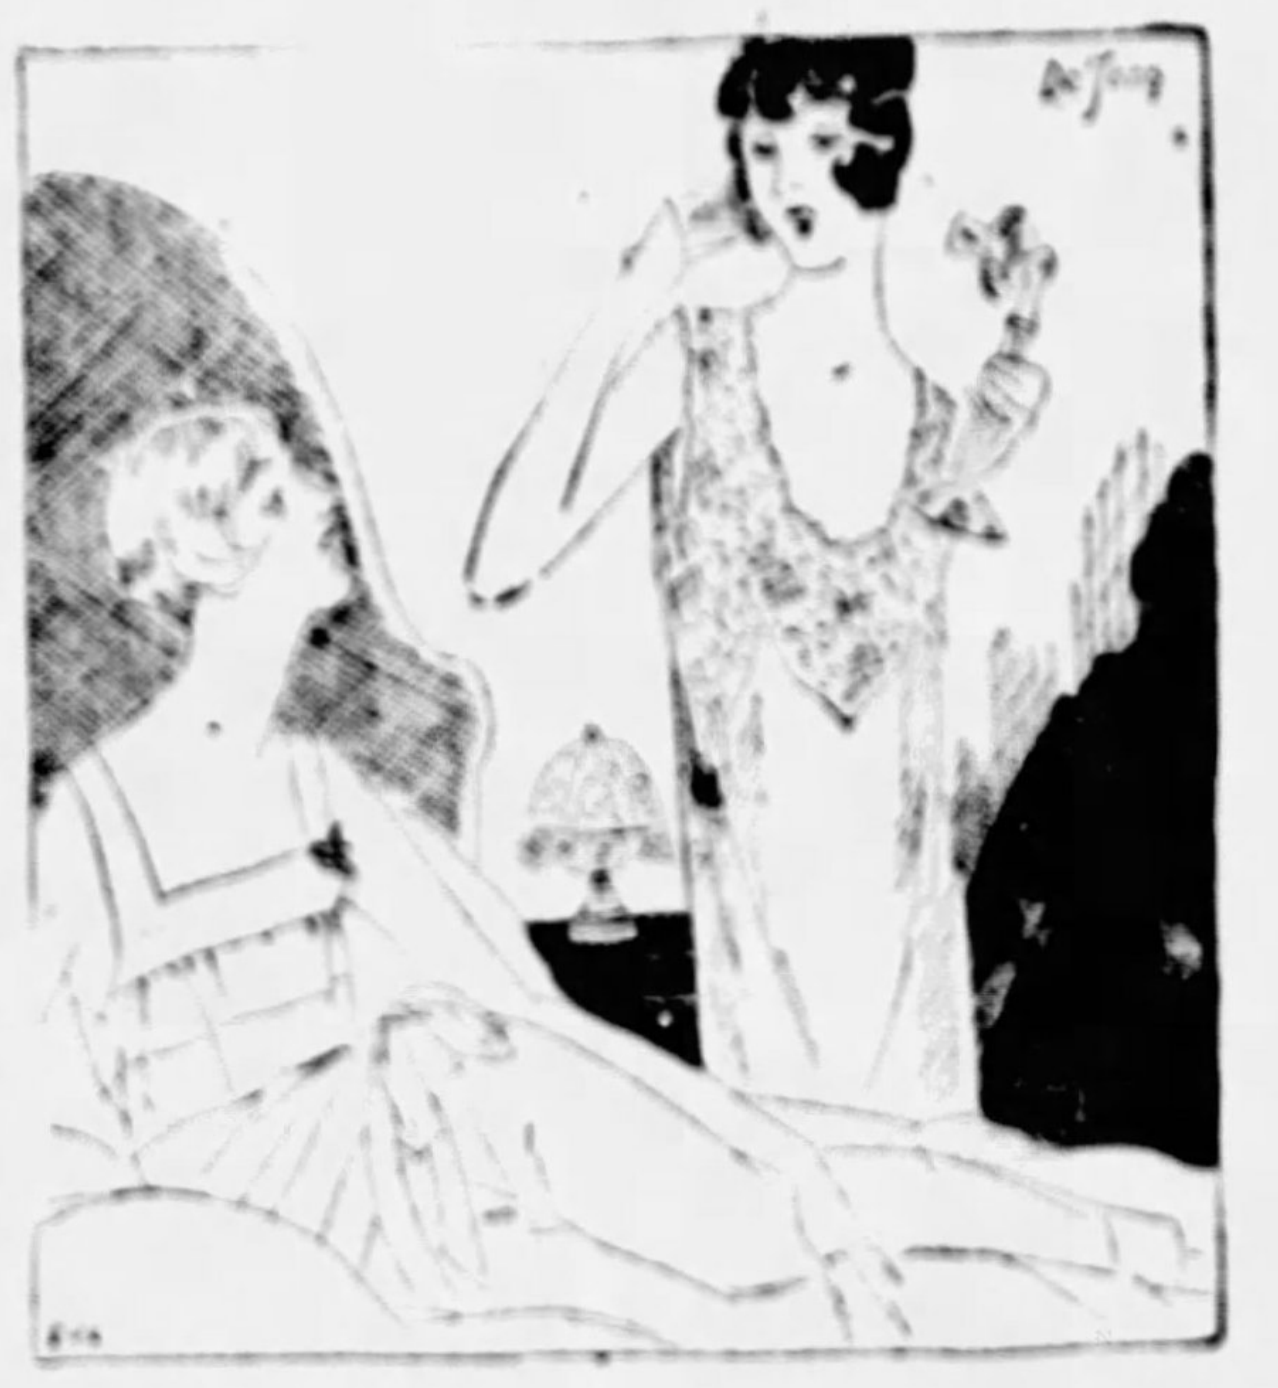
LATEST FASHIONS



Since Aunt Em seems to have an almost unlimited amount of money, and since she seems to encourage Cherie to spend it, there is no reason why John Doe shouldn't be fed on chicken. He is furnishing the evening's entertainment at this informal gathering where the costumes are scanty, though fashionable. Cherie's is a vest and bloomer set with pastel colored embroidery and edges. Dina's is a step-in of pastel georgette trimmed with wide lace and cherry colored ribbon, and Aunt Em's (more conservative) is a tailored black robe trimmed with applique roses done appropriately in rose color with gold leaves.



It looks a little extreme to Aunt Em, but Cherie picked it out and assured her that it was completely proper. She thinks she'll have to keep Cherie around just to urge her to buy the things she'd like to buy but doesn't think quite suitable—such as chiffon nightgowns with lace yokes and flounces.



This is luxury. No, not Cherie's pajamas, although they are of maize colored crepe de Chine trimmed with horizontal tucks. And not Dina's nightgown, half lace and half triple voile. It's the message they are giving that's luxury—"We don't want to oversleep. Will you call us, please, at eleven in the morning?"

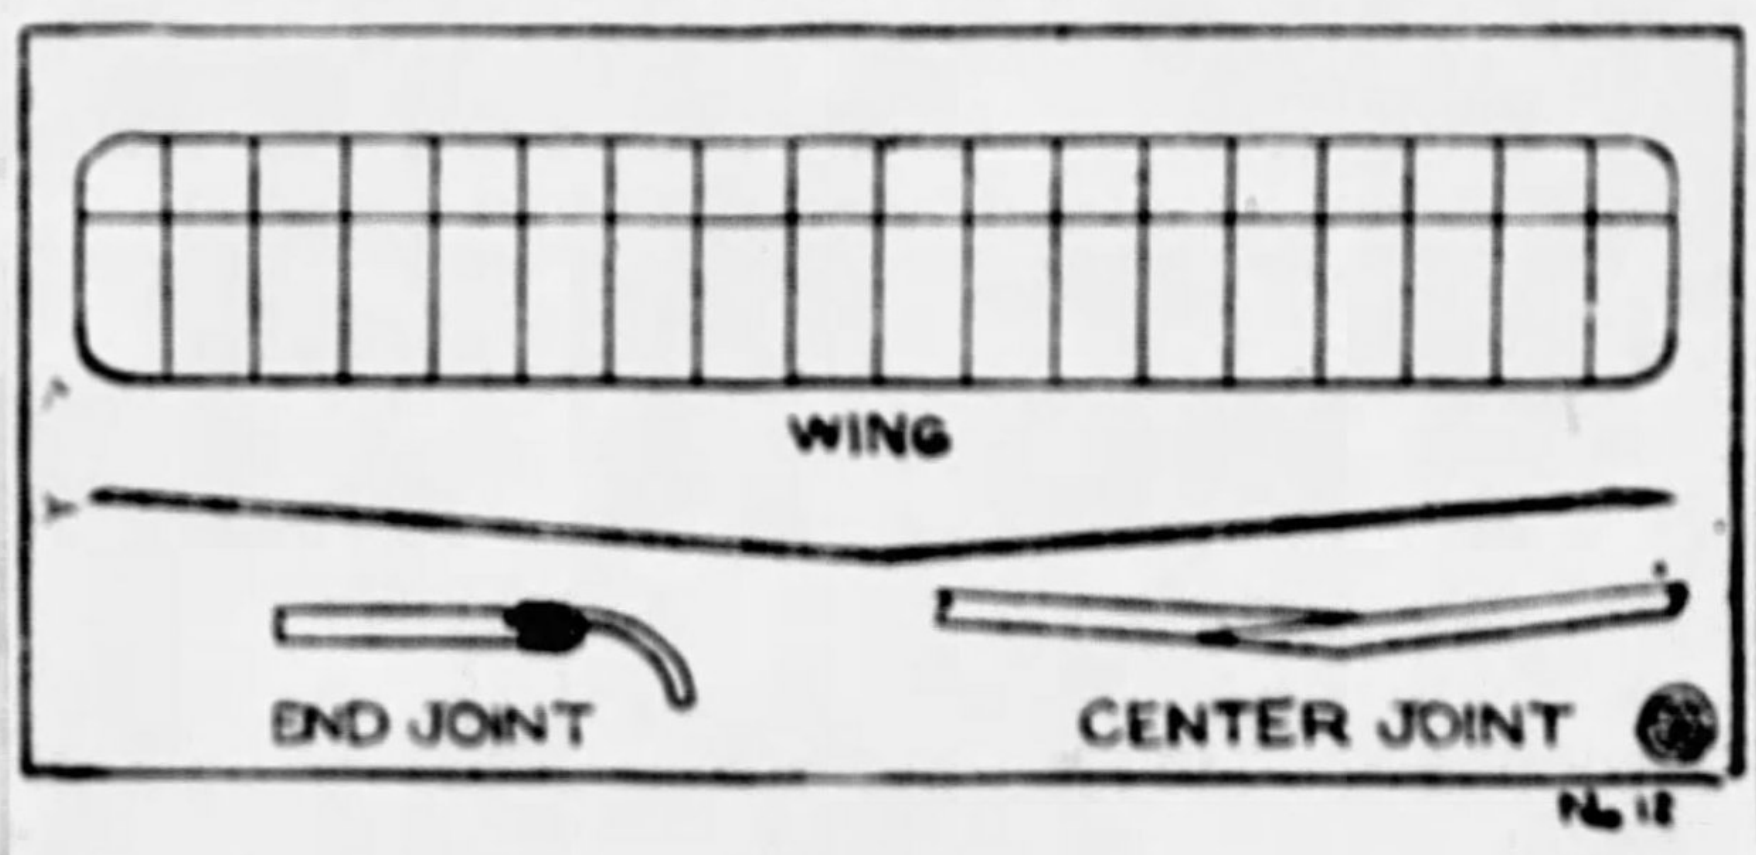
WING OF S-S-2

(SECOND PART)



TAKE the drawing which you made yesterday and paste it on a piece of tin. With a pair of shears cut out the wing section, making a tin pattern. Next procure the following material:

1 sheet Japanese tissue paper, 38"x16".
1 pc. pine wood, 36"x1-4"x1-16".
2 pcs. balsa wood, 34"x1-8"x1-16".
1 pc. of bamboo, the remnant of that used for the wing.
18 balsa slats 5 1-4"x5-8"x1-16".
Thread, ambroid, banana oil.

On each of the balsa slats draw the outline of the tin pattern and cut out the rib. A cut should be made in the front and on the bottom of each rib to accommodate the front wing edge and the spar, as shown at A and B of yesterday's drawing. The rib may be lightened by making holes with a metal tube such as is used to hold the rubber on a lead pencil. Balsa wood is so soft that if the tube is placed on the wood and spun around the hole will be made, as shown at D in the same drawing.

The pine spar should now be cut in the center and rejoined as shown in the detail drawing above of the center joint. The angle formed should be such that the ends of the spar will be one inch above level. The ribs are now ambroided to the pine spar, two inches apart. This should be carefully done so that all are in the same line. The front balsa edge is inserted in the front cut, and ambroided in place. The rear edge is ambroided directly to the rear of the ribs, as shown in yesterday's drawing at C. A piece of bamboo 1/4x1-16x9 in. is curved to make the shape of the wing end. Bamboo may be easily curved by holding it in the heat of a candle flame, and forming it as the fibers give. This curved shape is carefully split in half, making two identical ends, and these are bound and ambroided to the ladder-like frame as shown in the detail drawing of the end joint.

The wing is now completed and may be covered. To do this coat the top of the center sections with banana oil and over them lay the center of a piece of Japanese tissue paper, 38x6 in. Stretch the paper tightly over the frame, pulling it smooth to preserve the shape. Proceed with each section and finally fasten the paper snugly to the bamboo ends. The under surface is covered in the same manner. In all of these covering operations, pull the paper particularly taut along the length of the wing, in order to keep the curvature correct, and to prevent "saddles" between the ribs. If desired, the wing may now be painted with collodion or a thin solution of airplane "dope." Both banana oil and collodion are drug store articles. Airplane dope is sold by model airplane supply houses or by airplane dealers, advertised in aircraft magazines. It is thinned by adding acetone, which is another drug store article. This treatment of the paper tightens it and makes it more airtight.

Lay the wing where it will not get distorted. In the next article we will make the elevator for this model.

"Old Ironsides," With Beery And Esther Ralston, Scores As Season Opener In Nixon

By MILDRED FILLMORE.

For the sake of brevity, which what's his name said was the soul of wit, by the adoption of which expedient I hope to earn the distinction of being witty, let us jump right at "Old Ironsides" with a sort of summary which will get us close down to fundamentals. I mean let us look at the skeleton first and then your imagination, stepped up by my few simple and well chosen words, can put some flesh on the frame. Are you ready? Then let's go!

"OLD IRONSIDES."

The Cast—Wallace Beery, George Bancroft, Esther Ralston, Charles Farrell, Charles Hill Mailes, Johnnie Walker, Edgar Featherston, George Godfrey. Hundreds of extras.

Giving It a Label—Romantic comedy drama with historic background.

Giving It a Reputation—Prominent member of Better Films family.

Giving It a Location—Nixon Theater.

Giving It Approval—The very large audience.

Acting—Overplayed in spots but as a whole excellent, well drawn characterization.

Technical Viewpoint—Direction, photography, sub-titles, etc., were in the hands of experts who experted as if they really belong.

Sidelight — Patriotic address by Harold M. Irons, assistant city solicitor, with a plea to save the old U. S. S. Constitution from destruction.

Story—Laurence Stallings wrote it around the achievement of the Constitution in subduing Tripoli pirates in the early days of the Nineteenth Century, weaving in a romance without which no photoplay, of course, could be complete.

Title—"Old Ironsides," as our hardy fathers nicknamed the Constitution, was immortalized when Oliver Wendell Holmes used it as a heading for a poem which once saved the old frigate from the fate of a cast-off.

The Photoplay—A country boy wishing to become a seaman aboard the Constitution is shanghaied by the bos'n of the ship Esther along with the master gunner of the naval frigate. The Esther, having aboard the daughter of the owner is bound for a Mediterranean port and the boy, smitten by the girl, gets his baptism in life before the mast when a hard-fisted first mate knocks him down for going to the upper deck to feast his eyes on her. During the voyage there is given a realistic view of the hard-fighting, hard-swearing life the sailor of that day led, but it all has a comedy flavor. The story, however, has to do with pirates, so let's get there as quickly as we may. The Esther is captured and the crew, including the girl, are taken to the Tripoli slave market. Members of the crew are sold, but the pirate chief decides to send the girl and the Esther to the sultan as a gift. At this point the Constitution appears, and, in a thrilling sea fight, a pirate frigate is destroyed and the forts of Tripoli are silenced. This fight, as might be expected, is the big climax of the film and it is a real thriller, although, I thought, a bit too long drawn out. Perhaps I was alone in that thought, as it certainly was well done.

Comment—Although the boy and the girl are the central romantic characters and the entire action seems to revolve around them, interest centers more in the activities of the bos'n and the gunner, played respectively by Wallace Beery and George Bancroft. Beery was great—ran away with as much of the show as Bancroft would let him escape with. The latter claimed a good share as his own trophy, though, and they proved a great team. Beery couldn't make a move without creating a laugh and Bancroft ran him a close second in that respect.

Last word—Pleased to have mucha.

'MY SON' ACTED WELL IN PITT

Flaming fascination of youth versus the devotion of mother love is the interesting theme of "My Son," being enacted this week in the Pitt by the George Sharp Production Stock Company. It was an enthralled audience that sat through the opening performance last night of this story laid in a seacoast town of Cape Cod, Massachusetts.

Through three acts, Leah Winslow slowly developed the role of a trusting mother until the pinnacle of dramatic emotion was reached as the final curtain fell. It was a different Miss Winslow whom the audience found and she carried her honors through histrionic ability rarely to be found in the cast of a stock company. Herbert Clark and Anne Forrest were billed as the stars, but, though they fulfilled the demands of their roles to a perfection, the author gave the character of the mother the real opportunity.

Too, it was a different Mr. Clark who was found in the role of the son. Not the happy-go-lucky youth of "Applesauce" or the struggling young hubby of "If I Was Rich." Here was a petted son whose fascination for a New York girl carried him outside the law and made him a thief. He well carried himself through the anxious moments of nervous guilt preying on his mind; he well gave vent to the determination to escape a mother's protection to flee with the girl who charmed him. And at this stage, just before the final curtain dropped, a dramatic tenseness was cleverly woven between the mother and son, so gripping that the audience felt a different suspense than the ordinary play offers.

"My Son" is an interesting piece. It brings to the stage wonderful pictures enhanced by romance. Miss Forrest is not given the usual opportunity, but in the few scenes she has, wins new favor as the broken hearted girl who sees the sweetheart of childhood days being stolen away.

The author has not concluded the story on the stage, but left the happiness that the stirring climax brings, to the minds of the audience. It can readily grasp how the youthful lovers will be sweethearts once again, and then, as the fairy books are wont to say, live happily ever after.

The entire company gave a polished production worthy of any road attraction. Mr. Clark portrayed the role he created in the original company, while with him from the same cast was Escamillo Fernandez.

REVUE ON STAGE OF HARRIS

A feature photoplay, "The Secret Studio," and six acts of vaudeville are being presented in the Harris this week. The picture, though it unfolds the usual story of feminine innocence from the country town in search of a career in the big city, is rather well done. Olive Borden is the star. The cast includes two players of the legitimate stage, Ned Sparks and Ben Bard. The stage bill is topped by a commendable dance act, "Stepping Along," in which seven youthful performers present a variety of syncopation and steps. Three seals and a monkey offer some entertainment, under the direction of Capt. Betts and his assistant. Slim Grindell and Coryl Esther present quite a lot of nonsense, presumably comedy, for it wins some laughs. Bobbie Johnstone, a woman, and her xylophone are responsible for an entertaining 15 minutes. Bud Lorraine, cowboy ventriloquist, assisted by his "Tom Mix" baby doll, is a feature of the bill. The Summers Duo, acrobatics, contribute some novelty. An Aesop Fable and news pictures complete the program.

"MADAME POMPADOUR" CAMERPHONE FILM

"Madame Pompadour," a British-made screen production starring Dorothy Gish, is the principal attraction in the Cameraphone this week. Miss Gish portrays Madame Pompadour, the young French girl who ruled France and the heart of her royal master. She is first seen as a child who has been taken to a fortune teller by her mother. The old seer prophesies riches and the favor of a king. Years pass and the child becomes a woman, distinguished, graceful and able. The affairs of France are directed from her drawing room. Then onto the scene comes one Laval, a poor poet, who claims the heart of Madame Pompadour. Antonio Moreno portrays the poet. A capable cast supports the two principals. A comedy, news pictures and music complete the program.

SCREEN IN OLYMPIC HAS GISH PICTURE

Madame Pompadour, in a picture of the same name, is seen in all her glory on the Olympic screen this week. Dorothy Gish has the role of the Madame in this picturization of the life of the little French girl who became a queen in fact, though not in name. Most of the action of the production, which, incidentally, is British made, is laid against the brilliant background of the court of Versailles and centers around three principal characters — Madame Pompadour, Louis XV and Laval, a sort of vagabond poet, who wins the heart of this Cleopatra of France. There are three acts, all entertaining, on the Vitaphone program. Willie and Eugene Howard, a couple of comedians who are just that, are seen and heard in an act of song and chatter. Nellie and Sara Kouns, concert and vaudeville singers, please with the "Swiss Echo Song" and "La Paloma." Blossom Seeley, that peppy feminine syncopator, assisted by Bennie Fields, complete the Vitaphone program. The news reel gives an intimate glimpse of some recent current event. An Aesop Fable concludes the bill.

DANCING FEATURED ON SHERIDAN STAGE

The stage portion of the bill of vaudeville and screen attractions in the Sheridan Square yesterday was topped by the Libby Dancers in "Sports a la Carte," introducing dancing with a sports atmosphere. The company included seven girls and one man. Depicting a story of life in the art quarter of Paris, Olive Borden appeared as the star of the photoplay feature, "The Secret Studio." Her role was that of a flapper. Harry Patrick and Sam Otto presented a comedy skit in the character of duck hunters. Billy Farrell and company, including Lida Gardner, were seen in a playlet, "Home, Sweet Home." Hafter and Paul appeared in a bit of comedy with some songs and dancing. Stanley and Attree, in a gymnastic turn, a screen comedy and pictures of the Bermuda contest trip rounded out the program.

Lends Distinction -:- Women In Everything -:- Native Son Shines

WILLIAM FAVERSHAM is one of our thespian aristocracy—a higher-up among the dealers in expression and emotion. Popular with the younger generation of theater goers as well as those who mark him by "The Squaw Man." He's in the Davis.

JUDGING BY THIS SCENE from "Old Ironsides," the feminine invasion of man's domain began long before Dr. Mary Walker took to wearing trousers and high hats. Esther Ralston, though, proves she is an amateur steersman. She must think she is forking a salad with the dainty grasp she has on that spoke, or whatever the nautical term for the nobs on the wheel is.

WE FEEL LIKE giving the old Tech college yell when we see Herbert Clark act, for Herb is an alumnus of dear old Tech, drama department, and his home is out in Brookline, where he lives while acting in Pitt stock. He was an original cast actor in "My Son," too.

FAVERSHAM STAR IN DAVIS

With William Faversham to give it a flavor of the respected, if neglected, legit, with a lot of fluff which George Choos has labeled "A Petite Revue," to give it spice, and with Jean Sothern, cute as a bug's ear and only slightly larger, to give it a dainty "kick," the bill of Keith vaudeville and photoplays in the Davis yesterday opened with considerable eclat, to quote from the vernacular. Mr. Faversham, recently recovered from illness, portrayed a bachelor of the characteristics indicated in the title role of his little comedy, "The Sponger," a domestic frivol by Edwin Burke. The star was assisted by Ralph Sumpter and Edith Favershaw, as a husband and wife, respectively. Carrie and Eddy were featured in "A Petite Revue," a lot of steps and not enough songs to harm. Jean Sothern, in "Girls Will Be Boys," demonstrated that one girl, same being herself, can be the stage variety of boy quite prettily. Miss Sothern gave four characterizations, with accompanying songs, with plenty of snap and dash and in an endearing manner. Kay Kody and Martha Wilson vocalized, solo and duet, and Miss Kody, or, perhaps, Miss Wilson, played the harp. Their act was liked. Wilfred DuBois did a little juggling turn that was out of the ordinary routine for such acts—a pleasing novelty. Jimmy Duffy and Helen Gleason had a comedy skit, with songs, to complete the variety bill. On the screen the feature was "The Little Adventuress," starring Vera Reynolds, in which an elopement is spoiled with comedy effect by Victor Varconi. There also was a news reel and a cinema farce.

FILM IN GRAND IS COMEDY

That inimitable comedy team of the screen, Wallace Beery and Raymond Hatton, are among the visiting firemen this week. They are appearing in the Grand in their newest photoplay, "Fireman, Save My Child," which concerns the experiences of a couple of rookie firemen. The production is a comic melodrama, if you know what we mean, and seemingly is worth as many laughs as ever was won by "We're In the Navy Now" or "Behind the Front," two earlier Beery-Hatton vehicles. Though there is a semblance of a plot to the piece, it is more a series of gags, most of which are good and a few not so good. Josephine Dunn is the heroine. Her chief duty is looking attractive. The stage feature is offered by B. A. Rolfe and his Palais D'Or Orchestra. This act presents pleasing harmony and comedy, the highlight being a trumpet solo by Mr. Rolfe. A Lloyd Hamilton comedy, news pictures, "Topics of the Day" and orchestra music complete the bill.

MARINES VS. BANDITS IN CAMEO THRILLER

A motion picture dealing with the activities of United States Marines in fighting mail train bandits is being shown on the screen of the Cameo this week, the photoplay being of the melodramatic variety, bearing the title, "The Great Mail Robbery." It will be remembered that our government some time ago adopted the measure of placing Marines aboard mail cars as guards. The picture belongs to the "thriller" class, the blowing up of a train being one of the spectacular scenes. Airplanes also figure in the action and the parts are portrayed by a special cast. Also on the bill are a comedy film and motion pictures of world news and happenings.

ALDINE PRESENTS "THE BIG PARADE"

"'The Big Parade' is the "big parade" on the screen of Loew's Aldine this week. Superlative language has been spilled galore about the merits of this Laurence Stallings picture of the World War theme and it is unnecessary to repeat it. Be content with the statement that John Gilbert, Karl Dane, Tom O'Brien, as three buddies in the A. E. F., still arouse as much enthusiasm as when we first became acquainted with their delineation of humor, heroism and glory. Differing from the big war picture filed at the time of the conflict, "The Big Parade" gives a view of the same period, a view mellowed and softened by retrospect unobscured by harshness of sentiment that prevailed when our boys were "over there." Lest you may have forgotten, the story, in brief, reveals the fighting trio in billets and on the field. In the billets there is comedy and romance. In the field there is drama and action that thrills. And there is a little French girl, Melisande, played by Renee Adoree, and after the war is over Jack Gilbert goes back to claim her. A simple story in a big setting. "The Big Parade" is presented with appropriate musical accompaniment and effects.

CHILLY SAUCE

By CHILLY DOYLE

Staff Correspondent

NEW YORK, Aug. 16.—Baseball players have much in common in relation to ideas. But it is a fact that there is little fraternizing between teams when they are on the same train. The big four officials had no malice aforethought when they put the dining car between the Pirate and Cardinal cars. Yet the diner was a sort of a deadline for the athletes. There was no visiting on the long journey from St. Louis to Albany.

THE players mingled and pushed each other when they stepped outside to get fresh air at several points along the line. The Pirate sleeper and the dining car developed kinks and were taken off the train at Buffalo. This wait gave the players a chance to wander about the way-station. [illegible] of the Pirates had to dress quickly and make their car while others scampered from the diner.

GROVER ALEXANDER, one of the greatest pitchers the game has produced, is a "card" on and off the field. There is no ostentation about the big country boy from Nebraska. He is still the big country boy from Nebraska. No story was [illegible] hundred of [illegible] that did justice to Alexander [illegible] the last game of the World's Series. That Alexander gave [illegible] purest ray [illegible] has just become known. One of the players was telling the story yesterday.

MANY of you will recall that Alexander [illegible] the mound with the bases [illegible] one run needed [illegible] Lazzeri at bat. Aleck came all the way from the far-off bullpen [illegible] knocker out [illegible] cap on the back of his head with the visor up. And all the while the breathless throng awaited him.

THE bullpen at the Yankee Stadium during the World's Series was [illegible] of the playing field. Alexander, it seems, told [illegible] himself in readiness [illegible] although Aleck had [illegible] the bases on the previous day. Hornsby knew that the veteran was [illegible] up as Haines filled up the bases with two out. Jess was bothered with a bad finger and Hornsby did not want to take any chances, so he stopped play to summon the great veteran.

ALECK took his own time in reaching the mound. When he arrived he found five of his brother Redbirds grouped about and ready for a consultation. Aleck slouched into the center of the group, blinked as he saw a runner on each base and then drawled:

"Well, fellers, it looks as if there's no more room for anybody on the bases, so I guess Aleck will have to take care of this guy." And Push 'Em Up Tony missed a third strike.

JUST A-THINKIN'

ABOUT FOOTBALL SEASON

Dr. John Bain (Jock) Sutherland, Pitt football coach, snapped at the Schenley Park golf course yesterday, as he stood deep in thought before teeing off for a round of golf. Jock's mind is pretty much on football already. His squad leaves for Camp Hamilton September 4—less than three weeks hence.

BOBBY RICHARDSON STOPS GENE BAKER

JOHNSTOWN, PA., Aug. 16.—(AP.)—Bobby Richardson of Portage knocked out Gene Baker of Johnstown in the fifth round of a scheduled 10-round bout at the Point Stadium here last night. Richardson finished Baker with two vicious rights to the chin. The weights were announced as, Richardson, 162½ pounds, and Baker, 172.

The referee stopped the semi-windup between Walter Dickerson of California, Pa., and Joey LaGrey of Johnstown, in the sixth round and disqualified both scrappers for alleged stalling.

In the second bout, Linn Jordan of Johnstown won the decision of both judges over Ray Shafer of Pittsburgh. Jay Wilkinson of Nanty-Glo and Red Cuzzolino of Altoona fought a six-round draw in the opening bout.

TIGER FLOWERS BOXES JOCK MALONE TONIGHT

SEATTLE, Wash., Aug. 16.—(AP.)—Tiger Flowers, former middleweight champion, and Joe Anderson, Covington, Ky., have been matched for a 10-round bout September 1 in Madison Square Garden, it was announced today by Walk Miller, Flowers' manager.

Miller also said he signed Jimmy Byrne, Kentucky heavyweight, for 10 rounds on the same card with any opponent selected by Matchmaker Jess McMahon. Flowers and Miller will leave for New York after the Flowers-Jock Malone fight here tonight.

VAVRA AND POWELL HURL NO-HIT GAMES

Ernie Vavra, former Turtle Creek Union High slab star, now with the Greensburg club of the Pennsylvania League, hurled a no-hit, no-run game against Herminie at Greensburg last evening. The game was won by Greensburg, 8-0. The second no-hit game of the day was turned in by Pins Powell, of the Iroquois club of East Liberty. The F. J. Cook team was a 2-0 victim.

GOLFERS "BAG" BALLS

AKRON, O., Aug. 16.—(AP.)—Golfers tried to "bag" not "hole" golf balls here yesterday. But while they sometimes have exceptional good fortune in sinking the ball in a cup less than five inches in diameter, they failed to drive the ball yesterday into a bag 12 feet in width.

Cubs, Giants, Bucs in Test

AFTER a day of idleness, marked only by the Boston Braves' 12-11 victory in 10 innings over Philadelphia, interest in the major league races centered today on the Pittsburgh-New York series, opening at the Polo Grounds.

The Giants are only one game out of third place. The team has won 14 out of its last 16 games, 12 of which were played on the road. The pitching staff has rounded into long-expected form and the Giant attack apparently has started to function properly. The Pirates, five full games out of first place, but only three games ahead of the Giants, will be put to a stiff test in the series.

While the Giants and Pirates are slashing away in New York the Chicago Cubs will be lined up against the Brooklyn Dodgers, who have been woefully weak against the Bruins all season. Unless Brooklyn completely reverses its previous form the Cubs are likely to enhance their hold on first place. McCarthy's club has won 13 out of 15 games against the Robins.

With the Washington Senators disposed of, the New York Yankees began their final Western trip, meeting first the White Sox in Chicago. Miller Huggins' club has a 13-game lead in first place, a lead too great for any rival to hope to overcome.

PAIRINGS ANNOUNCED FOR SANDLOT TOURNEY

Pairings for the fifth round of the Class A elimination series were made yesterday at a meeting of the Greater Pittsburgh Baseball Commission, the drawings bringing together Immaculate Heart and the Tri-Boro Travelers and the New Eagle club and the Homestead Aces. Both games will be played Thursday.

ESPINOSA LEADS PROS

CHICAGO, Aug. 16.—(AP.)—Al Espinosa will head the Illinois delegation to the annual professional golf tournament in Dallas next month. The Illinois Golf Club pro yesterday shot 147 to lead the seven qualifiers allotted Illinois. The others were Jock Hutchison, Eddie Murphy, James Foulis, Jr., James F. Carberry, Bob McDonald and Bob Stupple.

SOCCER

by TOM BIRKS

Carnegie fans are interested in what Manager Balcarini's lineup is going to be this year to get an idea of the National amateur championship team's chances for repeating and being entered in the Olympic games of next year. Heidelberg is keeping such matters secret.

It is not thought the backfield will be altered. Reports have it, however, that Fagan is going to Detroit, breaking up the famous trio of Courtley, Fagan and Strachan. Armstrong Patterson was sweet on the boy, but it is hard to credit the rumor.

It is in the air that Mike Rookie, former Curry star, is job hunting. Evidently he won't return to Cleveland. Mike sure misses Johnny Jaap—that was a wonderful combination with Mike doing the shooting and Johnny the footwork.

Good crowds and a small league are anticipated in the Chartiers Valley loop, which has one meeting under its belt, with more to come. It should be helped by the passing of the Keystone. Cecil [illegible] should draw well.

After their fine season last year, expect that the German Sport Club will play a prominent part in soccer this year. Meisenberg has a team good enough to cop a couple of title trophies. They overplayed the scientific end of the game last year and need more offensive.

The entrance of Westinghouse into the International League last evening sets at rest all chances for the Pittsburgh American Soccer League becoming a 10-club loop. This also means that the Pittsburgh Internationals will have to hunt another loop to play with this season.

The International League will be a six-club affair. Pat Duffy and Harry Atherell evidently are going to try to put the loop over big. There is a wonderful opportunity for the league, and it should be a drawing proposition.

Should the Chartiers Valley league organize at its next meeting on Friday that will about complete all reorganization plans in the district, that is, figuring the Scottish Clan is ready to go.

COMMISSION REFUSES TO PASS CALLAHAN

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 16.—(AP.)—Indefinite postponement of the bout between Sergt. Sammy Baker and Mushy Callahan, junior welterweight champion, scheduled for August 23, was in prospect today after a state athletic commission physician had declared the titleholder was not in condition for the fight.

Dr. Lloyd Mace, commission physician, said Callahan had 11 boils under his arms and several cold sores on his lip.

He advised the champion to stay out of the ring for 30 days since the disorder would be intensified by training and he would be handicapped seriously were he to engage in a bout.

Dick Donald, promoter, said he questioned whether Callahan's condition were as serious as had been said and that he believed a few days' layoff from training would be sufficient. Donald's personal physician will examine Callahan to determine whether the champion can continue his preparations for his fight with the Mitchel Field soldier.

ELIMINATIONS ON TODAY IN WOMEN'S TOURNAMENT

LAKE GENEVA, WIS., Aug. 16.—(AP.)—Golfers from all parts of the country except the East were among the 32 qualified to enter the first match round today for the women's Western golf championship at the Lake Geneva country club.

Acting as pathfinder, as in the medal round, was Dorothy Page of Madison, Wis., defending champion, who took 88 in medal play. She was matched with Annie Webster of Fort Leavenworth, Kan., who had an 87. Next came Mrs. O. S. Hill of Kansas City, runner-up last year, paired with Mrs. Elain Rosenthal Rienhart of Dallas, a former titleholder, who scored the worst round in years with a 91 in qualifying.

Frances Hadfield of Milwaukee, who, with Virginia Vanwie of Chicago, tied for medalist with an 80, one under par, had as opponent Elizabeth Duini of Indianapolis, who took 88 in qualifying. Miss Vanwie took on Mrs. Perry Fiske of Dekalb, Ill., once champion, who also had 88 yesterday.

ACOSTA, BEANED, OUT FOR YEAR

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Aug. 16.—(AP.)—Louisville's American Association baseball club has definitely lost the services for the remainder of the season of Baldomero (Merit) Acosta, outfielder, Dr. George C. Leachman announced today.

The physician has attended the player since he was struck in the head at bat in a game here yesterday between the Colonels and Minneapolis. Pat Malone was hurling for the Millers.

"Acosta is rational and his condition today is very satisfactory," Dr. Leachman declared. He declined, however, to predict whether the Cuban would recover. The physician pointed out that Acosta's condition is serious and said that only time would tell whether he would return to normal. His injury was described as a stellate fracture of the skull.

Acosta was struck at the base of the right ear by a fast breaking curve ball. The accident, according to players and officials, was unavoidable. Malone was visibly affected by the accident and asked to be removed from the pitcher's box.

The injured player has been a member of the Louisville team since 1919. He is the son of Caldomero Acosta, prominent Cuban politician. Acosta joined the Washington Senators in 1913 when 16 years old, the youngest ball player ever to enter the major leagues. Since that time he has played with Philadelphia, Baltimore and New Orleans.

After joining the Louisville club, Acosta married Miss Nancy Lee Bennet of Louisville. He has a son, James Merito Acosta, six months old.

THROUGH the SPORT LENS by HAVEY BOYLE

A TRUSTED spy reports getting a letter from Kiki Cuyler, in which the storm center of recent Pirate troubles, says: "It looks as if I'm going to ride the oak for the balance of the season." This seems to be a shrewd observation by the outfielder. The tip-off came when Donie Bush did not use him as a pinch-hitter in the final New York game here. Added proof of Bush's determination came in the St. Louis series when a few occasions to use Cuyler were coldly passed up by the Pirate manager.

HAVEY BOYLE

One pleasant thing about the Cuyler trouble is that it has given us a lively topic over the last ten days. It also helped to waken readers from a certain lethargy. Many have been the letters received on the Cuyler affair. Most of them are discarded because they are repetitions of fan sentiment for the talented Cuyler.

WHAT bothers one reader, however, even more than the Cuyler affair, is the picture of the writer which appears here daily. Sagaciously, the reader suggests that since so far no view showing only the back of the head has been shown this sort of pose should be tried out. We are more than willing.

The correspondent, by the way, has given "the artist's impression" of what the rear view would look like. It is not very flattering. It suggests, somehow, the rear view of a pedagogue of New England during the administration of President Arthur.

One way for the readers to overcome the current difficulty is to clip out the picture before reading the column. After clipping it out, fold neatly and toss it in the nearest ashcan, then go on with the story. We knew when the picture was inserted there would be complaints.

JOHN M'GARVEY, who is going to operate a special train to the Dempsey-Tunney bout, asks that excursionists to the bout be told about his plan. McGarvey has arranged to get fight tickets and furnish a train which will serve as a home for the fans during their stay in Chicago. He says that by going on this train fans will need not bother about hotel accommodations. In the event of rain postponing the bout the fans will sleep in their Pullman berths. He suggests that Western Pennsylvania fans interested in his venture get in touch with him at Motor Square Garden, Pittsburgh. Present indications are that

BUCS HOPE TO START DRIVE TO CREST

By CHARLES J. DOYLE,
Staff Correspondent.

NEW YORK, Aug. 16.—The Pirates invaved New York today calling for four battles with the Giants. The traditional enemy has not been making much of a racket this season; that is, the Giants were in the "also ran" class until they started to strut their stuff on their recent western trip. McGraw and his troopers ran rather wild through the West and they have been unbeatable since returning home.

As a result of their late drive the Polo Grounders are within one game of the third-place Cardinals and just three games away from the Pirates, who are holding down the runner-up position. The Giants are eight games out of first place. Yet they seem to think they have more than an outsider's chance to reach the peak, although they would have to show a dizzling pace to reach the crest.

CUBS MEET DODGERS.

As the Pirates tangle with the Giants in Manhattan the Cubs will be locked with the Dodgers over in the Flatbush. Although the Robins have been a poor club this season, especially in front of the Chicago opposition, it may be that the laws of compensation will work in the impending jousts. The Dodgers are due to make the Bears stumble and if they do their feat will be applauded by the other three contenders.

In view of the general mixup the baseball of Greater New York over the next four afternoons should be heavy with aggressiveness and excitement. Up in Boston, the Cardinals will be mixing with the Braves. There will be only minor interest in the Red-Philly series in Quakertown.

The Pirates reached New York in fine shape from St. Louis, although the last five or six hours of the journey became somewhat tiresome. The Freebooters traveled for something like 27 hours after hustling to their special train in St. Louis. Nevertheless, they arrived at the metropolis in time to enjoy a good night's sleep and they were very thankful for that.

HURLERS IN TOP FORM.

The opening battle between the Pirates and Giants is likely to show Victor Aldridge and Fred Fitzsimmons on the mound. In a large majority of cases, Aldridge is a very hard hurler for the McGrawmen to solve, so that the Pirates are banking quite heavily on Firpo.

Manager Bush expects to have his star slab foursome ready to shoot at the Giants. And if Aldridge, Hill, Meadows and Kremer can stay close to the stride they displayed against the Redbirds in four consecutive games, well, the Giants are in for some annoying episodes. Carmen Hill was fatigued to a strained degree after his extra inning joust with the Cards, but the Corry boy appears to have picked up much of his lost strength with the intervening days of rest.

Boxer Wins, Loses in Two Bouts on Same Night

COUNCIL BLUFFS, IA., Aug. 16.—(AP.)—Rufus Miles, boxer from Columbus, Ga., won a fight and lost one here last night.

Miles knocked out Jack Hayes, local welterweight, in the first round of their scheduled six-round fight.

Then the promoters decided the card would be too short and got another opponent for Miles. Sam Dizalio of Omaha was hustled into fighting clothes and went in the ring, winning a decision after six rounds.

IRONS KEYS TO EXPERT GOLF

TIPS GIVEN BY TOM ARMOUR

By TOMMY ARMOUR.
U. S. and Canadian Open Golf Champion.

HAVING dealt in the last article with the importance of footwork in wooden club playing I will tell how much more important it is in iron playing. Iron playing is usually the basis from which golfers are graduated. It is very seldom that you ever find a fine iron player who is not a good golfer. His ability to hit the ball approximately straight with an iron will always get him into a scoring position.

TOMMY ARMOUR

Let us take the greatest iron player of all times, Harry Vardon. His uncanny ability with all iron clubs made him the most feared, greatest and most mechanical player the golf world has ever seen. It is safe to say that over a period of years Vardo missed fewer strokes than any other man.

What was his secret? Nothing but his footwork. He used his feet in the same way for 20 years. He had a marvelous pair of legs. They were strong and supple, and they functioned whether tired or strong because he trained them that way and because he [illegible] consciously knew that if his weight transference, his pivots, his placement of feet were correct, his margin of error would be reduced to a minimum. The tremendous power he had in playing all shots with such apparent lack of effort was totally due to the footwork pulling him into a position to hit the ball properly.

POSITION MUST BE RIGHT.

When anyone's body is in the right position the effort is practically unnoticeable. It appears like a gentle sweep instead of a terrific punch which is really there. It also permits, through this apparently effortless movement, the ability to concentrate on the line which the slugger merely hopes for.

The man who hits from a proper position knows that the ball will fly in a certain direction. Relieved of mental anxiety of the result of the stroke, he can give full concentration to the manner of hitting.

Another person who exemplifies the results of proper footwork is Bobby Jones. His abnormal amount of footplay has gotten for him the power that is excelled by none and equaled by few. The range that Jones has with each different club is one of the most amazing things in my golfing experience. He can vary his length with any iron club 30, 40, 50 and 60 yards.

Under extreme pressure he can take his most confident club and stretch it to the length of the club he probably should have used. Meaning that if his No. 3 iron should have been played, he could take a No. 4 and without any more apparent effort knock the ball just as far. This is most entirely due to footwork. His transference of weight is such that at the moment of impact he can put every ounce of power into the shot.

There are others—near-great golfers, whose names it would be impolitic to mention—whose claim to real greatness is barred by the limited use of the feet. They work on restricted pivots and occasionally during moments of great stress, their artificial methods of striking the ball go wrong, and the result is their chance has also gone.

We Want Bill Johnston!

By HARRY KECK, Sports Editor

LITTLE BILL JOHNSTON refuses to be counted out of a position on the United States Davis Cup team this year. He says he will come East from California in time to play and doesn't have to compete in the trials. Well spoken, gritty Bill! You've been too good a "money player" for your Uncle Samuel in recent years to be counted out without at least one more year of competition. You and Bill Tilden still are our best bets.

OUR best doubles combination in the Davis Cup play appears to be Tilden and Francis Hunter. They team up well and should constitute a tough hurdle for the French team to take. Doubles play never has been our forte and therefore always is a problem. It would seem that, in view of their experience together, the Tilden-Hunter duo is the answer to the anguished prayers of the tennis devotees.

WORD comes to us from an inside source that Kiki Cuyler feels he is through as a Pirate unless the hue and cry over his fining soon subsides. He is "riding" the bench and is likely to be kept there until the hullabaloo dies down, and, if it continues, he may finish the season just where he is. Thus it would seem that his very supporters are doing him the most harm. It is always so with friends. They kill us with kindness, and, as often as not their efforts to make our path an easy one have just the opposite effect. The best solution for the Cuyler-Bush controversy, in our opinion, would be to have a mutual friend shunt the pair into a room and then gracefully retire. Inside of five minutes, manager and player could talk out their troubles and forgive and forget and start all over again. But continued crystallization of public opinion behind either the manager or the player will tend only to widen the gap.

IN this connection, there comes to hand a letter from a feminine reader in Brookville, Pa., one Syril B. Hough, who says her baseball hysteria tendencies have been calmed somewhat by our article of last Friday anent the Cuyler case. She writes in part as follows:

"I desire to speak a word of praise regarding your article which appeared in the Sun-Telegraph entitled 'I Do Not Choose.' Would that other sports writers gave the public more articles of that type instead of those which only tend to agitate the too easily excited fans.

"Your very sensible view of this particular case has impressed on my mind the fact that I have been taking my baseball too seriously. Yes, certainly, I have formed an opinion, too. My opinion regarding the participants in this argument was formed the first game I saw this season, and a woman's mind is hard to change; however, if heretofore I have been a radical, 'I Do Not Choose' has cured me."

IT looks as if Jim Maloney will have to go back to the fish business. The Boston heavyweight's collapse against George Godfrey in the first round at Philadelphia last night, coming on the heels of his knockout by Jack Sharkey a few months back, just about completes the job of making a bush league fighter out of Jim. Sharkey beat Godfrey less than a year ago and then went on to win over Harry Wills, and kept going until he failed against Dempsey. Maloney looked like a set-up against Sharkey, and the result made the latter size up as a standout to win over Dempsey, in view of the latter's pitiful showing against Gene Tunney last fall. However, the Maloney-Godfrey bout now comes along and discounts Sharkey's victory over Maloney, and poor Jim is completely lost in the heavyweight merry-go-round.

HOMEWOOD RISKS LEAD

In order to hold first in the County League, the Homewood team must defeat the Bellevue team this evening at Homewood. Carl Stewart, former Homewood pitcher, will be Bellevue's selection, while Homewood will depend upon Jimmy Ukrinsko.

Barring Fouls, Fugazy Picks Tunney to Beat Dempsey

NEW YORK, Aug. 16—(UP.)—Humbert Fugazy, Brooklyn fight promoter, who offered Gene Tunney $500,000 for a title match, thinks the heavyweight champion will defeat Jack Dempsey in the fight at Chicago September 22.

"Tunney will be a far more confident fighter than he was at Philadelphia," Fugazy said. "I think Dempsey's fight with Sharkey will make him a better man than he was at Philadelphia, but Tunney, too, will be a vastly improved fighter."

Fugazy added his prediction "barred fouls."

PAULINO ESCAPES SUSPENSION

NEW YORK, Aug. 16.—(AP.)—Contrary to its usual procedure, the New York State Athletic Commission today announced that Paulino Uzcudun, Spanish heavyweight, will not be suspended as a result of losing on a foul to Jack Delaney in the seventh round of their match at the Yankee Stadium last Thursday.

The decision "speaks for itself," Chairman James A. Farley said, indicating that the commission did not believe that Paulino's offense was sufficient to have warranted disqualification. Suspensions of at least 30 days usually are handed to fighters who lose on a foul.

BOBBY JONES AT SCENE OF AMATEUR TOURNEY

MINNEAPOLIS, Aug. 16.—(UP.)—In accordance with his wishes, Bobby Jones of Atlanta, Ga., British open golf champion, quietly arrived here today without the pretentious reception Twin Cities golf fans intended to accord him.

The peer of golfers was scheduled to arrive here next Thursday, but he defeated plans of his supporters in Atlanta to give him a rousing send-off and plans here for a noisy demonstration upon his arrival.

Jones informed Minikhada Club officials recently that when he arrived he intended to concentrate on golf. There are to be no dinners or banquets in his honor, he said.

NABHOLTZ SCORES ACE IN IRISH OPEN EVENT

DUBLIN, Aug. 15—(UP.)—Larry Nabholtz, American professional, played the short seventh in one here today in the opening round of the Irish open golf championship on the links of the Portmarnock club. Nabholtz shot 77 and W. N. Nolan of Portmarnock was leading with 72. Another 18 holes will be played tomorrow after which the 60 better scorers will play 36 holes for the championship.

WOMEN VIE FOR CITY TITLE

By VERNON A. SWARTSFAGER.

FAVORITES advanced in the first round of match play in the women's city golf championship played over the municipal links at Schenley Park today.

In the upper bracket, Mrs. L. G. Riley of the Edgewood Country Club, defending champion, Mrs. Blair, Mrs. U. W. St. John and Mrs. Boris Robinoff advanced easily.

Miss E. Lucille Bejack, Miss Gould, Mrs. Kerr, the "grandmother golfer" of Schenley, and Mrs. Albert McBride, wife of the Schenley professional, went into the second round of the lower eight.

In the quarter-final tomorrow Mrs. Riley clashes with Mrs. Blair and Mrs. St. John battles Mrs. Robinoff in the upper bracket and Miss Bejack engages Miss Gould, and Mrs. Kerr opposes Mrs. McBride in the lower bracket.

In going through to the second round Mrs. Riley disposed of Miss Kelleher by 7 an 6; Mrs. Blair took over Miss Boschert, 4 and 2; Mrs. St. John eliminated Mrs. Curry, 2 and 1; Mrs. Robinoff put out Mrs. Zinsmeister, 8 and 7; Miss Bejack trumped Miss Miller, 7 and 6; Miss Gould defeated Mrs. Ed. Lauer, 5 and 4; Mrs. Kerr nosed out Miss Irene Selznick, 2 and 1; and Mrs. McBride won over Mrs. W. J. Lauerm, 5 and 3.

SEMI-FINALS TOMORROW.

The favorites to win tomorrow for the semi-final round appear to be Mrs. Riley and Mrs. St. John in the upper bracket and Mrs. McBride and Miss Bejack in the lower.

In the second flight Mrs. Long defeated Mrs. Brinkman, 4 and 2; Mrs. Wallerstedt put out Mrs. Curtis, 5 and 4; Mrs. Caplan eliminated Mrs. Headlee, 3 and 2; Mrs. Kennedy tripped Mrs. Galvin, 5 and 3; Mrs. Evans defeated Mrs. Harnack, 6 and 4; Mrs. Eyer downed Miss Hughes, 3 and 2; Mrs. Broido tripped Miss Griffith, 8 and 7; and Mrs. H. Kenley won over Mrs. Meyers, 4 and 3.

Pairings for tomorrow in the second division follow: Mrs. Long and Mrs. Wallerstedt; Mrs. Caplan and Mrs. Kennedy; Mrs. Evans and Mrs. Eyer, Mrs. Broido and Mrs. Kenley.

AERO CLUB AT OAKMONT.

The Aero Club of Pittsburgh took a flying round over the very difficult links of the Oakmont Country Club today. All of the aviators and their guests, accompanied by Ben and Fred Loeffler, district professionals; Dutch Loeffler, Oakmont's famous greenkeeper, and Charley Rowe, home-course king, got away to an early start, although they kept on the co until night-fall shut down the curtain. A regular party will follow the golf this evening.

KIWANIANS AT AMBRIDGE.

The Kiwanians of the district gathered early this morning at the Ambridge Country Club for the annual Inter-Club tournament of the Middle Western Division of the organization. The clubs competed not only for a team or club prize, but also for many individual prizes, including that of Kiwanian golf champion on this neck of the woods. There also were other athletic events. Luncheon and dinner with an elaborate entertainment program this evening, are part of the day's card.

DAMON RUNYON SAYS

DAMON RUNYON

NEW YORK, Aug. 16.—My faithful operatives in the far-off Pampas grass of the Argentine Republic report to me that they have come upon another specie of the wild bull thereof, who has some of the earmarks of the original exhibit, Senor Luis Angel Firpo. They tell me that the new wild bull is snorting around under the name of Victor Campolo.

Also they say he is being hotly pursued by all the managerial gauchos of the Argentine, while many American managers are likewise tossing long range lassos at him in the form of alluring cablegrams promising to take 33 1-3 per cent of his dough, if any, as soon as he comes to this country.

VICTOR CAMPOLO is a large strong young man who has knocked off Signor Erminio Spalla, of Italy, and Migual Ferrara, of the Argentine, among others, these acts commending him to the attention of American managers. Spalla appeared in this country some time ago, figured in a bout with Mr. Gene Tunney before he became champion of the world, and Miguel Ferrara has also been seen here.

THUS our local managers had something of a line on the ability of Victor Campolo. Spalla was a pretty fair fighter. In his bout with Mr. Tunney it looked for a few minutes as if the Italian was going to make Mr. Tunney hop right out of the ring. By the way, if anyone ever tells you that Mr. Tunney was never been knocked down, just refer them to the Spalla matter.

IN THE end Spalla withdrew with a slightly damaged eye. I say withdrew because he seemed most reluctant to continue. Perhaps it was just as well for Mr. Tunney.

Miguel Ferrara was for a short time one of the most promising heavyweights of the day. He was brought to America by Senor Angel Firpo as a sparring partner, and he was called "Little Firpo." Ferrara displayed a terrific punch in the few battles he had around New York, but he also exhibited a tendency toward fat, and a somewhat porus chin. Mr. Tommy Purey was managing Joe Silvani, an Italian youngster, at the time, and Ferrara and Silvani had a couple of heated disputes with the old everlasts.

THEN Ferrara went back to the Argentine and little more was heard of him, though it seems he became one of the best heavies in his homeland, whatever that may mean, until Victor Campolo came along. Incidentally, Campolo has been in America. He boxed in Boston in the international amateur tournament as a member of the South American team, though few remember just how he looked.

Now he is the big boy of the Argentine, and the promoters down there are sending to America for opponents for him, with Mr. Will McCarney, the famous Ol' Cle' Man of Fistiana, looking after their interests on this end. Mr. Will McCarney offered Knute Hansen, the Melancholy Dane, $6,000 to go to the Argentine to meet Campolo, the coin to first be deposited in this country, but Knute's managers, the Messrs. Woodman and Lawrence, asked $10,000, so that was that.

FOR all I know, Victor Campolo may be a better fighter than Senor Luis Angel Firpo, but I am willing to bet that he is no Firpo in showmanship, or color. There will never be another exactly like the old Wild Bull of the Pampas.

I WILL allow that he was just a big clumsy slugger, but he contributed to fistiana several of its greatest thrills. I loved to see the Wild Bull fight, if only for the bang I got out of him just before the opening bell, when he would grab the ring ropes and lunge back and forth in his corner until it looked as if he was trying to tear the ring down.

THE night he knocked, or shoved Jack Dempsey out of the ring at the Polo Grounds, he might have been heavyweight champion of the world with a nimble-witted second in his corner. It was that night that will always be associated in my memory with a most disastrous flier in high finance on my part.

I had viewed Senor Luis Angel Firpo in most of his battles in this country, and I knew he had a prodigious right-hand punch. Furthermore, it dawned upon me, after some study of his crude pugilistic manner and method, that he had one peculiar trick. He would not fall for a feint. If a man feinted at him ever so slightly, Senor Firpo would let fly with that right hand.

HE reminded me of a nervous hunter standing in the woods with a loaded gun, who fires at any movement in the underbrush.

Now I also knew, as everyone else knew who had ever seen Dempsey, that one of the opening manifestations of the Manassa Man Mauler in battle was a feint with his head. He would walk into an opponent weaving slightly with the idea of getting said opponent to jab at his bean with a left.

THINKS I to myself, thinks I, if Dempsey bobs at Senor Firpo, old Firpo will let fly with that right hand and ask no questions, and it is an even money chance that he will connect with Dempsey's chin, and if he connects with Dempsey's chin it will be "Katherine Bar the Door."

I knew there was no possibility of Senor Firpo jabbing at Dempsey with his left, because Senor Firpo left his left in the Argentine when he sailed away for America. He never had but one hand while he was in these parts.

ANYWAY, I interested a friend in my theory, and between us we compiled a marvelous financial coup. We invested our savings in the proposition that Senor Firpo would knock Dempsey out, beginning our investment on the first round at odds of as high as 10 to 1 and continuing it on up to the fifth. We did not think there would be any use of investing in Senor Firpo after the fifth.

Of course, we realized that it is very wrong to gamble on fights, but we did not regard this as a gamble. We felt that it was a sound investment if Dempsey would only bob his noggin at Senor Firpo and thus alarm Senor Firpo into firing with his right. We felt Senor Firpo was accustomed to the ambuscades of man and beast in the tall grass of the Argentine, and would know just what to do.

AS I RECALL the incident now, we stood to garner dividends of about $26,000 on our investment, if the thing came off in the first round, though not quite so much after that, and our outlay was well inside three figures.

And our calculations were quite O. K. Coakley up to a certain point. Dempsey came out and feinted at Senor Firpo with his noodle, per specifications, and Senor Firpo banged away with his noble right, connecting with Dempsey's head.

But the shot was a trifle high. It was above the chin of the Manassa Man Mauler, and though it crippled his brain for a few seconds, it did not put him to sleep. It knocked me off my ringside chair, however, and I afterwards learned that it blew my business associate half way out of the Polo Grounds.

BUT, alas, and alack, it did us no good. An inch lower, and everything would have been hotsy-totsy for us. However, perhaps it was just as well that things went as they did, for it taught us a great moral lesson. It taught us never to attempt to get rich quick through the medium of pugilistic encounters, especially when Jack Dempsey was involved.

Negro Stops Jim Maloney

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 16.—(AP.)—The shadow of George Godfrey, giant Negro fighter of Leiperville, Pa., loomed large on the pugilistic horizon today, while Jim Maloney, Boston heavyweight, slipped farther back in the ranks of those seeking the championship crown.

Godfrey dropped the Boston Strong Boy for the fatal count last night after 1 minute 25 seconds of fighting. Maloney landed several blows to head and body, but they did not stop the 225-pound Godfrey as he waded in with fists flying. Maloney was driven to the ropes and as Godfrey shifted he sent a crushing left hook to the Bostonian's jaw. Maloney pitched headlong to the canvas and still was unconscious several minutes after he had been counted out.

Despite his 13 successive knockouts of lesser lights, Godfrey was almost an unknown quantity to local fans, and his victory was a blow to bettors, many of whom had their money on Maloney.

Tony Ross, Carnegie junior-welterweight, meets Kewpie Trimble of East Chicago in a 10-round bout at Fort Harrison, Ind., tonight.

MORRISON STILL SUSPENDED

Barney Dreyfuss, president of the Pittsburgh baseball club, this morning denied a report emanating from Louisville that the Pirates have asked Johnny Morrison, suspended righthander, to rejoin the club in New York for the series with the Giants, which opens today.

"The Pittsburgh club has made no overtures to Morrison and has no intention of doing so," Mr. Dreyfuss said in denying the report.

Morrison left the team without leave during their recent home stand and was immediately suspended.

Leo P. Flynn Writes Of Dempsey's 'Comeback'

The real inside story of the "comeback" of Jack Dempsey in his bout with Jack Sharkey, which earned him the right to fight Gene Tunney again for the heavyweight championship, has just been written by Leo P. Flynn, veteran manager and trainer of boxers and the new pilot of the former titleholder.

It is a real gripping narrative, full of meaty stuff for fight fans. It goes back 11 years to the time Flynn regarded Dempsey as a "palooka" and refused a chance to add him to his large stable, and brings the situation down to the present.

This story will appear exclusively in Pittsburgh in the Sun-Telegraph and the first installment will be published tomorrow. Watch for it. It's a knockout!

SPORT LENS

about 500 fans will go from this section.

THERE will be probably one notable ring retirement resulting from the Tunney-Dempsey affair. It is almost certain that Dempsey will quit the ring if he fails to win over Tunney and it is likely that if Tunney loses Gene will quit the ring for good. The winner, of course, will hardly be allowed to retire. In this day when a championship bout means a financial reward of from a half to three-quarters of a million no man can lightly pass up such an opportunity. Therefore, while the winner of the bout will get set for another big shot next year, the loser, whether it be Tunney or Dempsey, will probably retire from the fistic scene.

TUNNEY has found the heavyweight title to be nothing but a bauble in the sense that the title is believed to bring happiness beyond the financial reward. Chances are that the most forlorn year of Tunney's life is the one extending from his victory to his next meeting with Dempsey. He was a popular fellow when he was only Tunney, but since he acquired the title he has been held up to considerable scorn. New friends he probably suspects while some of his old friends have almost completely deserted him. This is one reason why he is looking forward to the time when he can get out of the racket.

MR. JOE TAGGART of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, one of the best known railroad men in the United States, is going to do himself proud at the coming heavyweight title bout. Mr. Taggart tossed off a check for $4,400 for 110 seats for the big affair. We had heard rumors of there being this much money in the world, but until we saw Mr. Taggart put on his act we were skeptical.

ABOUT this time in the writing of the column, Jimmy Mailboy brings in another letter on the Cuyler affair. This time a girl of 16 wishes to express a little indignation over the way Cuyler has been treated. It is not strange that Cuyler has the women's vote. He has the finest set of teeth in either major league, his hair is black and wavy, his eyes are blue, and his features are even. Alongside these advantages the drawback of Cuyler's incompatibility with the management is nothing.

However, the lady fans who write (and there have been quite a few) are gifted with that womanly intuition which quite often is to be relied upon more than the somber reflections and cold analysis of mere man.

Now we hope Jimmy Mailboy brings no more letters until the column is finished, for we sense that almost too much has been written of the Cuyler affair.

THERE are many worries that a sport writer must carry around with him, but two that do not bother us at all are whether America wins in the Davis cup tennis competition or whether America wins the international polo competition. There was a time when we cried ourself to sleep over these two worries, but we have found that the national honor remains at a high level no matter what happens in these international sporting events.

GREAT heavens, we had just put on our hat and coat when on an adjoining desk were found two letters on the Cuyler affair. Mr. James F. Gallagher, president of the Joint Association of Postal Employes, registers a vote for Cuyler, and we can't ignore another Cuyler vote by "Square Deal," because he writes a great boost incidentally for the sporting staff of this paper.

TWO ways to attract a sport writer's attention is to tell him: "You don't dare print this, you miserable old hound," or "I read your column every day." The first kind, by the way, is always more interesting to the public even if such letters do send chills up and down the spine of the sport writer.

RISE RENEWED ON STOCK MARKET

NEW YORK, Aug. 16.—(AP)—Resumption of the upward price movement in today's stock market was featured by the revival of activity and strength in the railroad shares. Pools, faced with the prospect of easy money rates for some time to come, were again active in stocks of specialties in which favorable developments are believed to be pending, lifting more than a score of issues to record high levels.

Investment buying was still of a cautious character, although the belief prevailed that last week's drastic decline had cleaned out most of the "sore spots" in the market. The day's trade news was rather colorless in character. A drop of 25 cents in steel scrap prices in the Chicago district apparently had little effect on the steel shares. Vanadium Steel was among the new high records.

Concurrent strength of Montgomery Ward and Sears-Roebuck, each of which established a new high record by selling at 71½, revived rumors, repeatedly denied in the past, of a merger of these two mail order companies. Public utilities presented several points of strength, new tops being recorded by American Express, Brooklyn Edison, Engineers Public Service, Manila Electric and Radio Corporation.

The strength of the motors was believed to have been influenced, in part, by the report that the new Ford car would not be in production until early next year, thereby removing fears of competition from that quarter in the next few months. Special buying of Chrysler was associated with the announcement of new models this coming week-end.

Weakness of General Railway Signal was inspired by the announcement of an investigation into the alleged monopoly in the manufacture of automatic signal and train control devices. Eureka Vacuum also was heavy.

COTTON MARKET

NEW YORK, Aug. 16.—The cotton market opened firm today at an advance of 26 to 31 points, in response to firmer Liverpool cables, apprehension of continued showers in the South and increasing complaints of insect damage in the Southwest.

December sold up to 19.74c and March to 19.87c in early trading, or about 20 to 24 points net higher on active months. This rally met considerable selling, and, after initial buying orders had been supplied, prices reacted a few points under realizing. Trading was fairly active at the start, but the volume of business later tapered off somewhat.

FINANCIAL NEWS AND VIEWS

Seminole at 461,923.

Output of the Seminole area for the 24 hours ended 7 a. m. Monday was 461,923 barrels as compared with 503,321 barrels for 24 hours ended 7 a. m. Saturday. The decline is attributed to compliance by operators to the pro-rating agreement limiting the output of the field to 450,000 barrels a day. The reason for the jump to 503,321 barrels on Saturday was due to the opening of the wells in the Bowlegs area in order to determine the extent of proration necessary in that pool.

Postum Deals Discussed.

Reports are current in the Street again that a combination between Canada Dry and Postum Cereal is under discussion. Conflicting reports are that Postum and White Rock may resume negotiations. Canada Dry is said to have derived a large increase in income from its sales of orange concentrate. Postum has entered into a contract with the controlling interest of Richard Hellman, Inc., whereby Postum will purchase the entire business and assets. Common stockholders of Richard Hellman will receive one share of Postum stock for each 3.7 shares of Hellman. The latter is a manufacturer of salad dressings and sauces.

Hill Roads' Prospects.

The new high price levels of the Great Northern and the Northern Pacific are the result of realization that a dividend of $6 a share annually will be inaugurated as soon as decision on the merger is handed down by the Commerce Commission. Not that a favorable decision necessarily is expected; those interested in the rail shares keep their fingers crossed when talking Commission these days. But it is maintained that an increase in dividend will be ordered whether the merger goes through or not. It is further stated that earnings more than warrant a $6 rate and that the indications from Washington of even bigger scope than heretofore expected should influence directors in authorizing distribution.

Mail Order Stocks.

Increased activity in the mail order house stocks, Sears, Roebuck and Montgomery Ward, is predicated on the better prices for farm products. Both stocks were in good demand today. Sears-Roebuck buying being especially urgent at times. The company's success with its new stores has been attracting investment demand for a month or more. In the case of Montgomery Ward it is said that overhead has been greatly reduced this fall and that a 6 per cent profit on sales will be possible for this year. If the company's sales for the balance of the year are the same as the last five months of 1926 and a 6 per cent margin of profit is earned, it would yield a net income equivalent to more than twice the present $4 dividend.

Pittsburgh and West Virginia.

Pittsburgh and West Virginia jumped more than four points today in response to the company's application for permission to take over the Wheeling and Lake Erie. Shares of the latter road, however, did not appear on the board during the first half of the session and it was assumed that present holders of the stock are sitting tight waiting for developments. The real battle in this case is thought to be over at this time, having been fought out last year in the famous "technical" corner which ran Wheeling up about 100 points. The stock bought then is thought to be held by the same purchasers and its sale will probably be made only on the order of the Interstate Commerce Commission and at the "fair price" requested in Pittsburgh and West Virginia's application.

GMO-Chrysler Rumor Again.

Chrysler Motor developed noticeable strength on a revival of rumors that General Motors may absorb the company. Sometime ago the Street heard stories of Pierre du Pont leaving the chairmanship of General Motors to take the chair of the United States Steel board in case of vacancy; this change, if followed out, to bring Alfred P. Sloan, president of General Motors, into the GMO chairmanship, while the vacancy in the presidency was to be filled by Walter P. Chrysler.

STOCKS FIRM, QUIET IN LOCAL MARKET

Standard Sanitary Dips Further

Recent reactionary tendencies noted in Standard Sanitary were evident again today in the local market with the stock selling off sharply on a few odd lot trades. Observers consider, however, that the stock is entitled to some recession in view of the fact that over the past few weeks it had staged a come-back of more than 15 points from the low mark established last spring. Selling at that time forced the price down from around 92 to around 77, the weakness being attributed to the questionable outlook for the building industry which is the chief consumer of Standard's output. Fears of a falling off in building later proved to have been groundless and the stock subsequently began an upward movement which carried it even beyond the earlier high.

Prices were steady to firm in the general list with bids a little more active than yesterday. Arkansas Gas displayed a firm tone and bids were raised a small fraction to bring out stock. Reports have been heard in the street recently that definite information in regard to the Arkansas deal to sell its gas business will be forthcoming shortly, perhaps within a week. Supposition is that Cities Service interests are negotiating for purchase of the company's gas properties. Other fuels were dull in the early market. Lone Star Gas changed hands at a slight fractional advance over the previous close.

Miscellaneous stocks were handled in small volume, but prices were steady. One block of 150 shares Pittsburgh Plate Glass was handled at 230, the price prevailing for several days. An odd lot of Window Glass Machine preferred sold unchanged at 70. Union Steel Castings came out at 35, a [illegible] point from the previous close. Blaw Knox sold again at 75, its best price for the year.

NEW YORK CURB MARKET

NEW YORK, Aug. 16—(AP)—Buying activities were conducted in several issues on the curb exchange today on a large scale. The outstanding feature in this respect was the trading in General Motors new stock on when issued contracts, the volume being much greater than that of Tuesday when 100,000 shares were traded. The movement of the stock on this heavy trading was narrow, extending from 113⅝ to 114¼. Although the stock does not carry the recently declared dividend of $[illegible] on the present shares, the fact that contracts do not carry interest offsets this difference to a great extent, and makes the high price equal to about 228 for the present shares, or over a point above the price prevailing on the stock exchange at the same time.

A good deal of interest was shown in the trading in New York Central new stock, although it did not materially alter its position, selling at 132⅞ to 133⅝.

New high records were made in a number of issues, among them being Cuneo Press, which rose almost 4 points, and Illinois Pipe Line, which advanced 2 points to a new high record. Many of the utilities were influenced by the announcement of consolidations which are expected to be followed by other developments in this group. United Gas Improvement led with an advance of over a point and strength was again shown in Southeastern Power and Mohawk and Hudson.

Amusement issues were also in demand, Universal Pictures making a gain of over 2 points.

There were some weak features, among them being Royal Baking Powder, which dropped 5 points, and Aluminum Company of America, which yielded 2¼ points. Blackstone Valley dropped 3 points. Ford Motor of Canada had an advance of 10 points.

New York Bond Market

NEW YORK, Aug. 16.—(AP.)—Further demand for high grade railway mortgages today lent a firm undertone to prices in the bond market, new peak prices being scattered throughout the list. Convertible liens displayed less activity than in other recent sessions.

Chesapeake Corporation 5s were again quite active a small fraction under their peak price, while a number of such issues as Baltimore and Ohio 5s "D," and Southern Pacific 4½s invaded new high territory. Buying of Rock Island 5s, Hudson and Manhattan 5s, "Soo" 4s and some of the Missouri Pacific liens also was in evidence.

International Telephone 4½s touched 94, a new peak, and Western Union 5s were relatively active. International Paper 6s reached 104⅛ for the first time this year.

Firmness of French bonds featured the foreign department, in which trading was light. French 7s were selling just under their previous high price. United States government securities were quiet but firm.

THE PRODUCE MARKET

Vegetables and fruits were in fairly active demand at the local wholesale produce district today. The markets were steady generally, changes in quotations having been few and trifling. The range of price on watermelons was widened. Potatoes sold at about unchanged prices.

Dairy products strengthened, but prices were not altered. The butter, egg and cheese markets all closed very firm.

Poultry was in fairly strong demand. Supplies were ample, however, and the market held steady without change in quotations.

Carlot supplies were moderate, a total of 329 cars being on track. Arrivals included 3 cars of apples, 5 cabbage, 34 cantaloupes, 1 celery, 7 grapes, 2 lemons, 2 lettuce, 9 onions, 14 oranges, 17 peaches, 14 pears, 1 peas, 5 cucumbers, 29 potatoes, 5 sweet potatoes, 8 watermelons, 1 prunes, and 11 tomatoes.

Hay was in light receipt, 8 cars having arrived in the yards. The hay and grain markets held steady without price change.

CHICAGO BOARD

CHICAGO, Aug. 16.—Reports of heavy rains and floods in parts of Kansas with some sprouting of wheat in shock brought scattered local and commission house buying during the early trading on the Board of Trade today and gave the wheat market a firm undertone. Further frost damage also acted as an incentive to early buyers. Opening unchanged to ¼c higher, wheat moved within narrow limits. Corn was somewhat unsettled, but became firmer later on continued cool weather over the belt. Starting ⅛c lower to ⅜c advance the market later held near to initial figures. Oats were about steady and provisions were firm in line with higher quotations on hogs.

At noon wheat was ½@⅝c higher, corn was up ¼@⅜c, oats were unchanged to ⅛c up and provisions showed 2@10c advance.

SEEK BIDS FOR BRIDGE WORK

Director of Public Works Edward G. Lang announced today he will advertise at once for bids for repairs to the Ellsworth avenue bridge, which is now closed to street car traffic. The emergency ordinance appropriating $70,000 for the work was signed by Mayor Charles H. Kline, at Madison, O., and returned to his office today. Vehicular traffic will be permitted over the bridge until the actual work of ripping up the roadway is started.

Repeat orders for 28,000 tons of pipe received by the Youngstown Sheet and Tube Company from the [illegible] Petroleum Company will enable the company to hold its pipe operations at about 75 per cent of capacity for some time.

Directors of the Commonwealth Power Corporation have authorized issuance and sale of $12,200,000 of 6 per cent cumulative preferred stock, making its total issue $50,000,000, the amount authorized by the certificate of organization. Salient Points of the Play

Trick 2. Declarer plans to play for the establishment of Dummy's Diamonds to obtain the discard of a Spade rather than have Dummy ruff two losing Spades. Should this ruffing be attempted, Declarer would be embarrassed in a later effort to exhaust trumps, especially if those outstanding were found to be unfavorably distributed.

Trick 3. North ducks, finessing against the Jack.

Trick 6. East trumps to prevent a discard by Declarer.

Trick 8. A Diamond trick is established in Dummy upon which Declarer's losing Spade is subsequently discarded.

Mr. Whitehead will answer questions concerning your Bridge problems. Write to him care of this paper, enclosing self-addressed stamped envelope.

Judge Gary an Epoch Making Leader of Mammoth Industry

With the death of Judge E. H. Gary, chairman of the board of directors of the United States Steel Corporation, the country loses its grand old man of industry.

We should like the world to think that Judge Gary was a typical American.

He was born on an Illinois farm 81 years ago. Farm work gave him the robust constitution that was with him to the end. He went through the common schools, studied at Wheaton College, graduated from the University of Chicago's law school. He practiced law in Chicago, became the counsel for the Illinois Steel Company and guided the formation of one of the early combines, the American Steel and Wire Company.

J. P. Morgan noticed him and called him to New York in 1898 to found the Federal Steel Company, another combine. Three years later, in 1901, Morgan gave Gary the money to establish the daddy of them all, the United States Steel Corporation, then spoken of with hushed breath as ''a billion dollar corporation.''

When Judge Gary died it was something more than a two and a half billion dollar corporation, all built up out of earnings. It was done without mulcting the public or crushing competitors. Indeed, when the Federal government started its dissolution suit against the Steel Corporation 15 years ago, it could not prove that any complaint had been made to the prosecution by any competitor, customer or employe of United States Steel as to its methods, prices or treatment in business.

The dissolution suit failed. Judge Gary continued to organize the steel industry on a basis of constructive co-operation. ales of stock to his workers were the beginning of employe ship in the country. He successfully fought the steel strike 9, but in 1923 he yielded to President Harding's request for an eight-hour day and gave the men their old 12-hour wages for eight hours' work. Today, steel wages, the Department of Labor tells us, are 30 per cent higher than the average wages in manufacturing industries.

Judge Gary was a public-spirited citizen. He was one of the active members of the Committee of One Thousand for law enforcement. He was the founder of the National Crime Commission. He said that he was glad that the United States was not in the League of Nations, where a majority of the other nations could vote to send our boys abroad to bloody battles. He and Mrs. Gary were the quiet contributors to every good cause.

It would be hard to name a career of wider and more useful accomplishment. To his widow and his children go the sympathy of the country, which with them mourns the loss of one of its first citizens.

The Higher the Building The Better For the City

This nation is developing ITS OWN ARCHITECTURE, something new in the world, magnificent palaces of steel, stone and glass, shooting toward the skies. Such buildings, with "set backs" at intervals, guaranteeing air and sunlight, are the ideal modern construction.

AND NOTHING SHOULD BE DONE TO KEEP AMERICAN BUILDING AND ARCHITECTURAL GENIUS FROM GOING TO THE LIMIT OF ITS POWER.

Pittsburgh has officially taken a stand for higher buildings. By unanimous vote of the nine members of City Council an ordinance was sent to Mayor Charles H. Kline for consideration, permitting the erection of buildings 425 foot high. This bill the Mayor has signed and thus adding Pittsburgh to the progressive cities that already had declared for tall buildings. The zoning law had limited the heighth to 265 feet.

Constantly you hear objection to "tall buildings," and often these objections come from dubious quarters.

Schemers that want to force the city to spread out, whereas business TENDS CONSTANTLY TOWARD CONCENTRATION, fight against tall buildings, and thus injure the city.

Suburbs should be reserved for residences, and for shops that supply suburban residences.

The HEART of a great city should be devoted to buildings, tall as possible, in proportion to the area of the foundation.

Convenience in modern business demands CONCENTRATION and condensation of business. If the great skyscrapers in the downtown business section were spread out in small four or five-story buildings they would cover the Golden Triangle and business as it is now conducted would be impossible.

Those that oppose such tall buildings, and the full development of building genius and architectural genius in America, are enemies of the public welfare and of progress.

THE HIGHER THE BETTER, should be our motto, until the buildings are well past the one hundred story mark. The 426-foot limit will solve the present needs of Pittsburgh, but not many years will elapse before the limit will have to be removed for the downtown section at least, owing to the restricted area of the district.

Two problems of the day are to find room for the workers in limited space, and means to take them to and from their work. Tall buildings will care for the workers and adequate transportation lines will naturally follow.

Baldwin Doffs His Coat

Nothing but praise greeted Premier Baldwin's doffing of his coat at the Canadian Club dinner in Montreal.

Far different years ago. In 1891, J. Sloat Fassett of Elmira, a rising statesman, was running for governor of New York on the Republican ticket. He went to the Bowery to make a speech.

Advancing to the front of the platform, the candidate took off his coat and chucked it on a chair. He meant it for a friendly gesture. Instead, his audience took it as an insult. Roswell P. Flower won and Fassett never came back.

More Truth Than Poetry
by S. E. Kiser

The Darling of the Hour

WHAT straining and crowding and crushing
Just for one glimpse of his face;
From every direction men rushing,
And short-skirted girls keeping pace;
Cops shouting orders and sweating,
Boys dodging in and then out;
Bruised women fainting or fretting,
Wild people milling about.

OH, what a riot and tussle!
Little men shunted around
By big men with plenty of muscle;
Hats and things strewn on the ground;
Groaning and scolding and sighing,
Pale women shouting for aid;
All with one purpose, and trying,
Half-wild, to be making the grade.

LOVELY ones, filled with emotion,
Tenderly speaking his name;
What a display of devotion!
No one to question his fame.
Girls in wild scrambles, and daring
The loss of the garments they wore;
Swaying and clutching and tearing;
Was ever such frenzy before?

IT WASN'T for Lindy the flier;
They never had heard of him then;
The tumult rose high and swelled higher,
And women gave battle to men.
In columns that couldn't be broken
They scorned what resistance they met,
And Rudy's the name that was spoken;
Do they fondly remember him yet?

WORDS OF WISDOM

To be a well-dressed man is the gift of fortune; but to write and read comes, by nature.—Shakespeare.

We are all soldiers of the state. We are all in the pay of society; we become deserters if we leave it.—Voltaire.

The true use of speech is not so much to express our wants as to conceal them. —Oliver Goldsmith.

Tales that are Told

That Top Note

ROAD FOREMAN (calling at house opposite): "Excuse me, madam, but have you been singing this morning?"

Lady of the House: "Yes, but why do you wish to know?"

Road Foreman (with obvious embarrassment): "Well, you see, my men have knocked off twice, already, thinking it was the dinner whistle, so I hope you'll excuse me asking you not to hang out quite so long on that top note."

Wanted to Know

A WELL-KNOWN official of the Illinois Bell Telephone Company was rudely aroused from his slumbers by the ringing of the telephone. After bruising his knee on a chair, he reached the 'phone.

"Hello!" he growled.

"Are you an official of the telephone company?" asked the voice.

"Yes, what can I do for you?"

"Tell me," said the voice, "how it feels to get out of bed at 2 o'clock to answer a wrong number."

Only a Bike

A CERTAIN big game hunter, who was contemplating a trip to Africa, called at a gunmaker's and bought a large quantity of cartridges.

"I usually deal with your head office," he remarked to the man in charge. "But I dare say you will be able to send these for me?"

"Certainly, sir."

"Well, I want them to go to Nigeria."

The other looked blank for a minute or two, then:

"I think you'd better give the order to our head office, sir," he ventured. "You see, we've only a small boy with a bike here."—London Answers.

New York Day by Day
by O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, Aug. 16.—The strangest and most contradictory block in Manhattan is that strip of West 47th street between Broadway and Sixth avenue. It has been called the keystone of the Tenderloin and is the softest spot in town for beggars.

Every variety of excellent and misguided activity is offered—from the peaceful church to the noisy speakeasy. It was here the biggest raid on hotel drug runners was staged and it is where a drunken actor hurled an innocent waiter from a ninth floor window to permanent invalidism.

It is about the only block in town where people stand in front of hotels or sit on stoops at night in neighborly Main street manner. It has hotels where gray haired women knit in lobbies and dim lit taverns, where no questions are asked.

This is the block where Jack Kennedy, whose rare devotion to his mother is a Broadway classic, had his chop house until he moved to West Forty-fifth street. Wilson Mizner once said this was the only block in New York where one-half reads the racing forms and the other half the Bible.

The block offers the most polyglot passersby of any in the world. There is almost always a stage midget puffing a big cigar. There are jolly burlesque girls a little over rouged, touts with gaudy vests, gigolos, suspiciously pale men as well as the corn fed and opulent.

It is the metropolitan haven for those raggedy street gamins who sell yesterday's editions and sleep in hallways. They roam in packs with a leader and gamble away slim earnings in pavement dice games. And yet sidewalk salvationists make their biggest collections there.

Life ripples along in a jostling manner even after midnight when a certain quiet comes to the rest of the town. Ladies in wrappers air shaggy white dogs. Bell hops rush back and forth from clattery lunchrooms with sandwiches. There is the noise of false laughter and tinned music from open windows. A strange block, sometimes sinister, but always gay.

At a vaudeville theater when the orchestra played the Star Spangled Banner a man who had been interned at Fort Oglethorpe for the duration of the war stood up—but there was an ironical smile on his face.

There are New Yorkers who give an impression that a taste for afternoon tea denotes the connoisseur and is as cultivated as a taste for old lace, hand hammered silver and such. Tea is a refreshing drink, but indicates nothing. Every Chinese laundryman drinks it. Nearly all gamblers are liquor teetotalers, but tea addicts. Tea has long been a favorite beverage of the New York slums. Red shirted ditch diggers drink cold tea.

New York's oldest dramatic editor, J. Rankin Towse, has been pensioned at 83 to return to his home in England and spend his remaining years among the scenes of his boyhood. Few newspapermen have had that opportunity. He is greatly beloved in the theater world.

Night bathing parties in the large apartment house and hotel pools have increased in popularity this summer. It was found perfect relaxation for those forced to stay in town. Many pools were rented from 1 a. m. on to private parties. No one has been drowned, but several have had pulmotor aid.

The New York block with the greatest number of hotels is on the Bowery in the block north of Hester street, either side of which is almost entirely lined with upstairs lodging houses with prices ranging from 15 to 50 cents a night.

In one of the lodging house offices is a sign: "Gents will please remove their clothes before going to bed."

Respecting the President
By DR. FRANK CRANE

Mr. Coolidge is the deliberate choice of the majority of our voters for President. He is the man chosen by the majority to represent us before the world.

As such he is entitled to a decent respect.

There have been a number of writers who are disgusting well-ordered minds by their frantic efforts to bring him into disrepute.

Of course a man who is the choice of one political party must expect to be criticized by members of the other party. For his official acts the President has no right to immunity from criticism.

But efforts to belittle him and disgrace him upon personal grounds and for reasons that have nothing to do with his political moves are reprehensible.

There has been much talk to the effect that he is a small-minded and empty-headed person. His reticence is set down as due to the fact that he has nothing to say.

But refusal to talk much and the ability to keep one's mouth shut has long been recognized as a virtue whether of strong people or weak.

We do not elect a President to make speeches. That matter is attended to by our Senators and Legislature. We elect him to make decisions and quietly to carry out the will of the people.

As far as is known, most of his official acts have been commendable. While there was much criticism of his interference in Nicaragua and of his actions in the Japanese embroglio, those affairs seem to have turned out without loss of credit to this country.

His attitude upon the prohibition question has been simply that of a man whose business it is to enforce the established laws of the nation. He has been neither the militant dry nor the militant wet, but as far as can be seen, has closely tried to enforce the law which the nation has passed.

Fortunately his domestic relations have been such as to cause him no trouble or raise any criticism.

The country can well afford to be satisfied with a man who talks too little rather than with a man who talks too much.

Just how desperate are the efforts of his critics to find some ridiculous fault with him is illustrated in the attempt to create indignation and contempt by the use of one kind of bait in fishing instead of another.

Why we cannot let our President go fishing as he pleases and let him alone while he is taking a well-earned vacation it is hard to know. Reserving the right to criticize him for his public acts, we insist that so long as he is President of this country he is entitled to the respect and honor of its citizens.

THE LIFE OF THOMAS A. EDISON

AT times Edison was permitted to run the engine of his train while the engineer took a nap. On one of the runs the water flowed over into the stack and washed out the accumulated soot. The steam blew the black dirt all over the beautifully painted engine and the young engineer.

JUST before Christmas, Edison's train jumped the rails. Four cars were smashed, distributing figs, raisins, dates and candies all over the track. Edison thought he would reduce the waste by eating as much as he could. In his own words he "gave our family doctor the time of his life."

IN 1860, the then Prince of Wales visited Canada. Sarnia was opposite Port Huron, Mich., and when the Prince stopped at Sarnia the Port Huron boys went over, Edison included. In a dispute over the Prince the Canadian boys whipped the Yankees. Edison got a black eye.

WHILE selling papers in Port Huron "Al" would get home about 11 o'clock. He and his partner had to drive past an old soldiers' graveyard. As they approached the spooky spot they'd close their eyes and gallop the old horse past as fast as he could go.
